Miss Dix's Puzzle.
Yes, We're Prosperous.
General Motors' "Wow."

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1927.)

RUTH ELDER came sailing home yesterday dressed in furs, silks, flowers, smiles. New York's Mayor met her, with Grover Whalen, New York's unofficial host.

We honor effort as well as accomplishment. Ruth Elder fell, but did try, flying longer in a straight line than anybody ever flew over the ocean.

Now she will probably fly into the movies. Winner of two beauty prizes, and able to register determination, she would succeed.

DOROTHY DIX has a puzzle, this one: "What is it that is hard to get, easy to keep and almost impossible to regain once you have lost it?" The answer is, "marital love."

That puzzle interests many millions of women more than any other puzzle.

PAUL BLOCK, a publisher of newspapers in many cities, including Pittsburgh, Newark and Toledo, says this will be the "best presidential year ever seen. Business will boom through 1928 and beyond." Mr. Block understands business.

THE foundation of prosperity, solid and enduring, is not exceptional success, but average success. Bernard F. Gimbel says "this country is sound because the prosperity is well distributed. Almost everybody gets his share." Mr. Gimbel, recently elected to succeed his father who becomes chairman of the board as president of a house with branches in New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Milwaukee, doing a business of more than $125,000,000 a year, is also in a position to judge conditions.

WALL Street, cheerful yesterday, seemed to believe in a good presidential year and other good things.

General Motors in one lump distributed $45,250,000 in a cash dividend. No company in the world ever before distributed so much in cash at one time. The DuPont Company alone got $16,000,000 on its investment in General Motors. Don't sell this country short.

GENERALLY speaking, we are prosperous, those willing to work get along. But Mrs. Hildegar Wywoias did not find it so. She struggled for five years with four children, feeding, clothing, paying rent, washing, cooking and working as a "garment presser" for $25 a week. She scorched one expensive dress. That took a week's pay. Each month the rent took a week's pay.

Prosperous America was not prosperous enough for Mrs. Wywoias. She broke the gas meter, opened all the jets, then knelt by the bed where her five-year-old son was sleeping, her three little girls asleep nearby.

All were dead when found, with no more rent or food bills to pay. There is still room at the BOTTOM for those that would make conditions better.

OUR government, dozing in the middle of its gold supply, reads that Russia works steadily to become "king of the air," as Mr. Bruce Gould has it, in an important article for Cyrus H. K. Curtis.

Russia's society of 4,000,000 members, the "Aviokhim," is dedicated to making Russia pre-eminent in the air. We may some day come closer to Bolshevism than we are now. That is to say, they may come closer to us, and not on a pleasant errand.

RUSSIA has 4,000 miles of air lines, and teaches aviation in public schools. This country invented the flying machine, then stopped.

LORD THOMPSON, lately British secretary of state for air, says, "Russia besides creating a great air force, sees more clearly than any other government the essentials of air power and is using the machinery of state to instill 'air sense' into the masses of Russian people."

MAYOR THOMPSON, of Chicago, says he has a pretty good job and doesn't care to be President of the United States. Sensible man, he is young and can wait. But according to Chicago information he will probably go into the 1928 convention with the Illinois delegation back of him. That would upset some plans.

2 Months vs. 1 Day

Mrs. C——, — Jackson St., was at her wits end trying to rent three rooms in her home. Off and on for two months she advertised them elsewhere and always with the same experience

JACKSON, — —Three rooms, bath, laundry, gas, electric, hot water. Fairfax —

—no results. The first insertion of Mrs. C——'s rental ad in The Sun-Tele produced a tenant. The Sun-Tele want ads had made another friend. At the time Mrs. C—— cancelled her additional insertions, she said, "I certainly will boost Sun-Tele want ads.'

To place rental ads in Sun-Tele, call Grant 8400.

Worsted in Crash With Trolley

DRIVER OF THIS CAR HAD LITTLE CHANCE

John Ungerman, saloonkeeper at 3208 Spring Garden ave., suffered a fractured skull when his automobile collided headon with a Millvale street car in Chestnut street, Northside, early today. This was the second smashup between a street car and motor vehicle in that vicinity within a few days, one man dying in a previous accident.

NEBRASKA FAVORITE OVER PITT

By JESS M. CARVER.

A football game defying the best efforts of the gridiron's soothsayers to call the turn on its outcome, bringing face to face two of the greatest elevens in the land in one of the season's most important intersectional struggles is on the books for the Pitt Stadium today, where Pitt's light but well-seasoned Golden Panthers, undefeated and with only a single tie marring their record, will cast themselves before the crushing attack of the heavy cornhuskers of Nebraska, defeated once this year by Missouri's Tigers.

WELCH

This game ranks in importance with the Army-Notre Dame, Chicago-Illinois and Michigan-Navy battles, and reality, is second only to the Eastern titular fracas at New

BROADWAY LIMITED WRECKS

By International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 12.—The Broadway Limited, Pennsylvania Railroad east-bound express, was delayed two hours near Marysville this morning, when two cars were derailed. The cars were not damaged, and none of the passengers was injured.

The presence of the wrecking crew on an adjoining track delayed other trains for a time.

Fake Grid Star Held As Thief

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 12.—Posing as Capt. Bill Amos, of the Washington and Jefferson football team, and bearing cards engraved with the all-American fullback's name, as well as letters written and addressed to the grid star by a girl in Lancaster, Pa., Earl Vermillion, aged 23, of Elm Grove, W. Va., is held here on charges of robbery and entry.

Vermillion was caught in the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity house by W.

GIRL SLAIN IN LOVERS LANE

By International News Service.

YORK, Pa., Nov. 12.—Paul Long, a deaf mute, today showed police here how Gertrude Rudy, 18, a mother-to-be, was brutally slain last night by an unidentified man wearing a hunting jacket.

Long explained to authorities, by means of gestures, that he had been in the habit of following couples as they strolled down the railroad tracks at evening.

Last night he followed Gertrude Rudy and her companion. He described how the man pointed his shotgun at the girl's breast and shot her through the heart, and then clubbed her with the weapon.

Long then explained how the body was dragged to the railroad tracks and laid there to be mangled beyond recognition.

Long said the man then fled, pointing out footprints left in a dash for freedom through the weeds.

Police released Neil Stough, 18, after questioning him regarding the Christmas present the girl had just bought for him. They detained the farmhand, however, as a material witness.

Police said an autopsy revealed the girl was to become a mother. Investigation disclosed that she had recently sought a doctor's aid, accompanied by a man.

Intruder Strangles Widow

A Negro burglar strangled and beat Mrs. Olivia Shirk, 77, widow, in her home at 303 Grove street, Hill district, at 10 a. m. today and escaped empty-handed only after her screams had aroused neighbors.

Alone in the house, Mrs. Shirk told police the Negro, a man about 22 years old, had choked her, knocked her to the floor and kicked her. Her condition, because of her advanced age, was reported as serious.

Mrs. Shirk said she had come upon the man ransacking the first floor of the home. Before she could attract help he had silenced her with blows.

MR. AND MRS. AARON BENESCH

The former Helen Henderson, ex-Follies beauty, who six weeks ago married Aaron Benesch, multi-millionaire Baltimore banker, is reported to have left him and returned to New York City. The couple had intended to go to Honolulu on their honeymoon, but Benesch suddenly changed his mind while at Catalina Islands. They then went to Baltimore. Mrs. Benesch said she had been fed up on the latter city.

LEADERS OF ALL CREEDS AID RED CROSS DRIVE

Leaders of all creeds have joined in support of the eleventh roll call of the Pittsburgh Chapter of American Red Cross which begins at 1 o'clock Sunday.

Proclamations which called their people to support this drive for 80,000 members have been issued by Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson, rabbi of Rodef Shalom congregation; Rt. Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Pittsburgh; Dr. Francis J. McConnell, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Pittsburgh, and Dr. Alexander Mann, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Pittsburgh.

EX-GOV. HAS TIP IN QUIZ

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Gifford Pinchot, former Governor of Pennsylvania, conferred today with District Attorney Gordon relative to the government's investigation of jury surveillance in the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial.

Immediately upon his arrival at the courthouse, Mr. Pinchot was taken to the office of the district attorney, who called into conference Neil Burkinshaw, assistant district attorney in charge of the Fall-Sinclair inquiry.

Whatever information Pinchot had was carefully guarded in advance of the conference. The district attorney has been talking about an expected startling disclosure in the case, but whether it is to be supplied by Mr. Pinchot was not made known.

The former Pennsylvania governor recently moved to Washington, and has been devoting much of his time to a campaign against what he regards as a dangerous exploitation of waterpower by private interests. In past years he took an active part in the fight for development of natural resources, beginning with his service under the Taft administration as chief government forester.

Until today, there had been no public mention of Mr. Pinchot in connection with the Fall-Sinclair proceedings.

The former governor was taken into the grand jury room after a quarter hour's conference.

It was evident that the district attorney and his assistants regarded Pinchot's information as of the highest importance.

Pinchot was before the grand jury exactly 12 minutes. Gordon and Burkinshaw flanked him as he passed down the hall returning to the district attorney's office.

Newspaper correspondents were warned away by the prosecuting officers.

Mr. Pinchot now makes his home in Washington, and is waging a fight before Congress for conservation of water power facilities. He maintains a considerable staff of assistants in this work.

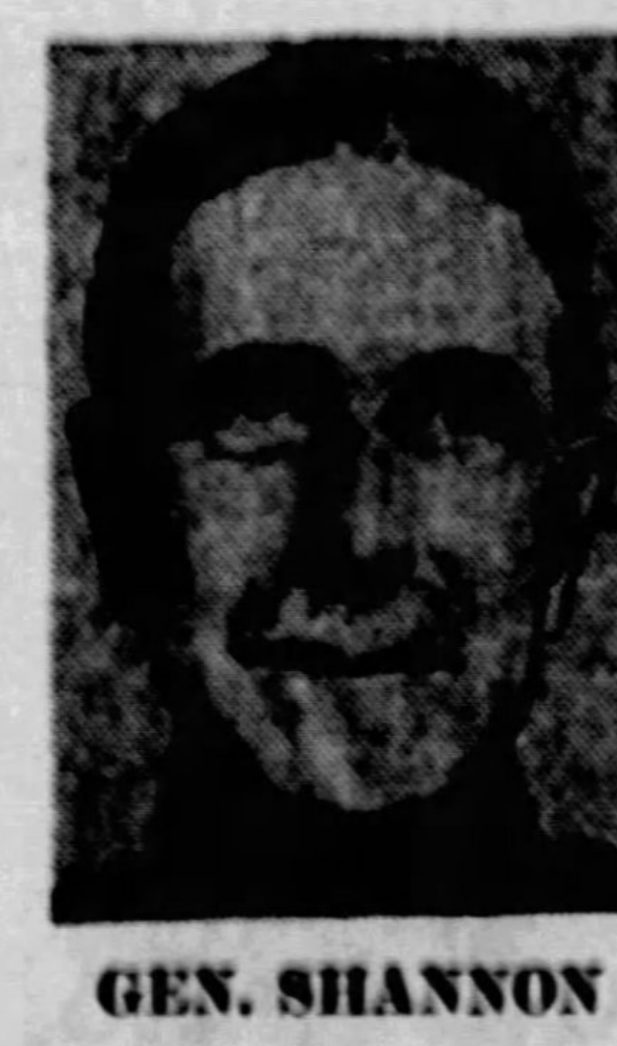
"A. E. F. Came Just in Time to Save Allies"—Foch



GEN. SHANNON

"COL STEVENSON of the Sixteenth Royal Scots, with whom I spent a number of weeks, told me that 'if you had not come we would have been all in—our backs were to the wall.' It was the offensive spirit of the American Army that changed the war from a war of stabilization to one of movement, for after the first few open actions it became a dig in affair. All realized that while not a professional army, we had courage and that made up everthing else that was lacking. How it won the esteem of the French is wonderfully told by Marshal Foch in his article."—Gen. E. C. Shannon—"One Yard Shannon," colonel of the One Hundred and Eleventh Infantry of Pittsburgh boys.

GEN. PRICE

"IT was a handsome thing to do—to give his judgment on the qualities of the American soldier. It shows the bigness of Marshal Foch, as he writes in The Sunday Sun-Telegraph. When time goes on and you compare the qualities of Gen. John J. Pershing with those of other great generals of war, he will stand out as one of the world's greatest warriors. We all know what the American Army did in France. Their valor was outstanding. The enemy could make no headway against it. We all know what Gen. John J. Pershing did. It was no so much how he did it but that he did it."—Gen. William G. Price, Jr., overseas veteran and commander of Pennsylvania National Guard.

COL. SUCCOP

"IT takes a man like Marshal Foch to put America in right. I know that when we landed on European soil it was thought by the leaders over there that we had come too late. There is no question but that the tide of battle changed with the arrival of the American Army. One can only feel that now after nearly 10 years following the ending of the war that America is receiving her just dues. The whole world will feel the effect of what these men say, as it was a courageous thing to do. It tells to the world the real part America had in helping to end the greatest of all wars."—Col. B. L. Succop of the One Hundred and Eleventh Infantry of Pittsburgh boys.

PUSHED TO SIDEWALK, DIES

Mrs. Jane Carr, 50, 345 East Eighth avenue, Homestead, fell dead in front of her home from heart disease last night while trying to stop a street fight in which her son, William Carr, 35, and John T. DeBolt, 18, of 357 Seventh avenue, Homestead, were engaged.

DeBolt. Carr, DeBolt's father, George DeBolt, and Alice Carr, daughter of the dead woman, are under arrest.

According to police, Mrs. Carr called her son to separate several small boys who were fighting in front of her home. DeBolt is said to have attacked Carr when the latter attempted to stop the fight. Mrs. Carr screamed and attempted to separate her son and DeBolt. George DeBolt, father of John, according to witnesses, grabbed the mother and pushed her to the sidewalk.

It was first thought that the woman died from injuries, but an autopsy revealed that death was due to heart disease.

HELEN MENKEN AND HER HUSBAND

In an action which her attorney said he would file today, Helen Menken seeks to divorce Humphrey Bogart. The two stage celebrities were married in May, 1926. It is averred that Bogart considered his career as more important than marital happiness. Neglect and abuse are also charged.

Sleeping Family Saved As Fire Sweeps Home

A fireman was injured and seven persons were forced from their home this morning when fire swept the home of Thomas Rochford, at 2 Horner street, West End. The house is on a hillside overlooking West Main street and it was difficult for the firemen to get a hose line to it. The damage was estimated at $3,000.

Rochford was awakened at 1 o'clock by smoke in his bedroom and aroused his wife, Margaret, and his three sons and two daughters. They fled to the street, and Mr. Rochford called the fire department. Albert Feineigle, a fireman of No. 17 Engine Company, was cut on the wrist while fighting the fire. He was treated at the South Side Hospital.

The fire originated in the basement of the building. The cause is undetermined.

RECIPIENT OF MANY OFFERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—A career other than flightless domesticity in Panama, which her husband had indicated he desired for her, beckoned today to Ruth Elder.

"Women can do lots of things," Miss Elder said, "and husbands and homes and families should not interfere with them. I've washed a lot of dishes in my time, and I don't intend to go back to that right away. Just what I will do I do not know yet."

The comely Dixie flier, who rode a trans-Atlantic airplane from smalltown obscurity to fame almost overnight, was confronted with the choice of a housewife's job with its attendant and diswashing or $250,000 motion picture, vaudeville and lecture appearances.

Miss Elder, who returned from Paris yesterday on the Aquitania with her co-pilot, Capt. George Haldeman, contemplated the decision with the smiling confidence that she showed when the ill-fated monoplane American Girl took off for its 36½-hour uncompleted flight to Paris a month ago.

"I am sure I can combine domesticity and a career successfully," she declared. "In the case of a married woman it all depends on the husband. Mine is very broad-minded; he is not a dictator."

RIFLE BULLET WOUNDS BOY

Martin Vidt, 13, of 20 Creek street, is in the Allegheny General Hospital recovering from a scalp wound suffered last night when a small rifle was accidentally discharged, the bullet striking him on the left side of the head. With his cousin, Edward Proudley, 17, of 3410 East street, Vidt was hunting rabbits in the rear of his home when the rifle was discharged. Vidt is a student at the Perry High School.

BURGLAR SEVERELY CUT FORCING STORE WINDOW

A burglar who entered the dyeing and cleaning establishment of Charles B. O'Kelly, 200 Larimer avenue, early this morning was severely cut when he broke a plate glass door to gain entrance. A blood-soaked handkerchief and bloodstains on the door were found by police who investigated the robbery. Several suits of clothing were stolen.

His skull fractured, beaten and battered so badly he is feared dying, B. J. McGrady, 60, of 2329 Carson street, was found unconscious early this morning in Second avenue near Brady street, the Soho district. His pockets had been rifled.

Detectives Jerry Deasey and H. P. Scott, members of the homicide squad of the city detectives, are searching for the thugs who waylaid McGrady.

McGrady was found by Patrolmen James A. Shaner and John Herd, who took him to the Mercy Hospital in a police patrol. A letter found in his pocket established his identity.

McGrady still was unconscious this morning and detectives were unable to secure a description of the highwaymen.

tried to rush the gates, and the prince had to pass through the yard to the Victoria embankment to reach his car.

The Prince and Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, attended a service at the Cenotaph. As the Prince turned to leave there was a wild roar of cheering and shouts of "Wales." The crowd, waving their hats and flags, surged madly toward him.

Police quickly closed around the Prince. A squad of mounted men fought their way through the shouting mob. They formed a lane, through which the Prince with difficulty reached Scotland Yard. The great gates of the yard closed behind him. The Prince noticed his companions were still outside and asked that the gates be reopened to admit them.

The gates swung open, the crowd surged forward again. The pressure of these struggling thousands was so great that they almost conquered the police. The demonstrators were wildly singing, "For he's a jolly good fellow." The police finally conquered the crowd and shut the gates.

Many persons fainted during the demonstration. On the fringes of the crowd and in side streets there was some rowdyism, but all were cleared away within an hour.

OHIO VOTE CALLED FRAUD

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 12.—Sensational charges of ballot tampering, fraud and corrupt practices by election officials were cited today in a suit filed here to set aside last Tuesday's municipal election which resulted in defeat of an amendment to abolish the city manager form of government.

The suit filed for former Gov. Harry L. Davis, chief backer of the amendment, named five members of the election board as defendants. The plaintiffs demand that the count be declared "null and void" and ask that a date be set for a second election to be held under orders of the court.

Hearing on a requested injunction to restrain the election board from certifying the vote and destroying the records was to be held before Judge Carl V. Weygand today.

Included among the charges were: Marking of ballots by election officers; ballots cast for voters illegally registered; tampering with ballots in large numbers; destruction of Davis amendment boxes, and Davis movement.

Members of the election board names as defendants: A. J. Hirstius, chief clerk; T. L. McDonough, Thomas S. Farrell, Harry L. French and Alex Bernsteen.

BALLOT CLEANUP PLANS TO BE MAPPED MONDAY

Cold Wave Slips by City

The burly week-end weather prospect has done a fade-out and the outlook is for a clear, crisp Sunday, according to Weather Forecaster W. S. Brotzman. Skies will clear and the weather tomorrow will be just cool enough to encourage brisk walking.

An Alaskan storm bringing in its wake rain and snow flurries passed this part of the country rapidly and veered northward, the weather experts said today. All Pittsburgh felt was a light shower and gradual dropping of temperature. The storm is centered over the St. Lawrence valley today.

BOARD FINDS TALLY SHEETS MISSING

A plan to eliminate election violations by fighting them at the source rather than on the surface will be discussed Monday by Thomas J. Cavanaugh, chief investigator of the Allegheny County Elections Association, and officers of the organization. A preliminary conference was held yesterday. A statement outlining the aims of the Elections Association was issued by Francis S. Guthrie, secretary of the organization.

COUNT PROGRESSES RAPIDLY

The 60 members of the official returning board were given a part holiday yesterday from 10:30 until 1 o'clock to enable them to see the Armistice Day parade. The board made good progress yesterday, and when they adjourned at 4 o'clock the count had reached the Sixteenth district of the Fifth Ward.

BOARDS CALLED TO COURT

Members of two election boards were ordered into court yesterday to explain missing tally sheets. The members of the Seventeenth district of the Third Ward came into court, and after a short hearing the missing sheets were found in the possession of the minority inspector of the board who through an error had failed to put them in the return envelope.

The board of the Fifth district of the Fourth Ward were ordered into court for a similar reason and it was necessary to open the ballot box in this case. The missing sheet was found in the box where it had been placed through an error. Members of the Twenty-first, Twenty-second and Twenty-fifth districts of the Fourth Ward were ordered to appear in court today to explain missing tally sheets.

Plans His Burial, Hangs

Before leaving home last night, Ludwig Schulter, 55, 608 Federal street, McKees Rocks gave his wife instructions as to how his funeral was to be conducted and his property sold in event he was found dead.

Today Schulter was found hanging from a tree on the A. R. Nichols farm near the Stowe township reservoir, strangled to death with a small rope. Ill health and loss of employment are blamed.

Sharpe, Friendship Chapter; Mrs. Dora J. Bryan, William Penn Chapter; Mrs. Edna R. Keil, Daylight Chapter; Mrs. Sara E. Killen, Allegheny Chapter and Mrs. Edna Haller, North Side Chapter.

SMOOTHED THE WAY

Mrs. A. G. H. Frasier, upon whose capable shoulders the general chairmanship of the fete and frolic fit easily, is seen above (left), chatting with a few other active workers; Mrs. Grace M. Phillips, Mrs. Justina Brown, of Johnstown, and Mrs. A. H. Kramer, of Jeannette. Mrs. Frazier was everywhere yesterday seeing that all the numerous features of the mammoth fete and frolic, to which the entire Mosque was given over, were working smoothly.

GREETINGS!

Earlier arrivals greet a newcomer. Mrs. Clara Weigle, worthy matron of Bethel Chapter, shakes hands with Mrs. Elsie Steinmann, of Mizpah Chapter. Mrs. Elizabeth M. Sexauer, of South Hills Chapter, Mrs. Margaret Irwin, of Joppa Chapter, Mrs. Elsie Rahde, of Allojo Chapter, and Mrs. Edith Hertel, of Guyasuta Chapter add their welcome.

HIS WILL ORDERS ASHES CAST TO WINDS

A request that his body be cremated and the "ashes strewn to the four winds of Heaven," was contained in the will of Charles B. McFail, late manager of the Holmes Electric Protective Company, which was filed for probate in the Register of Wills office.

To his widow, Mary Melvina McFail, Mr. McFail, prominent in Masonic activities, left all of his $27,000 estate but three bequests of $500 each to his son, John A. McFail, and two daughters, Mrs. Florence L. Bricker and Mrs. Mary A. Kelly. Mr. McFail died on October 30.

SHOOTS WIFE, SELF FOR LOVE

CADIZ, O., Nov. 12.—"I had to do it, I loved her."

This note left by Doyle V. Donald, 23, sheds the only light on the finding of Donald's body along with that of his wife, 26, on the stairway leading to the second floor of the George Kenisell home here late yesterday. He had died from a bullet through his temple and she from the bullet wound in her heart. A revolver lay nearby.

No motive is known for the apparent murder and suicide. Two children of the couple were attending a football game when the tragedy took place.

THREE DEAD IN OHIO FIRE

BATAVIA, O., Nov. 12.—(INS.)—Three persons were burned to death and a fourth was reported dying as the result of a fire which destroyed the home of Jesse Darlington here early today.

The victims: Jesse Darlington, 28; his mother, Mrs. Nancy Darlington, 55, and his 11-month-old son, Joseph William.

COASTER HITS STUMP, DIES

SOMERSET, Pa., Nov. 12.—Sherman Harmon, 14, of Wilbur, Pa., near here, suffered a broken neck yesterday in a coasting accident and died a few minutes later. His sled crashed into a stump.

19 MINERS ARRESTED AFTER RIOT IN OHIO

BELLAIRE, O., Nov. 12.—Nineteen union coal miners were arrested charged with violating the federal picket injunction as a result of a fight near the Big Five mine at Bannock. William Hunter was shot through the right arm and several others were injured.

HOTEL LEASES STORE ROOM FOR SHOP

A store room in the Roosevelt Hotel, adjoining the Penn avenue entrance, has been leased to Rose Wiseman for a lingerie and millinery shop for a long term. Fixtures will be installed immediately and the shop will be opened during the later part of the month. The lease was closed through the Horner Real Estate Company.

Directors of the Commonwealth Real Estate Company have elected Howard Irish president, to succeed A. J. Kelly, Jr., deceased. Mr. Irish formerly was vice president. H. F. Kelly, formerly treasurer, was elected vice president and treasurer, and Robert F. Morris, Jr., was elected secretary. All the new officials have been connected with the company a long time.

The Gribbin Company sold for Laura Randol to William Metosky 20x100 feet with a three-story brick store and dwelling at 3707 Butler street, Sixth Ward, for $11,500.

A frame house at 2510 East street, Twenty-sixth Ward, lot 40x134 feet, has been sold by Sophie Kuster to Jacob Horvath, Jr., at private terms.

A property in Library street, Braddock, lot 23x100 feet, has been sold by Thomas W. Nugent to Mary E. Carlson for $10,500.

The E. A. Strout Farm Agency sold 60 acres in the Townville road, Centerville, Pa., for Mrs. Amanda A. Ackerson to Robert J. Bloomfield of Pittsburgh; and 29 acres near Dayton, Pa., for Anna G. Hinkley to John A. Pierce of Pittsburgh.

MINE STRIKE-BREAKERS FIGHT PICKETS, JAILED

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 12.—Five Negro miners employed at the Enterprise mine, Youghiogheny and Ohio Coal Company, were committed to jail following a fight with union pickets.

UNFURL FLAGS AT PENNY-BUILT MEMORIAL

WILLIAM T. KERR ARTHUR G. TRIMBLE

President Kerr and Vice President Trimble unfurling two American flags presented by the Flag Day Association to Pittsburgh. The ceremony took place at the memorial tablet in Schenley Park, erected by 200,000 Allegheny County school children to commemorate the Flags' 150th anniversary. The pennies to build the tablet were raised by the Flag Day Association through The Chronicle Telegraph.

DRIVER INJURED AS AUTO HITS TROLLEY

In a head-on crash between an automobile and a Millvale street car in East Ohio street early this morning, John Ungerman, 33, of 3303 Spring Garden avenue, suffered a fracture of the skull and his automobile was wrecked.

The accident occurred east of Chestnut street when Ungerman is said to have swung out into the middle of the street to pass another machine. The street car was traveling in the opposite direction.

Ungerman was taken from the wreckage of his machine, a large sedan, and rushed to the Allegheny General Hospital where it was stated his condition was serious.

The accident occurred near the scene of a crash of a similar nature that occurred several days ago and in which one man was killed and another seriously injured.

NAB NEGRO FOR ASKING FUNDS FOR SYNAGOGUE

College Student, in City, Makes Trapping Pay

By Universal Service.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 12.—Although Ohio State University is located in this city of a quarter-million population, one of the students attending it pays his way by trapping. He is Harley Stone of Logan, sophomore in the College of Dentistry. Last winter he made $500 selling pelts of fox, coon, mink, skunk and muskrat he caught in a trapline on a river bank three miles north of the university.

JEWELRY STORE LOOTED

Loot valued at $250 was stolen during the night from the jewelry store of Leo Elyah at 1717 West Liberty avenue, according to a report made to city detectives. The thieves jimmied a side window, police were told.

The home of J. Jones, Jr., at 523 Climax street, was ransacked early today by thieves, who obtained a watch and a ring valued at $40.

4 DEAD IN LIQUOR FIGHT

OPP, Ala., Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Armistice Day in this little Southern Alabama town left four dead from participation in a spectacular gun battle and two witnesses suffering from bullet wounds.

Policemen Ed Nix, 36, and Lee Clark, 45, were fatally wounded last night, but not before they had brought down Cleve Dauphin, 40, and O. C. Dauphin, 18, his son.

Opp police declared both Dauphins bore records as liquor law violators.

Earlier in the night, the two officers had attempted to stop a car driven by young Dauphin, who was said to have been making a disturbance. Firing at his automobile failed to stop him, and the youth returned soon afterward with his father.

Reports of the trouble had attracted a large crowd, which dispersed as firing started with the approach of the policemen. No words were passed by any of the participants and they advanced slowly in the open firing and reloading their weapons until they fell. When the firing ceased only Nix was found alive, and he died at a hospital a few minutes later.

Miss Effie Davis, an Andalusia school supervisor, and Grady Paul, 17, both were wounded by stray bullets. Miss Davis was carrying her sister's baby, which was unharmed.

THE SUN TELEGRAPH MELODY WAY CLUB

TENTH LESSON

Copyright, 1927, by W. Otto Miessner

Canoe and I

O down the river we float, my boat,
  Just you and the river, my dog and I!
The wavelets shimmer, they glow, they show
  The sun has grown dimmer, the dusk is nigh!

We shoot the rapids, canoe—we two—
  The roaring rapids, so wild, so free—
Now into the calm bayou, and through
  And on, to the rolling, bowling sea!
—W. Otto Miessner.

Water and Music seem always to have had a fondness for each other. The waves beat their rhythms on the shore. The brook sings its love-song to the sea. The rivulet and the waterfall—all make their own peculiar Music.

With this wonder Music of Nature, for men to marvel at, it is not surprising that poets have made verses and composers have made songs to the river and the sea. Rubinstein wrote an Ocean symphony—Mendelssohn his Hebrides Overture—Offenbach his Barcarolle. I am sure you have often heard the last piece, at least.

Sailors have their chanties with their "Yeo, Heave Ho!" Land-lubbers, too, have their rowing, boating songs. Do you know the famous "Volga Boatmen" song? Even our southern darkies, working on the levies, could not resist singing to the accompaniment of the mighty Mississippi!

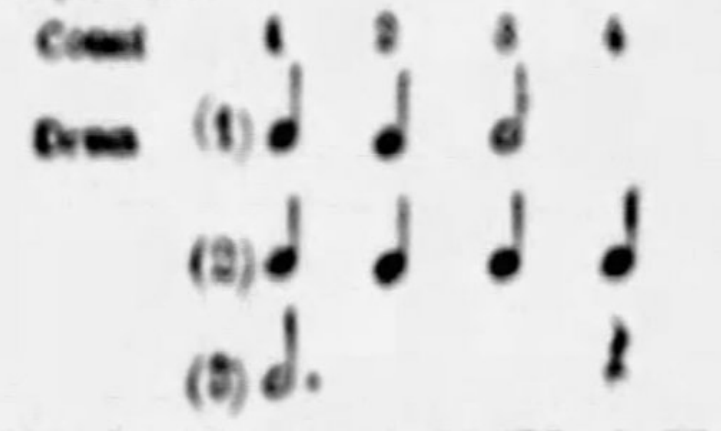
It seems quite fitting, therefore, that the Melody Way Club should have its own Boat Song. "Lightly Row" is the favorite piece of all the Melody Way pupils and I hope you'll like it, too!

Analyze "Lightly Row"

1. Rhythm

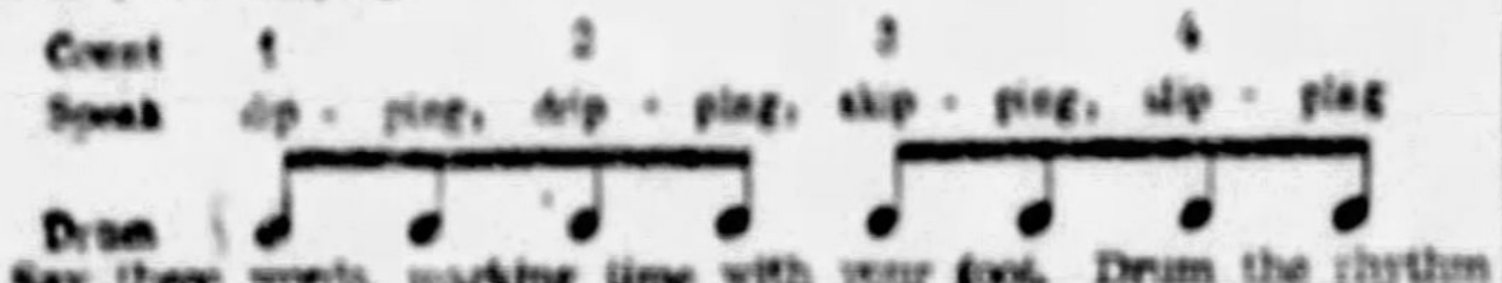
Name the measure sign.
What kind of measure?
Which note gets one beat?
Which note gets two beats?
Which note gets three beats?

Study, first, the rhythm of the melody. Only three kinds of rhythmic measures or motifs are present:



The first two became familiar to you in "Magic Music"—the third, in "Sleep, Baby." It is interesting to discover that so long a piece can be composed of so few rhythmic groups, is it not?

Now notice the L. H. rhythm that accompanies the Melody. It keeps going over in eighth notes, two to each count, but grouped in fours for convenience. In arranging this piece, I wished this eighth note rhythm to remind you of the lapping of the waves against the sides of the boat, as if they were saying:



Say these words, marking time with your foot. Drum the rhythm counting time, aloud. Once you feel the rhythms, it is not necessary, nor even desirable to keep on tapping and counting. The chief value in counting measures is in analyzing the rhythms and getting or feeling the motion.

2. Melody

Study the Key Signature:

Where is Do on the staff?
What is Do's letter name?
In what key is "Lightly Row?"
Name the letter names of Do Re Mi Fa So.

Locate These Melodic Motifs in the Piece:

1. So Mi Mi —How many times?
2. Fa Re Re —How many times?
3. Do Re Mi Fa—How many times?
4. Do Mi So So—How many times?
5. Re Mi Fa —How many times?
6. Mi Fa So —How many times?

Play Each Motif and Phrase Separately:

1. On the Key-Board with Key-Finder.
2. At the Piano with Key-Finder.
3. At the Piano following notes.

3. Harmony

At first glance, the L. H. accompaniment appears difficult. However, you will soon be pleasantly surprised to find only two chords in the entire piece—your old friends, the I and V Chords! They are broken chords, in these forms:

I	V
1. Do Mi So Mi	3. Ti Fa So Fa
2. Mi Do So Mi

How often can you find the first form of I?
How often can you find the second form of I?
How often can you find the broken V chord?

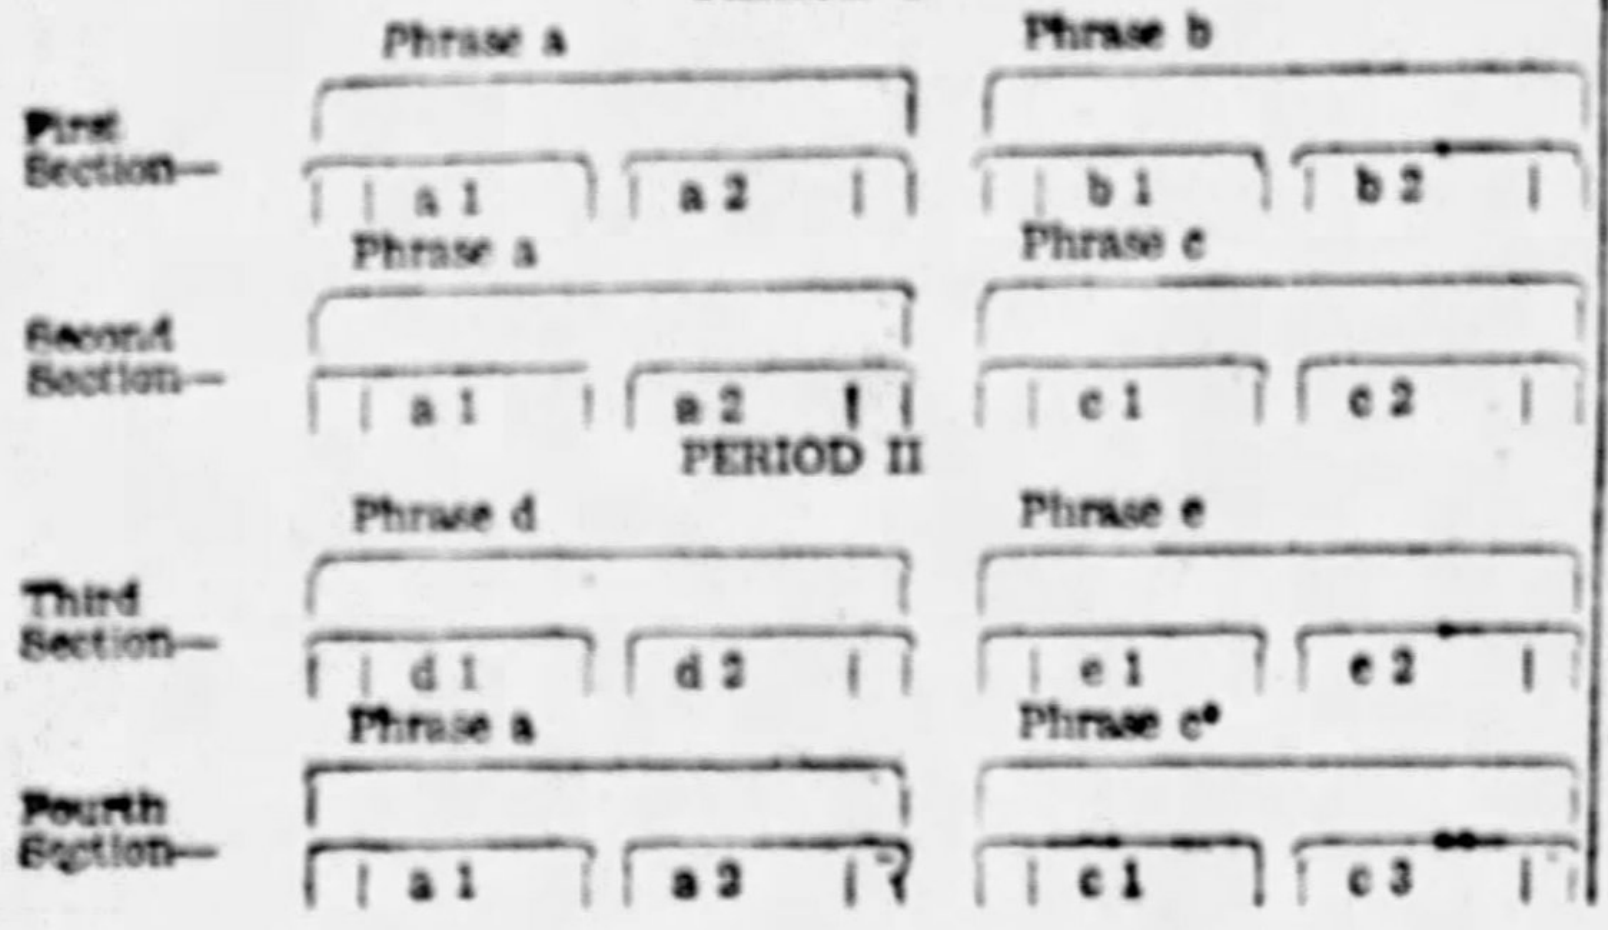
Remember the rhythm of the four eights. Play the L. H. accompaniment, first practicing each broken chord separately.

First, on the Key-Board with Chord-Finder.
Second, at the Piano with Chord-Finder.
Third, at the Piano following notes.

4. Form

Before attempting to play "Lightly Row" with both hands, it will help you to analyze the Form. Study this diagram of the phrases, sections and periods which I have made to correspond, line for line, with the printed music.

"Lightly Row"



Observe that each phrase is made up of two measures. This is the first piece you have had that contains two periods. Such a Form is called a "Two-part Form."

Altogether, the melody contains only six motifs while the accompaniment contains but two chords! Notice that the phrase a occurs three times; that the phrase e is a sequence of the phrase d; that a 2 is a sequence of a 1, and that e 2 is a sequence of d 2.

Now see if you can follow the diagram or map and play the Melody from memory. Next add the accompaniment. You will be amazed to discover how quickly you can memorize pieces by this method of mapping the form or structure.

5. The Mood

From what you have learned of my intentions in writing the accompaniment to sound like waves splashing, you will know that the L. H. must play quietly but evenly, while the song in the R. H. sings out. Let your Melodies sing under the fingers. That is one of the secrets of beautiful playing.

Transposition

Having learned "Lightly Row" so quickly and easily in E Major (four sharps!) you might try it in the other five familiar keys of C, D, F, G, A.

Broken Chord Forms

You have learned that chords may be broken up in different ways. Review the broken chord forms you have learned already in the following pieces:

	I	V
"My Pony"	Do Mi So	Re Re Ti So
"Happiness		Ti So Fa
"Sleep, Baby"	Mi So Do Mi So Do Mi	Re So Ti So
"Lady Bird"	Do So Mi	Ti Fa So
"Mocking Bird"	Do So So Mi Mi	Ti Fa Fa So So
"Lightly Row"	Do Mi So Mi Mi Do So Mi	Ti Fa So Fa

Experiment also with these forms which are suitable for waltz or three-quarter measure.

I	V
Do So Mi	Ti Re So
Mi Do So	So Re Ti
So Do Mi
So Mi Do	So Fa Ti

By experiment, I mean:

1. Play the chord forms, say in E Major.
2. Let someone play them while you guess tone-names and letter names.
3. Write each in notes on 3x5 cards.
4. Let some friend show one card at a time (two seconds); you name the kind of chord, also tone-names and letter names. Then play it.

Music Vocabulary

These chord forms are the harmonic materials with which composers work. By studying them, you add to your Music vocabulary (list), just as you would to your speech vocabulary if you looked up other words meaning the same as, for example, hurry, hurry, hasten, quicken, rush, run.

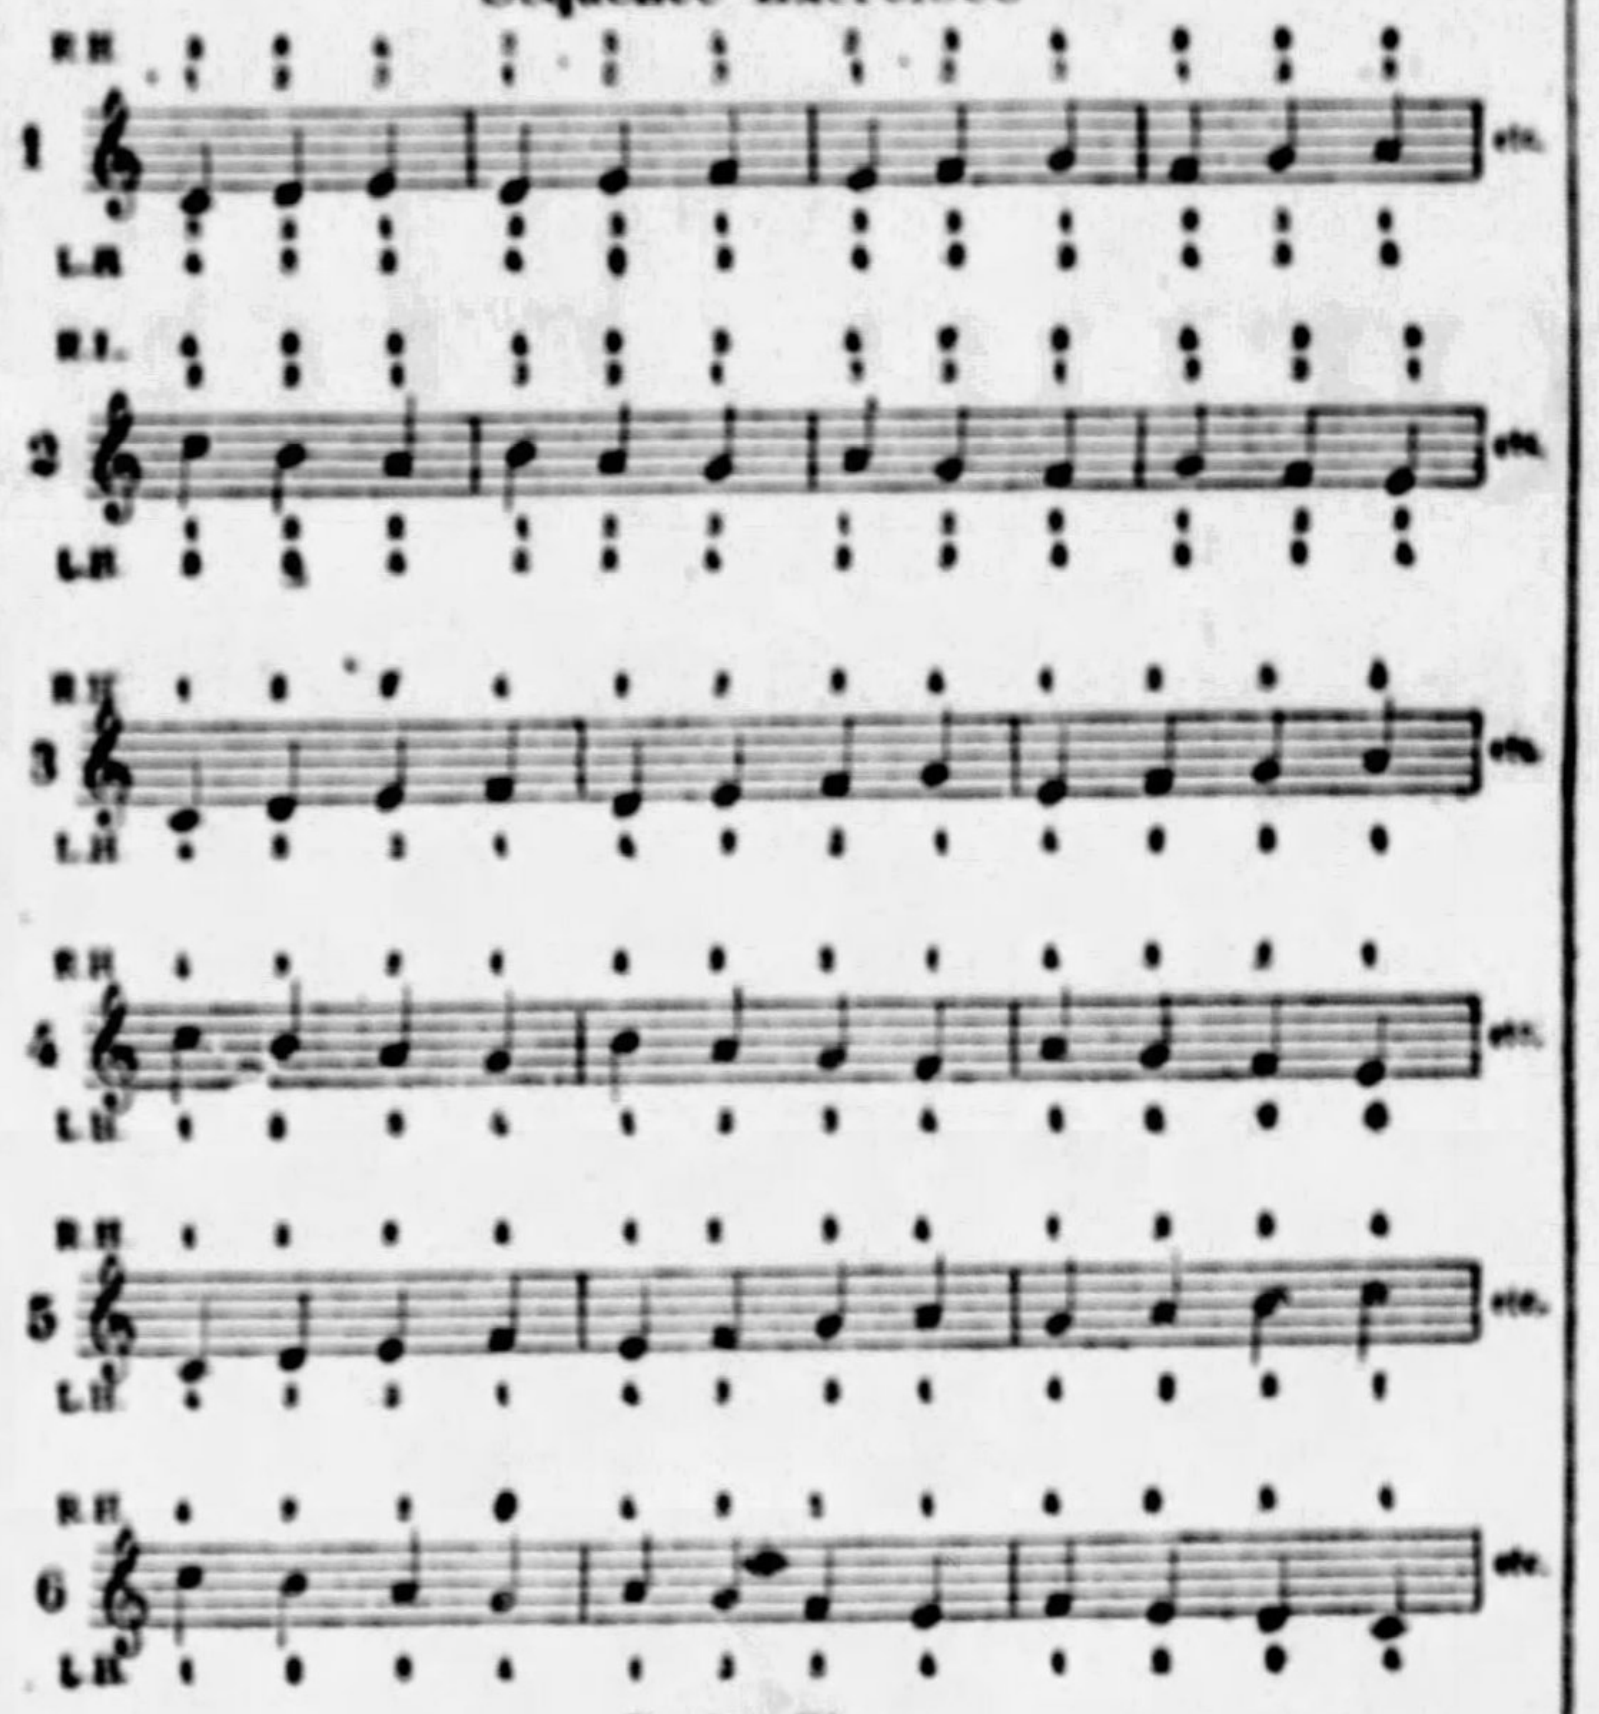
1. Do Re Mi
   Re Mi Fa
   Mi Fa So
2. Do Mi
   Re Fa
   Mi So
3. So Mi
   Fa Re
   Mi Do
4. Do Re Mi Fa
   Re Mi Fa So
5. So Fa Mi Re
   Fa Mi Re Do

Key-Board Sequences

Furthermore, you can begin to escape from your present limited five-finger position by playing the above sequences on the piano, first in the key of C, because all the keys are white. For example, try this. Begin on Do, or C, and go up the Key-Board, using only the first, second and third fingers. The thumb starts one key higher each time. Then try it with the second, third and fourth fingers.

Sequence Exercises



Review Pieces

If you have any time to spare, you should try to play both "Lady Bird" and "Mocking Bird" in several other keys, say in G and in F Major. Look out for that IV minor! Remember, the L. H. thumb slides down a half step for this minor chord.

This makes a list of 11 pieces that you have learned already! I wonder how many of these you can play in the following keys:

F Major
G Major
A Major
C Major
D Major
E Major

Written Transposition

It will be fine practice for you to write out one transposition for each piece. Follow the first four steps, as shown in the ninth lesson, so as to arrange your page in an orderly way.

The signature will depend upon the new key you choose.

The time of the notes will be the same as in the original key.

The position of the notes will depend upon the position of your new key-note, Do.

Decide then upon which key you will use. I sketch, upon scratch paper, the notes in that key for the following:

1.	Do	Re	Mi	Fa	So
2.	I		IV	V	I

Thereafter, as you write each Melody note, or each chord of the piece you are transposing, refer to the sketch.

As in copying, take the remaining steps (see ninth lesson):

5. Write the transposed Melody.
6. Write the words.
7. Write the transposed chords.

Do you think I am asking too much by suggesting that you copy pieces and write out transpositions? Then, remember that this, more than any other practice, will help you to read Music and to memorize it. The real joy of making Music comes when you can express yourself freely.

Listen to the great pianists at concerts, through the phonograph, the reproducing piano or on the radio. They all play from memory! Shall we discover, I wonder, a Paderewski, a Joseph Hofman or a Harold Bauer among the members of the Melody Way Club?

The Most Brilliant Social Asset Is the Ability to Play the Piano

Acquire the ability to play the piano and you will never lack friends. For the greatest of all gifts will be yours—the ability to entertain, to bring pleasure, to comfort, and to inspire with music. Such a man or woman is always popular, always sought after, whether his music be that of the great classics or the foot-itching rhythm of today's jazz.

Every child deserves the privilege of a piano education. When you give this knowledge to your children, you provide them with a permanent source of attraction and lay the foundation of undying happiness.

Today's pianos are made to fit every type of room and every size of purse—grand pianos, baby grands, uprights, and player pianos with their repertoire of the world's greatest music.

Stop in at the show rooms of these piano merchants, and learn how easy and inexpensive it is to give your family this wealth of happiness and culture—a piano.

IV. Allegro energico

The New York Philharmonic Orchestra with Willem Mengelberg conducting gave an exceedingly interesting program in Syria Mosque last night. It is almost superfluous to speak of the qualities of this fine organization, which played as superbly last evening as ever before. There were exceptional opportunities for the strings in the ancient concerto of Vivaldi; in the modern concerto of Rieti, solo wind instruments displayed their virtuosity; during the symphony the entire orchestra gave magnificent tone and always without bombast.

While the Vivaldi Concerto is unfamiliar to our audiences, the form of these early eighteenth century concertos is well known. Their purity in design, tone and emotional content is engaging to any listener; the beauty of the strings in unison is irresistible. The modern Italian Rieti writes differently. Had we not been warned of his roguish temperament we should have suspected him, just after a few bars, of writing this music with his tongue in his cheek. His grotesqueries never over-balance his outbursts of fresh melody, and underneath his fantastic arabesques one senses a strong hand that is creating clear-cut but constantly fading rhythms. His dissonances are highly amusing; more so his skill in finding the characteristic instrument to lead the orchestra out of the bewildering fog to gorgeous sun. His score is often like a bag of colored ribbons, tangled, twisted, each color caught into most bewitching knots.

Ernest Bloch is now frankly a writer of Jewish music, not using Hebrew themes to lend historic atmosphere, but in his own original and forceful manner attempting to portray the character of the ancient prophets. The symphony played last night was written before this gifted composer had found himself. It is confessedly biographical in program material, and carries from the composition class (Bloch wrote this work just after his graduation) the romantic introduction of Brahms, boyish freedom screamed from the brasses, in Strauss' manner, the melancholy of Tschaikowsky, and enough of Wagner to prove how much he admired the Meistersinger. With the exception of the slow movement every page of the score is brimful of new energy, invention and daring. The orchestration is unusually rich and never banal.

Throughout the evening Mengelberg seemed able to efface his own personality and give us more than before the true composer. This concert was one of his real achievements in Pittsburgh.

ITALY TURNS ATTENTION TO SPORTS IN SCHOOLS

ROME, Nov. 12.—Athletics and organized sport will have a more important part in the curriculum of Italian schools, according to the recommendations for educational reforms discussed at last night's meeting of the Fascisti Grand Council. The process of "humatizing" the schools in accordance with Fascist principles will be undertaken.

ORNITHOLOGY EXPERT SPEAKS HERE TOMORROW

Presenting the

Completely Furnished by This Store

TEN HOUSES are presented to public inspection in this Exposition of Modern Small House Designing. Each is equipped with an Athletic Basement, which will be furnished by the Joseph Horne Co. to meet the individual preferences of the owner.

As a crowning feature of the exhibit, one house has been furnished throughout, and the Joseph Horne Co. as Pittsburgh's foremost interior decorator, was intrusted with the task.

Our Interior Decorating Studio has fully lived up to its reputation, and the model presents an effective example of decorative taste, charm and art applied to the small house.

We shall not attempt here to go into the details of the unique effects which have been achieved in this house, but, instead, extend a cordial invitation to all the public to visit it and its demonstration of Horne decorative skill. It admirably serves to illustrate what one may accomplish in one's own home with the right materials and a little experienced guidance. Open daily 1 P. M. to 9 P. M.

Cecil B. De Mille Selects Lina Basquette for Lead in "The Godless Girl" Picture

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 12.

WELL, all the little girls who have been spending their pennies on street car fare and gasoline to travel to the De Mille studios for a test can put that extra cash in the bank, C. B. has made his selection for "The Godless Girl" and it is Lina Basquette. Remember, I said he had narrowed his choice for the leading lady down to Alberta Vaughn and La Belle Basquette?

Yesterday he ended the suspense by signing Lina, thereby causing considerable commotion at First National. You see, after her work in "The Noose," as Richard Barthelmess' leading lady, First National wanted to sign her on a contract. They, nor any one else, had any idea she would photograph like another Pola Negri. Lina had formerly concentrated on her dancing.

The De Mille contract was too tempting to ignore. Hadn't 75 girls had tests made for "The Godless Girl?" Miss Basquette, whose husband, Sam Warner, died a month ago, has had her meteoric success all within the last two weeks.

As for the leading male character, C. B. confided that the greatest need in Hollywood today is available leading men who have the necessary personality and talent.

"Glorifying the American Girl" in the movies has become an almost annual threat. For two years, Paramount has announced directors, players, and what-not, only to later take back their statement and admit plans between their organization and Florenz Ziegfeld were still in the negotiating stage. Now, at last, the glorifier of American pulchritude is satisfied with the story. He ought to be. Wilson Mizner and Barney Glazer have written it and its got everything, so they tell me, that such a story should contain—not forgetting beauty. Louise Brooks, a graduate from the Follies and one of the personally selected group who made name and fame for herself on the stage at the New Amsterdam Theater, New York, will play the lead, and Mal St. Clair will direct. Mal spent enough time in New York last year to know how to do justice to such a pageant of youth and beauty. They begin production the first of the year, or, perhaps, sooner.

A subway guard will figure prominently in Ben Hecht's newspaper story, "The Headliner." I know, because Jean Hersholt has accepted the role and he wouldn't have taken it unless it was a pretty good part. I believe he was loaned by Universal. Alice White, she who was chosen to create Dorothy in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," will play the feminine lead. Seems to me that we're hearing a lot about Miss White these days. There have been several talks of contracts with other companies, but First National has first rights. At any rate, Robert Kane has chosen her for "The Headliner," so she will probably stay put at First National for the next few weeks at least.

The speculative instincts of Richard Rowland were aroused to action when he heard that the last ballad of Ernest R. Ball, "The Rose of Killarney," had never been published. Dick heard the song and was so enthralled with its melody that he purchased the name, the music rights and the words. What has this to do with motion pictures? I suppose the title can be used and the music worked into a musical score. Although, as I understand it, Mr. Rowland's interest for the moment is more in marketing the song than in filming any idea he may get from it.

There came to this desk a letter from Tom Terriss, who has spent so much time abroad we almost forget he is an American director. He writes to let me know that he is to direct "Kitty Carstairs," a best seller in England, for F. B. O., with Beatrice Burton doing the adaptation. Mr. Terriss ought to know about the sale in England for he was born there. He has been in the movies almost as long as I have, which is long enough to know the "ins" and "outs" of the film business. Here's hoping he'll make a good picture.

We usually accept with a grain of salt any suggestion that we help find an unknown for a picture. Long years of experience shows just how seldom such a one is chosen for a real part on the screen. Yet we cannot doubt the word of F. W. Murnau, who asks us to let it be known that he wants two girls—a blonde and a brunette—for "The Four Devils," experience unnecessary. P. S.—Photographs and qualifications should go to the Fox Company and not to this office.

"Who is that?" asked a visitor on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot, pointing to Harry Rapf hurrying to the commissary for lunch. "Sh-sh," was the reply, "that's one of the high executioners in the front office."

Some Players -:- Who Desert Movies -:- For the Stage

WILLIAM COLLIER, JR., is among those filmites whom the spoken stage has lured away from the screen. William, Jr., and Papa Collier appear in a 10-minute vaudeville sketch.

MAE MURRAY also has "bolted" from the movies. She's making a personal appearance tour in a dance act. Mae plans to go back to the screen and produce her own pictures, she says.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, JR., has taken the Fairbanks' name back behind the footlights. He plays the title role in "Young Woodley" on the West Coast. Doug, Sr., began his career in the spoken drama.

LARRY SEMON, screen comedian, has been booked for a vaudeville tour on the Loew circuit. He receives $2,000 a week, it is said. He opened his tour in Detroit several weeks ago and comes here next week.

Organ Recitals Tonight and Sunday

Three movements from Septet, Op. 20, by Beethoven, are included on the program for the free organ recital to be given by Dr. Charles Heinroth Saturday at 8:15 o'clock tonight in Carnegie Music Hall. This Septet, written for seven instruments, had its first public performance in Vienna on April 2, 1800. Beethoven dedicated the composition to the Empress of Austria.

The program for tonight includes: Overture to "Tannhauser," Wagner; The Bells of St. Anne de Beaupre, Russell; Arabesque No. 1, Debussy; Three Movements from Septet, Op. 20, Beethoven; Andante from "Grande Piece Symphonique," Franck; Finale from First Symphony, Vierne.

The program for the free organ recital at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon includes: Overture to "The Merry Wives of Windsor," Nicolai; Andante from Violin Concerto, Mendelssohn; The Mill, Jensen; Suite in G Minor, Rogers; Solitude on the Mountain, Ole Bull; Offertoire de Ste. Cecile in F Minor, Batiste; Marcia a la Turca, Beethoven; Fugue in D Major, Guilmant.

Dr. Caspar Koch, city organist, will be heard in the usual free organ recital in Carnegie Hall, North Side, at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Joseph Williams, basso, will be the guest soloist, and Nellie Risher Roberts will play the piano accompaniments. Among the organ numbers Dr. Koch has listed his own transcription of Sibelius' "Bells of Berghaell Church," a melody adapted for the display of the chimes in the echo organ.

The program includes: Overture to "Il Barbiere di Siviglia," Rossini; Notturno, Mendelssohn; Will o' the Wisp, Nevin; bass solos: Invictus, Huhn; Friend o' Mine, Sanderson; Liebestod from "Tristan und Isolde," Wagner; Gavot, Handel; The Bells of Berghaell Church, Sibelius; bass solos: I am Fate, Hamblen; The Lute, Allitsen; Trumpet Fanfare, Lemmens.

Lorelei, on Screen, Utilizes Lip Movement

Pictorial enunciation, used naturally and to a marked degree by Ruth Taylor, will result in the elimination of more than a dozen subtitles from the Paramount screen version of Anita Loos' "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," it was announced today by Director Malcolm St. Clair.

Miss Taylor, who plays the role of Lorelei, queen of gold-diggers, speaks with such perfect lip movements that several written subtitles are redundant, St. Clair said.

"Final decision as to the eliminations depends on Miss Loos' approval, since she is to do the final editing and titling," St. Clair said. "I am sure, however, that she will agree with me that Miss Taylor's perfect speech makes several of them unnecessary.

"Miss Taylor possesses the ability to make herself understood by lip movements to a greater degree than any screen player I ever saw. The peculiar thing is that this unusual ability is not noticeable in real life, but on the screen it is one of the first qualities of her striking performance to arrest the attention."

Chaliapin Won't Warble for a "Song"

By LAURA PATRICK,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—Because he refused to sing the Mephisto role for less than $3,000, while the Berlin opera offered him only $250, Chaliapin, famous Russian singer, will not appear in Berlin opera this season.

The great singer, who is now in Berlin, said:

"I have 28 dependants and I cannot afford to sing at such a low price."

He declined to appear at another theater where the performance is broadcast.

"I am too superstitious to sing over the radio," he said.

Regarding the denunciation of him, he said:

"I have no interest in politics. I have no quarrel with the Soviets and am utterly indifferent as to whether the government is red or white, or whether they have a czar or president. I sing for the people, not for the government."

Gaynor, Farrell Co-Featured Again

Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell, who portrayed Diane and Chico in in "Seventh Heaven," have moved cinematically from Paris to Naples. Old Napoli, as the Italians know it, is the setting for their new production, "Lady Cristilinda," an adaptation of the play of Monckton Hoffe, an Englishman. While it is not the intention of Winfield Sheehan, Fox general manager, to keep Miss Gaynor and Farrell as a team, this play was too peculiarly suited to their talents to be passed on to someone else, it is pointed out.

Likewise, if only based on his achievement in "Seventh Heaven," it was a "natural" for the direction of Frank Borzage. So this trio is together again, working in replicas of old tortuous, weather-worried Italian streets in Hollywood. With them is Alberto Rabagliati, a young Italian, who won the Fox contest for the most representative youth of the land of Premier Mussolini. This is his first photoplay role. Incidentally Naples was his boyhood home.

POLYPHONIC CHOIR TO SING DECEMBER 6

The Pittsburgh Polyphonic Choir, comprised of 70 men and boys, will open its fifth musical season with a special Christmas concert in the Carnegie Music Hall, December 6. Madalein Cuneo, Pittsburgh singer, will be guest soprano soloist for the evening. Father Rossini is director of the choir.

HIKING CLUB TO START WALK AT CORAOPOLIS

A six-mile hike has been scheduled for Sunday for the Pittsburgh Hiking Club. The hike is to start from Coraopolis, and those participating will take P. & L. E. train at 1:55 to Coraopolis.

COMEDY, DRAMA ON BILLS

Beginning Monday evening, November 14, for one week only, Fred Stone, with his daughter, Dorothy, will appear in the Nixon in the musical comedy, "Criss Cross." The cast includes Roy Hoyer, Oscar Ragland, John Lambert, George Herman, Lucy Monroe, Viola Gillette, the sixteen Tiller Sunshine Girls, and a troupe of acrobatic Arabs.

"The Spider" is the first mystery drama in the history of the theater in which the entire audience is suspected of having committed a certain murder. This play, featuring William Courtenay, will open in the Pitt Monday.

Monday night will begin the final week of the American operetta of the days of the Civil War, "My Maryland," in the Alvin. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday will be played next week.

In the Davis next week Nan Halperin, will present a repertoire of comedy songs. Mrs. Wallace Reid is to appear in a playlet, "Evidence," and on the screen in "The Satin Woman."

Mary Pickford's new picture, "My Best Girl," the first she has made in two years, is based on life in a five-and-ten-cent store. The picture is scheduled to show in the Penn next week.

"The Rough Riders," showing in the Grand next week, has a cast including Mary Astor. Fay Gordon, appearing on the stage, will offer a program of popular songs.

David Butler and Ward Crane are in the cast of Marie Prevost's new picture "The Rush Hour." Harrison Ford appears opposite the star. This adaption of "The Azure Shore," by Frederick and Fanny Hatton, comes to the Aldine for one week, beginning Monday.

Anna Toebe, soubret, will be in "Moonlight Maids," next week's burlesque in the Academy.

The Vitaphone program booked for the Olympic next week will present George Givot, and Pearl Leonard and Nina Hinds in melodies. On the screen will be "Shanghai Bound," starring Richard Dix and Mary Brian

EXPLAIN MISSING VOTE SHEETS

Election officers of the Seventeenth precinct, Third Ward, summoned before Judge H. H. Rowand to explain the absence of sheets from their return to the returning board, speedily cleared the matter.

The missing sheets had been included with the duplicates given the minority inspector.

The board meeting at the usual time in the morning recessed for three hours at 10:30 o'clock. Officers had been dispatched for the Seventeenth precinct election officials and when the afternoon session began they were on hand and satisfactorily explained the whereabouts of the missing sheets.

S. T. ZENER, JR., GOES TO FARRAR ADVERTISING CO.

S. Thomas Zener, Jr., advertising manager of "Keystone Topics," official monthly of the Keystone Athletic Club and publicity director of that organization, has become associated with the sales promotion department of the Farrar Advertising Company, it has been announced from the latter organization, effective November 10.

Warner Stars Get "Jobs" in Other Studios

By Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 12.—The closed door of Warner Brothers is giving the other film companies a chance to do a little borrowing. The bargaining is already on, and it is fairly certain by the time Mr. and Mrs. Jack Warner sail for Europe, all the best players and directors in that organization will be working on some other lot. From the offers, too, it is easy to see who is the most popular.

The Warners are sailing on the Aquitania early in January for a holiday and a business trip abroad. They will meet Al Jolson and Mr. and Mrs. Darryl Zanuck (Warners' general manager), in London—the Zanucks are sailing December 10 on the Ile de Paris for the premier of "The Jazz Singer" in January 15.

But long before that will find Michael Curtiz, the Hungarian director, wielding the megaphone elsewhere, Monte Blue emoting on another lot, and both Dolores Costello and May McAvoy Guest Players at some adjacent studio.

First National would like to borrow May McAvoy to play opposite Richard Barthelmess in "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come." Clyde Cook has been farmed to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for a special role and there is a strong possibility that Michael Curtiz will go to Universal. Two companies have spoken for him.

Most of the players will be kept busy until after December 15, and there is a possibility that Monte Blue will not finish until January 1. He, too, is one of the favorites. Warners officially shut down December 1, and will reopen with eight companies February 1.

Pasadena "East" For Producers of Movies

One of the most beautiful residences in Pasadena, California's most exclusive winter resort, provided the setting for exterior scenes in "Sailors' Wives," a new First National picture.

Inasmuch as Pasadena is the home of many Easterners who make annual visits to the West, the city boasts numerous homes of the styles of architecture most common along the Atlantic seaboard, and for this reason it is highly popular among film producers.

"Sailors Wives" has its locale in a representative Eastern city, and tells a story of a well-established stratum of American society of wealthy and somewhat "wild" young married folk. Lloyd Hughes and Mary Astor shares honors in the featured roles, with a large supporting cast which includes Earle Foxe, Burr McIntosh, Olive Tell, Ruth Dwyer, Gayne Whitman, Jack Mower, Bess True and others.

POLISH ARMY VETERANS TO OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

Posts of the third district of Polish Army Veterans' Association will commemorate the tenth anniversary of the recruiting of the Polish Army in America at a mass meeting in Memorial Hall Sunday afternoon. Capt. Laudislaus Pawlak will be chairman of the meeting and the speaking program is expected to include Mayor Kline, Bert Succop, Federation of Foreign Wars Veteran's Society, and Arthur M. Ocetkiwicz, Polish consul to Pittsburgh.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Social Circles Perturbed as Sarah Mellon Delays Naming Bridal Party for Wednesday

MOST of us have been waiting with great interest to discover just whom Sarah Mellon would select for her bridal party. The date is growing quite close—next Wednesday, you'll recall—and Sarah delayed announcing her attendants much longer than most brides.

It was rumored—in fact, it was almost a foregone conclusion—that she would have her cousin, the former Ailsa Mellon, as her matron of honor. Sarah was, of course, in Ailsa's bridal party when she married David K. Este Bruce, a year ago last May, down in Washington. And it is quite true that Mrs. Bruce was to have been matron of honor, but an illness has caused her to withdraw from the party, which now includes a maid of honor and six bridesmaids.

Eleanor Chalfant, of Ridge avenue, will be the maid of honor, and just one other Pittsburgh girl, Anna Knevals Childs, is in the list of attendants. The other girls are Mrs. Charles Denby, Jr., of Philadelphia, who was, as you remember, Rosamond Reed, daughter of Senator and Mrs. David Aiken Reed, before her marriage last February; Mrs. C. A. Griscom III, also of Philadelphia; Margaret C. Perkins, of New York, who is equally well known here since she made her debut in Pittsburgh about two seasons ago; Mrs. Carnes Weeks, of New York, the former Margaret Shoemaker, daughter of the Charles Sumner Shoemakers, of Ternon avenue, and Mrs. Austin Dunham, of Hartford, Conn.

Alan Scaife has asked his brother, James Verner Scaife, Jr., to be his best man, and the list of ushers includes Benjamin Franklin Jones III, Walter Scully, Moorhead B. Holland, Thomas M. Jones III, A. Rex Flinn, Richard K. Mellon, John Ricketson III and Malcolm McGiffin, all of Pittsburgh; Thomas Symington, of Baltimore; Lawrence Jones, of Louisville, Ky.; Dr. Carnes Weeks, of New York, and Paul Mellon, of Washington, cousin of the bride.

Wearing similar frocks of American Beauty transparent velvet, draped to the side with huge bows of the velvet, and carrying Colonial bouquets, two young cousins, Anne Louise Marshall, daughter of the Lee Holmes Marshalls, of Dunmoyle street, and Nancy Hamilton, daughter of the Charles Lee Hamiltons, of Beaver avenue, Sewickley, are making their debut this afternoon. This is one of two of these double coming-out parties for cousins to be held this season, the other being scheduled for December 26, when Mary Childs and Jane Foster will make their bow to society.

The tea this afternoon is being given in the Twentieth Century Club by Mrs. George Vardy Marshall, of the Kenmawr Hotel, grandmother of the debutantes, and her daughter, Mrs. William Louden Rowe, of Kentucky avenue. Mrs. Marshall's gown is of black velvet, while Mrs. Rowe is wearing black velvet and point Venise lace.

The debutantes' mothers are receiving with them, Mrs. Lee Holmes Marshall appearing in gray metal cloth and velvet, and Mrs. Hamilton in bridal rose georgette and velvet. Mrs. Frederick F. Morris, another aunt of the debutantes, is appearing in blue velvet, while Anne's grandmother on her mother's side, Mrs. George T. Lewis, is wearing gray chiffon.

The rooms have been most attractively decorated with chrysanthemums and other fall flowers, together with the many gift bouquets and baskets sent to the debutantes. Mrs. George Vardy Marshall's aides include Mrs. George T. Lewis, Mrs. Hugh William Alexander, Mrs. Elizabeth Van Kirk, Mrs. Wallace H. Rowe, Mrs. George Follansbee and Mrs. Howard DeVan, while the debutantes are assisted by Mary McClung, Juliet Hillman, Mary Childs, Jane Foster, Florence Wainwright, Frances Fitzgerald, Anne Scott, Elizabeth George and Margaret Brainard, all debutantes of the winter; Patty Armstrong, who came on from the Spence School to be Anne's guest over the debut; Catherine Gordon, Sally Todd, Betty McCullough, Caroline Gilchrist, Eleanor Rowe and Martha Green.

Others who are acting as aides are Mrs. John H. Hillman, Mrs. James King Scott, Mrs. Walter Carroll, Mrs. William B. Salisbury, Mrs. W. A. Steinmeyer, Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Miss Marjorie Maxwell, Mrs. James Lyle Stewart, Mrs. John Joy Edson, Mrs. Henry Gilchrist, Mrs. Southard Hay, Mrs. Frank Darlington, Mrs. James C. Burt, Mrs. J. M. Cate, Mrs. Ralph Longenecker, Mrs. Bayard Foster and Mrs. C. M. Harnies.

C. of C. Tourists Visit St. Louis Harbor

By MAX HENRICI, Staff Correspondent.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 12.—On a tour of the St. Louis harbor yesterday the 80 Pittsburgh industrial leaders who are visiting Mississippi River and gulf ports in preparation for the establishment of year-around navigation on the Ohio River, obtained an idea of the traffic developments in prospect.

They saw barges bound down the Mississippi with cargoes of grain from St. Paul and mixed merchandise from St. Louis, and others moving north with sugar, coffee, burlap and Chilean ore. They stopped at one dock where a barge was being loaded and noted in its cargo cases of mustard and sandwich relish from Pittsburgh, automobiles, matches, canned fruit, drugs, shovels, radio batteries, buckets, chains and bed springs. This barge was carrying the equivalent of 65 carloads of freight, which was being shipped at 80 per cent of the all-rail rate from St. Louis to New Orleans. Much of it was destined to Caribbean ports.

SEE NEW TYPE DOCK

The barge was being loaded at a dock at which mechanical facilities had been established for the rapid transfer of freight from railroad cars to river vessels and vice versa. Edward G. Lang, director of Public Works, stated that the dock was of the type which it is proposed to establish on Pittsburgh's wharves. But Pittsburgh expects to profit by St. Louis' mistakes and to utilize, in addition to hoists and cranes, escalators of various types which St. Louis, a pioneer in the development of the river terminals, has failed to use to advantage.

BOARD STEAMER

The Pittsburgh tourists boarded the steamer Erastus Wells as guests of the Chamber of Commerce, and were on the boat the greater part of the day.

At a buffet luncheon, served on the vessel, Henry W. Kiel, three times mayor of St. Louis and president of the construction company which built Loew's Penn Theater in Pittsburgh, expressed his pleasure at being able, as he put it, to associate for a day with a group of men representing a billion dollars of capital. The morning newspaper here, in a first page story, so characterized the Pittsburgh visitors.

Notwithstanding that it was Armistice Day, a holiday, the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce exerted itself to entertain the tourists. On the return from the boat ride they were taken in automobiles to points of interest.

The Pittsburghers were entertained at dinner last night at the Hotel Statler. The speakers were Walter Neun, acting mayor; Richard S. Hawes and Robert E. Lee of St. Louis, and A. W. Robertson, A. L. Humphrey and James Francis Burke of Pittsburgh.

F. E. Richardson, president of the Pittsburgh Forge and Iron Company, became ill and was said today to be suffering from a light attack of influenza. On a physician's advice he abandoned the tour and returned to Pittsburgh.

DEATH ROLL

Dr. D. F. McIntosh.

Dr. Daniel F. McIntosh, 78, a member of the board of directors of the Farmers and Mechanics Bank of Sharpsburg and well known as a physician throughout the county, died last night in his home, 1318 North Sheridan avenue, East End, following an illness of several years.

Dr. McIntosh, a Civil War veteran, was born in Wellsville, O. In 1865, at the age of 16, he enlisted with the One Hundred and Ninety-fifth Ohio Volunteers.

After having received his discharge from the army Dr. McIntosh attended Mt. Union College and the University of New York, and later received his M. D. degree at the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Baltimore. He then practiced medicine in Sharpsburg until seven years ago, when his failing health forced him to retire.

Dr. McIntosh was a member of the Sharpsburg Presbyterian Church, Zeradatha Lodge, Free and Accepted Masons; Pittsburgh Commandry No. 1, Knights Templar; Syria Shrine and Custer Post, G. A. R.

He leaves his widow, Virginia C. McIntosh, and three daughters, Mrs. Charles Ross Springer of McDonald, Pa.; Mrs. Bennett W. Johnson and Mrs. Walter M. Beecher, both of Pittsburgh.

MRS. ELIZABETH POWELL

Mrs. Elizabeth Powell, 54, of 515 Dickson street, Homestead, died yesterday in the Homestead Hospital. She was the widow of Howell Powell, who died about 11 months ago. Mrs. Powell was born in Wales and came to Homestead more than 40 years ago. She was a member of St. Mathew's Episcopal Church, Homestead. She leaves three sons, Earl, Harold and Sinclair Powell, and a daughter, Miss Esther Powell.

TRAVELING MEN ASKED TO GIDEONS' SERVICE

All commercial travelers in Pittsburgh over the week-end were invited today to take part in a special Gideon service to be held Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the First Methodist Episcopal Church. Former Chaplain James R. Cutler will be in charge of the service, which will be held under the auspices of the Christian Commercial Travelers' Association.

ON DANCE COMMITTEE

Miss Mary Grace McCloskey is on the committee for the dance to be given next Thursday night in Webster Hall by St. Rosalia's Alumni Association.

MISS MARY GRACE M'CLOSKEY

Several local people have been making a between-season visit at Virginia Hot Springs this week, among them being the Warren I. Bickfords, the Andrew Telfers and Elizabeth Telfer. These last autumn weeks at the Springs are being given official distinction in the presence of Myron T. Herrick, Ambassador to France, who is convalescing there.

Speaking of the Bickfords, they are planning to give a dance December 30 in the Twentieth Century Club for their daughter, Louise, who will be home then from Miss Porter's School at Farmington for the holidays. Young people of the school set will be guests at the dance.

A very popular debutante is Mary Louise Johnson, daughter of Mrs. William Terrell Johnson, of Forbes street. Several more parties are being planned for her, among them being a luncheon to be given November 26 by Mrs. M. L. Benedum, of "Greystone," Fifth avenue. Mrs. Walter F. Schleiter is arranging to give a buffet luncheon next Tuesday for Mary Louise, and on Tuesday, November 22, Mrs. Donald McKaig will give a luncheon for the debutante.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Caroline Smith, daughter of Mrs. Anna B. Smith, of Oakland, and John Young McNeill, son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. McNeill, of Summerlea street, which was solemnized today at noon in Calvary Episcopal Church by the Rev. C. Ronald Garmey. The bride wore gold lace over peach satin, with a gold hat, and carried white roses. A breakfast for the families in the Rittenhouse followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. McNeill will take an eastern motor trip and after December 1 will be at home in Ward street.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Black, of Kingston, O., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Polly Black, and Edwin Black, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Black, of Sheridan avenue, which was solemnized Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. Black will make their home in Flint, Mich.

Miss Emma Hosenfelt, of Oakwood street, entertained the Mizpah class of the Homewood Methodist Episcopal Sunday school in her home Thursday night. A surprise shower was given in honor of Miss Ethel May Parker, whose marriage to Richard James Steele will be solemnized in the early winter.

* * *

Miss Anne Kinzer, of Holden street, entertained at bridge this afternoon in her home in honor of Miss Dorothy Esther Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Wilson, of South Atlantic avenue, whose engagement to Frederick Williams Stahl, of Severna Park, Md., was recently announced.

* * *

Mrs. Albert G. Aupke, of Waldheim road, Aspinwall, gave a bridge luncheon in her home last Saturday in honor of her sister, Mrs. Eugene F. Mueller, of Pitcairn. Before her marriage, October 17, Mrs. Mueller was Miss Ethel Mertz, of Wilmerding.

Miss Jeannette Herman, Miss Bessie Herman, Miss Sarah Goldfeder and Miss Jeannette Sigal will give a bridge party next Thursday night in Miss Goldfeder's home in Iowa street, Schenley Heights, for the benefit of the Junior Hadassah.

A miscellaneous shower was given Tuesday night by the Little Flower Club in honor of Miss Anne Cleary, whose marriage to James Winterling will be solemnized November 21. Miss Cleary is vice president of the club.

* * *

Miss Margaret L. Pershing, of North Negley avenue, entertained informally at bridge Thursday night in honor of her house guest, Miss Elizabeth Stewart, of Norwalk, O.

MRS. WHOLEY TELLS OF VISIT TO BALKANS

It was a most unusual tale Mrs. C. C. Wholey had to tell the College Club members yesterday afternoon, a tale that sounded at times almost unreal. Mrs. Wholey, who is a member of the club, spent two months of last summer in the Balkans as the guest of the Rumanian government under auspices of the Carnegie Foundation for International Peace. She met Queen Marie and everybody who was anybody in Rumania and some outsiders as well, including the president of Austria. Mrs. Wholey's account of being held up and robbed by bandits while she was crossing Hungary and Rumania was thrilling. She was a passenger on the crack train, the Orient express, and she had left the other members of her party when the holdup occurred. Mrs. Wholey also touched upon social and political conditions in the countries visited.

The tea hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Charles Reitell, Mrs. J. Hartley Anderson, Mrs. William Patterson, Mrs. Frank Bailey and Mrs. Roy S. Dougall.

In the forthcoming meeting of the County Federation of Women's Clubs in Duquesne, November 21, the principal aim will be to help affiliated clubs to assimilate certain outstanding plans of the state federation. The main part of the morning session, which will open at 10 o'clock, will be given to that effort. The county president, Mrs. Richard B. Perry, will give the morning address, which will be followed by an open forum.

Music for the day will be under the direction of Mrs. W. J. Osborne, county music chairman. The principal afternoon address will be given by Dr. J. B. Richey, superintendent of schools at McKeesport, whose subject will be "Vocational Education." Two shorter addresses will be given also, one by Mrs. Ambrose N. Diehl, the new vice president of the state federation, whose subject will be "What Our Clubs Mean to American Women," and another by Mrs. Laura ing—Longfellow's "Hiawatha"—and the Girl Scouts of Allegheny county. At the close of the program the Duquesne Women's Civic Club, the hostess club, will give a reception and tea to the visiting club women.

The Carnegie Woman's Club continued its study of early United States history when the members met yesterday in the Methodist Church as guests of Mrs. Harry Garvey. Under Mrs. Robert Hardy's leadership, the American Indian, the Revolutionary War and the founding of the nation were discussed in papers by Mrs. George Stewart, Mrs. Jean McBride and Mrs. J. W. Donaldson. Mrs. H. R. Geib contributed a reading—Longfellows "Hiawatha"—and there was music by Miss Lois Wylie, contralto, accompanied by Miss Gertrude Moore. The Carnegie Club will be the hostess organization for the winter meeting of the Chartiers Woman's Clubs Association, December 1, in the United Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Augusta Steele, a graduate of the drama department of Carnegie Institute of Technology, will have the leading role in "L. G.'s Wife," the Drama League prize play by Margaret Turnbull, which will be given in the East Liberty Carnegie Library on Wednesday evening. "L. G." will be played by David Gorman. Miss Lydia Patterson, one of the amateurs selected by the Pitt Stock Company last summer for a part in "Laff That Off," will represent the aunt of L. G.'s wife, and Miss Dorothy Husted will be the attractive stenographer. Others in the cast will be J. C. Spahr Hull, W. C. Roe, Jr., J. Floyd Steele and Mrs. Adeline Braun. Mrs. Lane Thompson is directing and Lane Thompson is stage manager.

The play is being given as a benefit for the Drama League of America, with which the Pittsburgh Center has been affiliated since 1913, and of which Elmer Kenyon, president of the Pittsburgh Center, is one of the national executive board. The play was awarded the state prize for Pennsylvania in a contest in which plays were submitted from all but two states in the country, and it is one of the hundred or more plays that will compete for the national prize offered by Longmans Green in co-operation with the National Drama League.

The Congress of Clubs' department of music will give a dinner in the clubhouse on Monday, November 21, with Mrs. Elsie Breese Mitchell in charge and Mrs. W. B. Carson, co-chairman, assisting. A musicale, featuring Frederick Dickson, celebrated New York pianist, will follow dinner. Mr. Dickson will be assisted by cluding Mary Astor, Fay Gordon, ap? Viola Karlson Bygerson, contralto, and Marion Clark Bollinger, accompanist.

The lecture bureau of the Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women announces an address by Dr. A. P. D'Zmura, of the Allegheny County Medical Society, at the Council House, Wednesday afternoon, on "The Chief Health Menaces of Middle Age."

The directors of the council have voted to raise a fund for Christmas gifts for ex-service men in hospitals and will co-operate with the Veterans' Hospital committee.

Miss Katherine Griffin will be hostess at a card party at the council house, Tuesday afternoon, November 29, and Mrs. Rose Braun and Mrs. R. A. Kennedy will entertain with a card party there the same evening. Both will be for the benefit of the burn-the-mortgage fund.

Mrs. Teresa M. Molamphy, president of the council, has been appointed by the president of the National Council of Catholic Women, Miss Mary G. Hawks, as a member of the industrial committee of the Catholic conference on industrial problems, which will hold a regional meeting in Buffalo November 15 and 16. Mrs. Molamphy will represent the Pittsburgh council at conference.

The cast has been named for "Pomander Walk," the Louis N. Parker play which the Dramatic Club of the Pennsylvania College for Women will give Friday and Saturday nights. Nancy McElwain will play the romantic "Jack Sayle;" Sara Johnson will be the equally romantic heroine, "Marjolaine;" Ruth Lupold will be the austere, dignified father of Jack; Clara Osgood will be the bluff Sir Peter; Josephine Duvall, the match-making rector, and Elizabeth Stadtlander, the butler, while Mary King and Winifred Hartman, as the impertinent maids, and Imogene Flannigan, as the silent "Eyesore," who does nothing but fish during the entire play, will complete the cast.

The Lincoln Park and Junior Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circles will join with the Pittsburgh Alumni in a tour of the international art exhibit Tuesday morning at 10:45. James C. Boudreau will conduct the tour.

There will be a cafeteria luncheon at 12:30 for which George Winsor and Miss Charlotte Depuy are to have reservations not later than tomorrow.

At 2 in the afternoon the study of "Jefferson and Hamilton," by Claud Bowers, will be resumed and Miss Irene Stewart will present the important current events recorded in the month's magazines with the Junior Circle in charge.

The Woman's Club of Regent Square will hold its next meeting Tuesday at the home of Mrs. O. S. Skipp, LaClair avenue. Miss Mary Shogren and Mrs. W. M. Alrich will assist as hostesses. Mrs. F. W. Wappat, who recently returned from a European trip, will give "Reminiscences of My Trip Abroad."

Under the joint auspices of the Women's International League for Peace, the International Institute and the Hebrew "Y," a program of folk music will be given by natives of foreign countries in the "Y" building tomorrow afternoon in celebration of Armistice Day. Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead will speak.

* * *

Dr. Irene Davis Ferguson, president of the Pittsburgh branch of the American Association of University Women, will be one of the guests of honor at the luncheon to be given by the Pittsburgh Panhellenic Association at the Hotel Roosevelt next Saturday.

* * *

The Pittsburgh section of the Hood Club of Western Pennsylvania is holding a luncheon today in the Congress of Clubs. Plans are being made for the Christmas luncheon at which Dr. Joseph H. Apple, president of the college, will be a guest.

* * *

The Eighteenth Ward Women's Civic Club will have its second annual benefit dance in Allentown Turner Hall Wednesday night under the chairmanship of Mrs. Minnie Mullen. The proceeds will be used for the club's philanthropies.

The annual benefit card party for the Curtis Home will be held Tuesday afternoon, November 22, in the Oppenheim-Collins auditorium. The proceeds of the affair will be used to purchase blankets and silver for the home.

* * *

The Women's Fortnightly Review, of Elizabeth, will meet in regular session Thursday afternoon with Miss Janetta McKinney as hostess. "China Today" and "The Nicaraguan Situation" are the study subjects.

The Women's Society of the Brushton Methodist Church will hold a rummage sale Tuesday at 616 Brushton avenue. Mrs. E. H. Stewart is chairman in charge.

North Side Chapter No. 352, Order of the Eastern Star, will hold a bake sale next Saturday in the North Side Market. Mrs. Louisa A. Schaffer is chairman.

Miss Minerva Hamilton will speak on "Five Miles of Book Shelf" at a meeting of the Colfax Parent-Teacher Association Tuesday afternoon.

* * *

The Tourists will meet in the Congress of Clubs Monday for an all-day cutting for the blind.

Chaplin Defrays Funeral Cost for Clown

By Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 12.—A story that Charlie Chaplin probably intended should never be printed has come over the wire from New York and shows a side to the character of the man that few people understand. Charlie read of Marceline's sad death and his poverty, and he was especially touched because he and the famous clown had played together years ago. He telephoned his attorney, Nathan Burkan, in New York, to defray all funeral expenses and to see that Marceline had a decent burial. It was Arthur Brisbane's touching reference to the poor clown lying on a marble slab in the morgue that gave Charlie the idea.

CENTENARY OF THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

The part that the Western Theological Seminary has played in the growth and extension of the Presbyterian church will be related in the pulpits of Presbyterian churches in the Pittsburgh district at services tomorrow. Three pulpits will be occupied by representatives of the seminary.

An announcement will be made at all Presbyterian services of the one hundredth anniversary of the seminary, which will be held next Tuesday, with public services, both morning and afternoon, in the First Presbyterian Church, Sixth avenue, and the centennial banquet that night in the ballroom of the William Penn Hotel.

DR. SHELTON'S SERMON.

The Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton will preach at the Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth street, tomorrow morning on "Believe in God." At the evening service the Rev. Charles S. Poling will preach on "Divine or Human Standards?"

The Rev. Dr. W. R. Farmer, professor of rhetoric and elocution of the Western Theological Seminary, will occupy the pulpit of the Third Presbyterian Church tomorrow morning. His theme will be on the centennial of the seminary. The Rev. Dr. W. L. McEwan will speak at the evening service, his subject being "The Ownership of Property."

"Demas—The Quitter," will be the subject of Dr. Percival H. Barker's sermon tomorrow night in the Point Breeze Presbyterian Church. At the morning service he will speak on "The Pure in Heart."

The Rev. B. M. Paul, pastor of the Lawrenceville Presbyterian Church, will speak tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, his subject being "To This End Was I Born." Union services will be held in the Forty-third Street Presbyterian Church in the evening at 8 o'clock.

The sixth of a series of sermons on "Present Perils in Religion" will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. Albert B. Day, in the Christ Methodist Episcopal Church tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. His theme will be "The Peril of Heresy." At the evening services he will preach on "The Adventure of Friendship."

JOURNALIST TO SPEAK.

Wickham Steed, newspaper man, will speak tomorrow night at the East End Christian Church, his theme being, "The Post-War World." For many years he was editor of the London Times. The Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers will preach on "Books and the Book" at the morning services.

"The Will to Peace—What Weakens It?" will be the subject of the Rev. Dr. S. H. Goldenson at services in Rodef Shalom Temple tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

The 40 hours' devotion in the Sacred Heart Catholic Church will close tomorrow night with a procession of the blessed sacrament in which pupils of the grade and high schools will participate. The Rev. Dr. Fulton J. Sheen, professor of the philosophy of religion at the Catholic University, Washington, will deliver the sermon. The boys' and male choir will render a program.

Miss Mary Jeffers, teacher in Bryn Mawr College, will lecture on "St. Francis of Assisi" tomorrow night in Bellevue United Presbyterian Church. The lecture will be illustrated with lantern slides.

"Armistice Sunday" will be observed tomorrow at the local institutions of the Volunteers of America. Majs. Frank H. and Josephine D. Wise, commanders of the Volunteers of America in Western Pennsylvania, will be the principal speakers at the services in the downtown mission, in the evening. E. Chester Hastings, of the Whiteside Bible Training School, will be the principal speaker at the night services in the Volunteers' East End Mission. His subject will be "The Day of the Lord Is at Hand."

The morning sermon at the Shadyside United Presbyterian Church will be on the subject "Why Is World Peace a Dead Issue?" an address which will be given by the pastor, the Rev. George Clark Vincent, in the spirit of the Armistice season. In accordance with a recent policy of elaborating the ritual of the morning service, an Antiphon based on music by Brahms, and entitled "O Lord of Love," will be used as part of the service.

"America's Peril and Hope" was the subject of Dr. J. Kirkwood Craig, general secretary of the Allegheny County Sabbath School Association, at the district conference held in the Valencia United Presbyterian Church last night. Reports of the recent state convention were given at the conference, which was opened in the afternoon by the Rev. D. T. McClamont. Representatives from a goodly number of the schools in the district were present at the conference.

The Rev. G. W. Palmgren, of Jamestown, N. Y., and the Rev. C. J. Anderson, of Johnsonburg, Pa., will be the speakers at the special meetings to be held in the Swedish Congregational Church, Forty-fifth street above Butler street, November 18 to 20.

20TH DISTRICT IN 8TH CLEARED

No complaint has been made of irregularities in the primary election count in the Twentieth District of the Eighth Ward, in spite of an erroneous report that the ballot box from that precinct had been brought in for investigation, it developed today. The ballot box of the Twenty-first District of the Eighth Ward has been recounted by the Bonsall committee which is checking the primary vote.

REV. J. E. DETWILER

REV. R. E. HARRIS

Two recent changes have occurred in the North borough church pastorates. Rev. Detwiler has assumed the pastorate of the Avalon Presbyterian Church. Rev. Harris, of East Haven, Conn., is to come to Bellevue Methodist Protestant Church in January.

CHURCHES PLAN TO MERGE

Members of the congregations of the Pittsburgh Reformed Presbyterian Church, Eighth street, and the Central Allegheny Reformed Presbyterian Church, Sandusky street, have voted for the consolidation of the two churches and are preparing a petition asking the Pittsburgh Presbytery to permit the merger.

Both churches plan to sell their present buildings to build a new church on a new site which would be known as the Central Pittsburgh Congregation of the Reformed Presbyterian Church, probably in the North Side. Both pastors, the Rev. Delber H. Elliott, of the downtown church, and the Rev. R. C. Reed, of the North Side church, would be retained as co-pastors.

WAR DEPLORED BY MACARTNEY

"If men would only remember how glad they were when the war came to an end, they would not be in a hurry to start another," the Rev. Dr. Clarence E. Macartney said yesterday in his Armistice Day sermon in the First Presbyterian Church, Sixth avenue. Dr. Macartney termed the winning of the last war a mighty vindication of the moral order of the universe. He paid tribute to the memory of the soldier dead.

"Let no temporary irritation at the attitude of European nations in paying the debts they were once so eager to incur, or the cavilings of scorners and cynics, keep us from the confidence that a great work was done for God and for man," he said.

DIDN'T BELIEVE IN SIGNS, HE DIES AT R. R. CROSSING

Pete Osko, 30, of 845 Washington avenue, Braddock, was killed late last night when he ignored a warning at the Eighth street, Braddock, crossing of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad. He walked into the path of a fast passenger train.

ANNIVERSARY OF TWO CHURCHES

Two Methodist Episcopal churches in Allegheny county will celebrate anniversary services tomorrow—one the ninety-fifth anniversary and the other its ninetieth.

The ninety-fifth anniversary of Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, the oldest Methodist Episcopal church in East Liberty, will be celebrated with special services beginning tomorrow and continuing throughout next week. The site of the church is at North Highland avenue and Rippey street, and is the fourth building constructed, all of which were in the radius of four blocks of its present site. The Rev. Dr. W. Wofford T. Duncan, pastor, will give a special historical sermon at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. The Rev. Dr. Albert E. Piper of Akron, O., a former pastor, will give reminiscences at the night service.

An anniversary prayer meeting will be held next Wednesday night and a historical exhibit will be conducted by Edward C. Griggs, church custodian, at the close of the meeting.

The other Methodist Episcopal church, which will celebrate its ninetieth anniversary, is the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Sewickley. Services for the occasion are in charge of the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Dwight L. Myers.

The celebration in connection with the anniversary will extend to Monday, when a reception for the present pastor and all former pastors who are able to attend will be given.

In 1837 the society in Sewickley was organized. The first building, a frame structure, gave place to a brick edifice dedicated on January 14, 1855. The present structure was erected in 1891-2. Nine of the former pastors of the church still are living.

Dr. Jacob S. Payton, superintendent of the Pittsburgh district, and Dr. Judson Jeffreys, recently appointed superintendent of the Allegheny district, will be present at the reception and J. C. Vanning, for many years identified with the Sewickley congregation, will be toastmaster.

'Y' PRAYER WEEK BEGINS NOV. 15

The "world-around" week of prayer will be observed at Downtown Y. M. C. A., beginning next Tuesday, with a program that covers every department of the Wood street institution.

Dr. N. Ashby Jones, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, St. Louis, nationally noted pulpit orator, will address men Tuesday noon and three junior groups in the evening. Wednesday he will speak to men at noon and to committee groups in the evening. The Meridian and Business Men's clubs will hear Dr. Jones Thursday noon, and 300 dormitory residents will greet him at the weekly dinner Thursday night. Other speakers during the week include James C. Mace, Junior Boosters, Wednesday, and on the Sunday School lesson Friday; Donald Spencer, messenger boys, Wednesday; Charles Langbein, Juniors, Friday, and J. R. Broderick speaking to newsboys Saturday evening.

The prayer week committee includes A. C. Evans, chairman; Mr. Mace, Mr. Langbein, L. A. MacDonald, John R. Shaffer, H. J. Boyd, Royal A. Miller, H. J. Irwin, Charles Ryman, William Stevens.

CHURCH TO GIVE JOBLESS FOOD

The practice of giving the jobless and hungry a free breakfast, which was begun last year by the Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Liberty avenue and Seventeenth street, will be resumed Tuesday morning at the church chapel.

Last year more than 20,000 were fed. The Rev. Mr. Cox will preach four sermons tomorrow, at 9 and 11 o'clock in the morning, 3 o'clock in the afternoon and at 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

EPIPHANY CHURCH TO HONOR SOLDIERS

Observance of Armistice Day will be solemnized tomorrow in the Epiphany Catholic Church, Washington place, with special services at 11 a. m. A monument inscribed with the names of nine men from the Epiphany parish who died in the World War will occupy a place of honor within the chancel rail. Special reservations have been made for the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Aero Club, Edith Cavell Post, American Legion; Spanish War Veterans, One Hundred and Sixty-seventh and One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery regiments; the One Hundred and Eleventh Infantry, and the May Joyce Post, with Base Hospital No. 27.

HAVEY BOYLE

HAVEY BOYLE.

THERE is more than usual interest in the Yale-Princeton game today because Yale suffered a terrible blow when the Blue's best man, Caldwell, was found ineligible. Yale's loss of Caldwell in its most important conflict assumes real significance, if you realize that Caldwell is considered just about the best back of the season and perhaps the best at Yale since a player named Brink Thorne made Yale history. Caldwell was to Yale what Welch is to Pitt; Roepke to State; Connor to New York University; Flannagan to Notre Dame. Princetonians will pardon the rank and file of fans if these fans pull a little for Yale today. For Princeton, let it be always remembered, the Tigers acted magnificently in the Caldwell case, asking Yale to allow Caldwell to play. This was the nicest football gesture in years.

NOTRE DAME meeting Army today is a game that attracts interest from coast to coast. Notre Dame in a football way attracts people who don't know much about football, save that Notre Dame seems to be winning most of the time. The same dear ladies who, although steering clear of a boxing show as they would shy from a plague, like Tunney, the prize fighter, get worked up about Notre Dame. Notre Dame's team is a kind of representative at large. People who never have seen a campus and who never have seen a football game get stirred up about Notre Dame. There is a dash to the Irish that cannot be denied. This appeal of Notre Dame, plus the appeal of the Army cadets, representing the finest in the youth of America, make the game today one of the real football classics. The football players you see pictured on the magazine covers are no more "big league" than the flesh and blood that will represent Notre Dame and Army today. Two really great outfits meeting, an excited nation awaits the result.

ADA, OKLAHOMA, is the home of the Waner boys of Pirate fame. The Chamber of Commerce of that town, alive to the advertising possibilities of the widely-heralded Waners, sends out postal cards marked, "Ada, Oklahoma, home of Paul and Lloyd Waner." There are, according to the postal, 12,600 live wire citizens of Ada, besides the best water in the Southwest. Whether the best water is considered an asset in this day when a lot of the boys seem to be seeking something stronger, is a question, but that's Ada's story and she's going to stick to it.

A friend tells an interesting story concerning the Waners. The friend was introduced to Waner, pere. "How are my two boys doing?" asked Mr. Waner about his sons. "Both are hitting fine," was the answer, "and fielding like jewels." "I know that," said Waner, pere, "but what I mean is about their conduct toward their elders. They aren't getting spoiled by this fussing about them are they? I would rather hear that they are polite and respectful than to hear about their batting averages."

Mr. Waner, so far, has nothing to worry about on this score. The wide acclaim, the great success have not turned the young heads of these two captivating boys of the Corsairs. Better than their years warrant they seem to realize that today one is a hero, tomorrow a bum in the baseball realm.

Nebraska brings many big men here to meet Pitt. The biggest men in football are not always the best. The Four Horsemen of Notre Dame were noted for their speed rather than for height and weight, and the football histories of various schools are filled with names of little men who made their marks. Auburn had a star, Tick Tichenor, who weighed only 116 and Chigger Brown of Sewanee tipped the beam at 115 pounds. Among other small men were George Chadwick, 150; Frank Hinkey, 145, Trenchard, Arthur Poe and Nat Poe, who made the all-America teams of their time, were small men.

However, the Panthers will respect Nebraska, remembering the last time out against the Cornhuskers when they came here to beat a Pitt team that boasted the great Davies. And besides, Nebraska has a tradition of being able to beat Notre Dame more frequently than any other college team.

PITTSBURGH rooters will be excused if they arch their eyebrows over the statement coming this way from Washington, Pa., that the Presidents feared Dick Booth more than Gibby Welch. It may be true, but it does not sound logical. Dick Booth is all wool and a yard wide, but Dick could get away for 15 yards and still be nailed. Let Welch get away for 15 yards and the Presidents would have had a you-know of a time catching up with him.

Poor Rockne is in bad shape for the game today with Army. The announcement reads that he is taking only three full teams to New York. When you realize that Rockne declines to call some boys first and others second string you will appreciate the sad plight he is in.

An improvement in the Notre Dame passing game, which has not been so good, must come if victory over the Army is to be accomplished for the Army has a line that would have made Hindenburg sign with envy in those days on the western front.

Wolverines Are Favored

By FRED VANDEVENDER.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—October teams have not stood the pressure of November football. That is, perhaps, because of the hard schedules that are played in early season. There are no teams in the Middle West which have not either been defeated or tied.

Even the great Notre Dame eleven, which engages the Army today at the Yankee Stadium, was tied last Saturday by the just as great Minnesota team.

For that reason prediction of the possible winner of the day's classics in this section is not easy.

The biggest game is the clash of Tad Weiman's Wolverines and the Navy at Ann Arbor. The Wolverines go into the game in perfect condition. They boast of one of the best backfields—and incidentally they have eight backfield men from whom it is hard to choose the four best—in the Conference.

Gilbert, Puckelwartz and Rich, with Oosterbaan on an end, form a combination that is hard to beat. Miller's brains at the quarterback position was a large factor in defeating Chicago last Saturday. Navy Bill Ingram, however, points out that the Middies stopped the whole Michigan team, including the great Benny Friedman, last year. Navy has a great line, and that will more than offset any advantage Michigan might have in the backfield, but even so, I think Michigan will win, by a close score.

Illinois should defeat Father Amos Alonzo Stagg's Maroons by a fairly large score. The Chicago eleven has suffered heavy casualties this year, and now even the venerable old coach is in bed with a very bad cold.

Bob Zuppke has one of the cleverest teams in the Conference, and with Ken Rouse, star Chicago center, out of the game, there seems to be little doubt the outcome of the struggle.

A second Conference tilt brings together old rivals. They are Pat Page and Dick Hanley, coaches respectively of Indiana and Northwestern. They have an old grudge to settle in this game. Butler, coached by Page, won and lost from Hanley's Haskell Indians. The Indians had a bit the edge in scoring in the two contests. Now the mentors meet again.

Wisconsin has somewhat the shade over Iowa in their game at Madison. Wisconsin has played consistently good ball all season, but have bucked up against teams a little better. This time they go into the game the favorite.

The remainder of the Conference elevens should have an easy time of it. Purdue should walk over Franklin, while Minnesota is trimming Drake with ease and grace. Ohio State is taking an off day with Dennison.

Allegheny is in, and realizing that, knows the sort of game to expect. He is pointing his team accordingly.

At Greenville, Tommy Holleran sends his Thiel varsity into action against Westminster in a Conference battle. Both elevens were beaten by Tech, both lost to Duquesne and both tied Waynesburg. It will be Thiel's backfield against Westminster's strong line and ends.

West Virginia makes another stand on Mountaineer Field, Morgantown, with their state rivals, Davis-Elkins as foemen. The Mountaineers showed vast improvement in holding Missouri in fair check last week and hope to continue the needed good work by downing Henderson's Hurricane today.

Grove City will be kept pretty busy with St. Francis at Grove City. The Saints, stronger than they have been for a number of years, have triumphs over both Bethany and Westminster to their credit.

Carnegie Tech, Duquesne and Waynesburg, all of which were in action yesterday, will watch Pitt and Nebraska duel in the Stadium. Bethany is idle.

Washington and Jefferson, the other member of the Big Four, has a tough one on the hook in Carl Snavley's Bucknell varsity, featuring Diehl and McCormack. This game will test Wash-Jeff considerably, and may see the Presidents' humbled in a prospective upset.

Penn State has New York University, undefeated and tied but once, for the final home game of the year at State College. The New Yorkers will give State the biggest test of the year.

SPORT COMMENT

"We were in Johnny Kling's room in Kansas City recently when a three-cushion league match was being played, and there were only 29 paid admissions. At another game in Buffalo a short time again there were only 12 paid admissions. They'll never be able to put that game over."

Some one appears to have made a poor guess. Here is Hoppe playing the game he once refused to admit called for real billiard skill, and evidently finding it more profitable for touring matches and a league membership than the balkline style at which he was for so long the champion of all champions.

BUD TAYOR REACHES STRICKEN FORMER WIFE

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Nov. 12—(AP.)—Bud Taylor, claimant of the bantamweight championship, who made a hurried trip by air and rail from the West Coast when informed that his divorced wife, Mrs. Iris Ward Taylor, was seriously ill, arrived here last night. He found Mrs. Taylor much improved, although physicians said she was still in a critical condition as the result of peritonitis.

When informed of Mrs. Taylor's illness, Taylor started from Los Angeles by airplane, but changed to a railroad train at Salt Lake City.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Erie—Jack Zivic defeated Heavy Andrews, 10 rounds; Joe Scinta and Tug Phillips, drew, 6 rounds; Ray Collins knocked out Joe Webber, 2 rounds; Al Delmonte defeated Billy Beatty, 6 rounds.

At Toledo—Clarence Rosen defeated Steve Nugent, 12 rounds; Lefty Thomas won by technical knockout over Frankie Stellmack, 5 rounds.

At Orlando, Fla.—Ben Pound knocked out John Pearson, 2 rounds; Carl Cavelli defeated Joe Capadora, 8 rounds; Mike Lofley and Jack Hislip drew, 8 rounds.

At Fort Smith, Ark.—Buster Brown and Eddie Murdock drew, 10 rounds.

At Glen Falls, N. J.—Jimmy Ireland defeated Pete Villa, 10 rounds.

At Chicago—Joey Medill defeated Mike Ballerino, 10 rounds; Sammy Ratner defeated Joe Depino, 6 rounds.

At Toronto—Mike McTigue and Larry Gains drew, 10 rounds; Soldier Jones knocked out Indian Joe Brown, 1 round; Victor Waintz and Friedman Pepper drew, 6 rounds.

At Buffalo—Lou Bogash defeated Lou Scozza, 10 rounds Frankie Schoell defeated Tillie (Kid)' Herman, 8 rounds.

At Hagerstown, Md.—K. O. Yutzy defeated Walter Dicktrson, 10 rounds; Young Bush defeated Paddy Thomas, 6 rounds.

At Philadelphia—Pat Haley defeated Bobby Richardson, 10 rounds; Mickey Casey defeated Charley Miller, 8 rounds.

Won't Move Big Indianapolis Speedway

By Universal Service.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 12.—Although a Detroit syndicate, headed by Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker now owns and controls the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, where the International 500-mile automobile race is held each May 30, neither the track or the race will be removed to Detroit, it was announced here yesterday.

"Even if the track could be moved," said Capt. Rickenbacker, "we would be foolish to think of taking it away from Indianapolis. We paid a huge sum for the property (it is estimated the price was $1,000,000) and a great portion of that sum represented the good will, prestige and popularity of the speedway."

WILKINSBURG IS SET FOR BUTLER INVASION

After a week's rest, Coach Elmer Carroll's Wilkinsburg High School team is primed for its intersectional battle with Butler High today at Graham Field, Wilkinsburg. The Wilkinsburgers have lost only one game this season, that to Greensburg's great eleven. Butler is undefeated, New Kensington High only having held them to a deadlock.

Butler will bring a powerful team to Wilkinsburg, a team well versed in the overhead mode of attack, and a team capable of doing the unexpected and turning it to its own advantage. Coach Carroll's team will base their attack principally upon straight football of that type which defeated Braddock, Swissvale and Latrobe.

Butler last year held Coach Ege's Red and Blue title contenders to a 6-6 score, forcing them to flash every trick in the bag to win. This year's Butler team will, in all probability, be as strong as that of 1926. As the game is the last before the season ending Union classic for the Wilkinsburgers, it is attracting great interest in the Holy City, and a capacity crowd is expected at Graham Field at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

YALE

Holy Cross, is grappling Marquette in an intersectional setto at Milwaukee.

Yale vs. Princeton this year finds the Bulldog and the Tiger with as powerful and closely matched elevens as they ever have flung against each other.

Even with the ineligible Caldwell's 182 pounds missing, Yale has a slight edge in weight, which is most apparent behind the line. In the forward walls, where the game may be decided, the rivals are practically even at 192 pounds per man. With Johnny Garvey in for Caldwell, Yale has a backfield averaging 179½ pounds, to Princeton's 172¾. Eddie Wittmer, 175-pound sophomore candidate for all-American honors, is the backfield ace of this young Tiger team.

HUSKY HUSKERS FROM UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA

Here's the first team of the University of Nebraska, which meets the Pitt Panthers in the stadium this afternoon. The picture was snapped in the stadium last evening just before the visitors went through a secret workout. Left to right, the backs are: Presnell, Oelrich, Howell and Bronson. Line—Richards, Lee, Holm, James, Lawson, Randels and McMullen.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK
SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

RECENTLY in this column we had occasion to take up the cudgels with an eastern writer who contended that Frank Klaus, of Braddock, never was middleweight champion of the world. Comes to hand now a letter from George Engel, former local manager of boxers, who piloted both Klaus and the late Harry Greb when they were holders of the 160-pound championship, and it is enlightening on the subject.

Engel writes as follows from New York:

"If Klaus was not champion, then George Chip wasn't either, and Chip beat Klaus on what I shall always contend was a fluke. Chip at that time did not figure to be a good sparring partner for Klaus, but he cracked Frank early in the fight and Klaus never got over it. He was one of the few men who lost a title standing up in those days. And if Chip wasn't the champion after beating Klaus, then none of the men who succeeded him were, and that includes Al McCoy, Mike O'Dowd, Johnny Wilson, Harry Greb, Tiger Flowers and Mickey Walker.

"WHEN Stanley Ketchel was killed, I claimed the championship for Klaus and was upheld by sports authorities and fans everywhere, because Klaus had beaten all the good men in his class and fought Ketchel a good fight. About that time Jack Dillon was a sensation and I watched Klaus with him over the 20-round route in San Francisco and Frank beat him. They still talk about that fight out on the coast, for it was one of the best ever seen in that part of the country, and they had great battles there in those times. Then I took Klaus to Paris and Frank knocked out Georges Carpentier, the European middleweight champion, in 19 rounds. After that we took on Billy Papke, who had been champion for a short time by virtue of a knockout over Ketchel, which Ketchel later returned in kind, and Frank knocked out Billy in 14 rounds.

"Yes, sir, Klaus was a real champion, and what a sweet fighter when he was right! And don't forget that he is one of the few American fighters who ever won a title on the other side and that he was the first ring champion Pittsburgh ever had and that they still hold the memory of him in high esteem in Europe.

"KLAUS never showed at his best in Pittsburgh. Perhaps it was because he tried too hard and defeated his own purpose. Frank and I were together for 10 years and never had a contract to bind us. If he were fighting today he'd make the present crop of middleweights hop out of the ring.

"I suppose you'd like to know which I think was the greater of the two Pittsburgh champions, Greb or Klaus, since I handled both of them. Well, that's something I won't tell anyone. Both were wonderful battlers, and Pittsburgh will wait a long time before it sees their equal among its home talent."

J. J. FREUND, JR., is gradually completing his job of making work for the sports writers during the winter months. He is the demon organizer of basketball leagues to whom reference was made here a few weeks ago. So far he has reorganized for the new floor campaign the County League, Commercial and Industrial League and the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League and is working on the Catholic Lyceum circuit, another loop along the lines of the P. and O., several junior leagues, a railroad workers' outfit and a handful of other leagues. The end is nowhere in sight. John, incidentally, has a connection with one of the department stores, and a gay wag has given him the title of "graduate athletic manager" of that growing institution.

REPORTS are that the local fans are not warming up very well to the Pitt-Nebraska game in the Stadium today and that the advance sale of tickets has been comparatively small. This is strange, in view of the fact that the Cornhuskers created such a sensation when they were here before, in 1921, and stand a very fine chance of knocking off the Panthers today if Jock Sutherland's proteges are to be beaten at all this season. The Huskers are here on business bent. As they worked out in the Stadium last evening they talked of nothing but victory. They do not entertain the thought of going back home on the short end of the score.

CHESS PLAY RESTS

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 12.—Jose Capablanca was taken slightly ill last night. As results the 28th game for the chess championship of the world between Capablanca, the titleholder, and Alexander Alekhine, the challenger, was suspended.

Burns Eleven Downs Firemen, 8 to 6

By TOM BIRKS.

ARMISTICE DAY saw some wonderful battles on the local independent gridirons, the spring-like weather bringing out capacity crowds to the games staged.

The battle of the day with the possible elimination winner emerging from the contest was the Burns-East Pittsburgh Firemen game at Parnassus with Burns finishing on the long end of an 8 to 6 score. A big crowd turned out to see the most important elimination game of the season, and Burns fully deserved its triumph.

However, both touchdowns were the result of fumbles, Zoltac being especially unfortunate in fumbling at the time when fumbles were dangerous.

McChesneytown lived up to its reputation of being a great club. It takes a wonderful scoring machine to tally five touchdowns on Amicus. And there is a crying demand for McChesneytown to come into Pittsburgh against one of our best clubs. The score was 31 to 12.

McKeesport Olympics and the Niles Tornadoes staged a real session at Jeannette for the benefit of the American Legion. Freddy Iverson's cracks tried hard to reverse that first game, but Herb Stein has a defensive line and defied all the efforts of the Olympics to break through.

Neither team was able to score, the game finishing 0-0.

Order Jury Trial For Dempsey Case

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Federal Judges Rellstab and Bodine in the United States District Court here yesterday granted a motion by counsel for Jack Dempsey to dismiss a suit in equity brought by Jack Kearns, his former manager, for one-third of a million dollars.

The court's decision decreed that the case should be transferred to the law calendar of the court and that the action should be tried before a jury.

SCHENLEY HIGH LOSES TO GREENSBURG, 12-0

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 12.—The crack Red and Black eleven of Schenley High School of Pittsburgh fought the unbeaten Brown Tornado of Greensburg High School to a standstill for the best part of four quarters only to lose out in the final five minutes of play, 12-0, before one of the seasons largest crowds yesterday. The victory for Greensburg will enable the Brown and White and Norwin to meet in a W. P. I. A. L. battle here Thanksgiving Day, both undefeated.

Both teams showed an impregnable defense most of the game, although Schenley appeared to be in its way to a score and possible victory in the third quarter. In that period the Red and Black worked the ball from its own 20-yard line by means of a sensational forward passing attack to the Greensburg 25-yard mark, only to lose the ball when they received two penalties.

CHASE'S TEAM LOSES TO HOMESTEAD, 27-0

Homestead High romped off with a 27-0 victory over the McKeesport High eleven yesterday at the dedication of the new McKeesport stadium, the invaders getting off to a great start in the first period, when three touchdowns were registered against the home team. Berger, Seitz and Wilkinson featured for the winners.

Walker After Tiger

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Mickey Walker is quite willing to fight Tiger Flowers for the middleweight title he wrested from the Georgia Deacon a short while ago, but not in New York. According to Jack Kearns, Walker's manager, Mickey will sign to fight Flowers for Jim Mullen at Soldiers' Field, Chicago, next spring when Mullen comes to town tomorrow.

Walk Miller, the Tiger's manager, wants Tex Rickard to stage the fight in New York, but there isn't a chance of Kearns agreeing to any such proposal.

Flowers will return tomorrow night to the club where he started his climb to pugilistic fame. He meets Leo Gates, the Mohawk Indian, in the main bout of 10 rounds at the Olympia A. C., formerly the Commonwealth Club of Harlem.

Flowers sprang into prominence by knocking out Bob Lawson, Jack Townsend and Tut Jackson at the Harlem arena in 1924. It was these bouts that led to the fight with the late Harry Greb, from whom the Tiger won the title.

Webster Hall Gymnasium Scores Again

Webster Hall's basketball team, a member of the West Penn League, composed of energetic resident guests, is rapidly rounding into fighting trim. With the opening of the season, Nov. 19, the team is expected to exhibit speed and a quick-tempered attack. Webster Hall's gymnasium, completely equipped, is at the command of house guests at all times. Handball courts are other features that add to the Webster Hall man's zest.

By Todd W. Wright.

Battling under the baskets is one of the major relaxations of Webster Hall men this winter. An active house team has been organized and the top floor of the famous club hotel at Fifth and Dithridge is the scene of daily skirmishes.

Many of Pittsburgh's leading sport fans have made Webster Hall their permanent address. This means that Webster Hall's star athletes are always sure of an interested gallery, and that every resident who gives promise of ability is given a chance to shine.

Swimming is another sport that is popular at Webster Hall, where several aquatic stars and a host of really good swimmers keep the great daylight pool in action. The Webster Hall man's regime also includes handball and billiards.

Since getting an inside picture of this distinguished club residence, I am more convinced than ever that this type of hotel is basically sound. Single men have been looking for smart, wholesome, economical lodgings since the Year One—and in residences like Webster Hall they are finding the object of their search.

The astonishing thing about the place is the tremendous value you get for your dollar of rent. All the luxuries and recreational facilities of an exclusive athletic club are obtainable at rentals no higher than the cost of "just a room" elsewhere!

You can get a single, large, light room at Webster Hall for as little as $12 a week—others for $13 and $14. Some of the big double rooms are costing their occupants only $10 a week apiece.

Men of Pittsburgh have been invited to come up and see just what their dollar of rent will buy.

by JAMES J. LONG

WHEN Bill McKechnie affixed his signature to the document that made him manager of the St. Louis National League team for 1928, he became the sixth skipper that the Cardinals have had since the club passed from the Britton interests into the hands of Sam Breadon, Branch Rickey and their associates 10 years ago.

Miller Huggins withdrew after the season of 1917 and signed with the Yankees.

Jack Hendricks was signed for 1918 in St. Louis, but was dropped after one season when he finished last.

BRANCH RICKEY, already with a number of club duties on his shoulders, took on the managerial job in 1919 as well, but while winning games on the blackboard, he was winning too few on the field, and the result was that he eventually was forced to step down on May 30, 1925.

Rogers Hornsby succeeded Rickey. He lifted the Cards from eighth place to fourth during the latter part of 1925, and in 1926 he won the National League pennant and the world championship.

A straining of relations between himself and the owners led to his being traded for Frankie Frisch, Jimmy Ring and, it was reported, a bundle of money after the 1926 race.

This year Bob O'Farrell was in charge and now McKechnie takes his place in line as No. 6.

MENTION of the passing of the Redbirds from the Britton interests to the present owners prior to the season of 1917 brings to mind that if the Mound City club had not been sold at that time a catcher who was then a star and another player who still is one of the brightest luminaries in the game would have landed in the Pirate camp.

President Barney Dreyfuss, of the local club, offered $42,000 for Infielder Rogers Hornsby and Catcher Frank Snyder. True, Hornsby alone later turned out to be worth much more than the sum offered for the two players, but at that time the size of the offer startled the baseball world.

Hornsby had played just one full season with the Cards, working at shortstop, second base and third base, and though he made a batting average of .313, some baseball men expressed the opinion that he might be only a "one-yar ball player."

Consequently, President Dreyfuss was conceded to be taking a big gamble, and none of the other clubs offered to top his figures.

MRS. HELEN BRITTON, daughter of the late F. DeHaas Robison, one of the most famous major league magnates of the early days, and then in control of the Cardinals, said she would accept the offer and sell the two players to Pittsburgh unless some prospective buyers who were after the St. Louis club closed the deal for the club on a certain day before noon, at which hour she had arranged to leave the Mound City.

Just as Mrs. Britton was leaving home for the railroad station Breadon and his associates put in an appearance, bought the club and all deals were declared off.

That's how close Hornsby and Snyder came to landing in Pittsburgh uniforms.

Even next season, 10 years afterward, Hornsby would fit in pretty nicely at second base for the Picaroons.

IN CONNECTION with the sale of the Cards to Breadon & Co., before the opening of the 1917 season, another slip is recalled that cost the National League a club manager who still is so successful as a team leader that he is sitting on top of the world holding the championship of creation.

Miller Huggins was manager of the Cards when the new owners stepped in, and in giving him a new contract for 1917 they made the mistake of letting him sign one that lacked a reserve clause, though Huggins had served as a player at times as well as a manager in 1916.

THE result was that after a salary dispute before the 1918 season, season, Huggins, instead of being bound to stay in the National League if any club desired his services, became free to go where he pleased, and he quickly jumped at the big job in New York, though several National League clubs were eager to sign him as manager.

Thus one of the best managers in the game was allowed to go to the American League, where he has won five pennants in the last seven years and has twice piloted his club to the world championship in addition.

PASSING years sometimes change opinions of an individual as to the merits of a certain sport.

There is Willie Hoppe, for example. Pittsburgh cue fans last night saw him wind up a 300-match at three-cushion billiards with Otto Reiselt, the titleholder. This was only one of a number of matches at the angle game in which Hoppe has taken part in recent years, and in addition he has entered for the coming title race of the American Three-Cushion Billiard League.

It is the first time in his long career that he has engaged in any title competition other than balkline. He will represent the Strand Academy of New York in the schedule, which calls for each player to take part in 28 games, and it is said he will be given the highest salary ever given to any cueist to play three-cushion billiards.

YET it was only a few years ago, right here in Pittsburgh, that Hoppe, as well as Robert Benjamin, then his manager, scoffed at the three-cushion style of game. Willie at that time was still the unbeaten balkline champion, and appeared unable to give any serious thought to any game other than his own.

"It is not billiards at all," said Willie. "It is merely a game of luck and is not to be considered with balkline."

"YES, and it is already on its last legs and won't get by for very long," chimed in Benjamin.

NOTREDAME FAVORED TO BEAT ARMY

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP.) — Championship hopes hang in the balance today as Eastern football teams all along the line mobilized for the most important battles of the season.

Renewing a rivalry dating back to 1873—the oldest of the day—Princeton's unbeaten and untied eleven prepared to tackle Yale at the New Haven bowl in a struggle for survival among the top teams of the East. Stung to fighting pitch by loss of its ace, Bruce Caldwell, through eleventh hour ineligibility, Yale last night was an even choice to stop the Tiger in a battle before 78,000 spectators.

With promises of equally as large a crowd at the Yankee Stadium, the light cavalry of Notre Dame deployed for battle with the heavy howitzers of the Army in one of the most colorful intersectional spectacles of the year. Army has been beaten only by Yale, and Notre Dame's single sign of human vulnerability was a tie with Minnesota last Saturday.

Eastern football will be pitted against Western in two other battles of giants—the Navy against Michigan at Ann Arbor, and unbeaten Pittsburgh against Nebraska on the home field of the Panthers.

With the fires of ancient rivalries burning more fiercely than ever, Dartmouth's powerful array that was halted only by Yale, takes on its old adversary, Cornell, at Hanover; rejuvenated Pennsylvania entertains Columbia; Harvard seeks revenge on Brown for a 1926 defeat by the "Iron Men," and Colgate invades Syracuse for their annual classic.

In a battle certain to have a bearing on the final Eastern rating, New York University's undefeated "goose-step huddle" marches against Penn State at State College, Pa. Washington and Jefferson, another of those unbeaten rarities, has its hands full with a battling Bucknell eleven. Georgetown, leading scorer of the East, invades Boston College, while a third strong Catholic college team,

Eli Bulldog Toothless for Tiger Fray Today

The Yale football eleven will enter its annual battle with Princeton at New Haven today minus the services of Bruce Caldwell, backfield star, who will be on the sidelines because of his disbarment following the revelation that he had violated Yale's interpretation of the transfer rule by having played in two games with the Brown freshmen before going to Yale. Thus 'twill be a more or less toothless bulldog that will represent the Blue against the Tiger.

BUCKNELL HOST TO W. & J.

LEWISBURG, Pa., Nov. 12.—(UP.)—Doubtful weather today slightly dampened the spirits of a crowd of nearly 20,000 persons here to witness the annual tilt between Bucknell and Washington and Jefferson.

Tartans Win; Jackets Topple Dukes

PITTSBURGH'S college football teams, in action locally Armistice Day, had to be satisfied with an even break, the Durable Dukes of Duquesne losing to Waynesburg 18-0 while Carnegie Tech walloped Western Reserve of Cleveland 45-0.

The Dukes fought off the heavier and more experienced Yellow Jackets for the entire first half, but cracked badly in the third and fourth period and were forced steadily back, until the Jackets three times punctured the Duke goal line.

Tech ran riot against the Clevelanders, scoring 33 points in the first half. The attack was led by Howard Harpster, brilliant Skibo quarterback, who was given able and consistent support by the entire Tartan squad. There were two parades in town yesterday, the one downtown in the morning and the Tartan parade of touchdowns at Forbes Field in the afternoon.

Wally Steffen called his entire list of material into service, and the Plaid steamroller swept aside every defensive plan put forth by Gordon Locke's team in the first two periods. He took Harpster and most of the other regulars out of the game during the second period and finished the contest with his reserves, who also acquitted themselves with glory.

The Dukes failed to play heads-up football against Waynesburg after the first half, and a fumbled punt by Quarterback Murphy and some excellent returning of Donelli's punts by Fisher, reserve Waynesburg halfback, paved the way for the Jacket tallies.

The first touchdown was the most colorful, Elstrom shooting a 30-yard pass to Williams who stepped across the line.

Elstrom and Fisher scored the other two, Fisher taking a heave from Toline for his tally.

PITT LOSES HAGAN ON EVE OF FRAY

Haven, featuring Princeton's undefeated and untied Tigers and Yale's Caldwellless Bulldogs.

Psychology is to play an important part in today's struggle. Pitt enters the game on the short end of the betting and in a crippled condition. The Panther backfield situation has not improved to any great extent over last week's, and Sutherland will send his team into the ball game minus both regular quarterbacks and a regular halfback. Jimmy Hagan, the dependable little blonde punter, cannot play today, his injured arm being in such condition that it would be foolhardy for Coach Jock to send him into the action. The starting Pitt backfield, therefore, will be more or less of a misfit one, and will in all probabilities line up in this order: Parkinson, quarter; Welch, left half; Uansa, right half, and Booth, fullback.

PRESNELL

Such a backfield cannot hope to compare with the powerful attacking weapon boasted by the Cornhuskers, led by the great Glenn Presnell and beautifully augmented by Capt. Jug Brown, Howell and Oelrich.

Say what you will of the merits of Pitt's highly-touted Panthers, and deem them champions or bums, you'll have to admit that they are facing the test of their lives today—a test that would not be relished by any eleven in the country. If Pitt downs Nebraska, it will be the biggest kind of a feather in their caps. If they lose, it will be just as great a fluff in the chapeau of the Cornhuskers. Both have everything to gain and everything to lose.

Briefly, if Pitt wins, it will more than atone for the scoreless deadlock played with Wash-Jeff last week and will place the Panthers almost at the top of the list for the national title, providing Yale topples Princeton. If Nebraska wins, it will make up for the defeat suffered at the hands of Missouri, and will give the Cornhuskers improved rating as titular contenders.

Pitt must get the old fighting spirit out, dusted off and donned for the game. Memories of the stirring battles put up by heroes of other days against odds just as great must be borne in the minds and hearts of the Panthers today—and if that is done—it will be one tough old afternoon for Nebraska.

This fellow Presnell is the baby Pitt will have to watch. His specialty is cracking through the tackles, not off, or inside, but through. He usually carries the ball from punt formation, and crunches either to the right or left, with big McMullen clearing the way. McMullen plays an end on the offense, and he usually takes the whole side of the opposing line, leaving Presnell a clear field.

Whether he'll be able to do all this against the smart and stubborn Panther line and secondary defense remains to be seen.

Pitt offers Capt. Gilbert Welch, easily one of the East's two best halfbacks and Dickie Booth as counterweights to Presnell. It is this pair that may trump Coach Bearg's ace.

Today's game marks the second between the two elevens. In 1921, a great Crimson threat appeared out of the West and took Pitt over to the tune of 10-0, outplaying Warner's eleven all the way. This team today is not the veteran aggregation that the 1921 squad was, and the Cornhusker line is somewhat inexperienced. But it is big, and fairly fast. That should be enough.

The kickoff is scheduled for 2 o'clock. The varsity game will be preceded by a meeting between the Pitt and Penn State freshmen elevens, due to start at noon sharp.

Three or four other games carded for the tri-state district will bear watching today. At Meadville, Geneva College's undefeated Covenanters will take on a desperate Allegheny Methodists, trampled on by every other team in the section played save one and determined to do or die against Bo McMillin's well-trained boys today.

Qualities Men Seek in Women

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

STILL they come—the letters in reply to a modern girl who recently wrote this column asking "what in Sam Hill do modern young men expect of girls?"

I shall quote today from "E. M. P." and "C. B. H." both of whom have decided views on the subject.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," writes "C. B. H." "A man is so spoiled by the majority of modern flappers that he doesn't know how to court a girl. If he shows her all the respect in the world when he takes her to a theater or dance, and escorts her to her door without trying to kiss her—just keeps his hands to himself—he will later find he has a new name, 'dead freight.' But if he tries to kiss a girl she will probably feel insulted.

"If he tries to entertain her with a few riddles, jokes or tricks, he will be called silly. If he hasn't much to say, he is a mummy. A man has all the puzzles he can handle when it comes to figuring out the opposite sex. Just put yourselves in our places, girls. We are not mind-readers.

"I don't mean that a girl should pet and kiss every man who calls on her. I agree with the girl who keeps Tom, Dick and Harry at a distance. But try to show some appreciatian and affection, so that a young man will know you like his company and will set his mind on you. Then he will be glad to call on you again. "C. B. H."

There is good sense in my correspondent's point of view. Now that young women are rejoicing in freedom from many established customs, such as constant chaperonage, some girls are going to the opposite extreme and mistaking the license of pertness and indiscretion for true freedom, which includes orderly reserve and self-government.

No wonder young men find it hard to figure out how a girl wishes to be treated nowadays. But, after all, a young man who shows perfect respect toward women will not lose any companionship worth having, and he may win the regard of the finest girl in the world.

My correspondent comes to the sensible conclusion that a young man looks to a girl for responsiveness and appreciation, but thinks more of her if she shows discrimination in dispensing kisses and caresses, provided she does not become insulted because a kiss is asked.

"Painted faces, slangy speech, cigarets and liquor—short dresses—all these are evidences of the modern girl," writes my correspondent, E. M. P. "Who can blame a young man very much if he judges her by these outward signs and believes that her ideas are also 'modern.'

"When you buy a can labeled 'peaches,' you expect to be able to enjoy peaches, not pears or plums. You believe the label on the can. And so with everything—the label is trusted to give a true description of the contents.

"Young men are derided by women as being unable to understand them. But how can men be expected to look underneath the label of modernism and see the old-fashioned idea of a girl?

"Perhaps this will in some manner answer the question asked by 'Do Tell Everything': 'What do young men want, anyway?'

"Men want what the label says is in the package. At first sight, they pick labels, trusting to the honesty of the girl that the label is correct. Very seldom will a man—I mean a man, not a cad—ask for something the label does not indicate is available.

"If you care to give this the publicity of your interesting column, you may. E. M. P."

Here is plain but not unfriendly talk, girls. And doesn't it sound logical to you?

Of course, [illegible] and knee-length skirts do not spell 'immorality in the case of modern women. A man may well remember that fact in judging a girl. Still, there are ways and ways of adapting these modern fashions. Modesty and reserve will adopt or discard them as the case may be without going to conspicuous and obvious extremes.

There are cads among men. These should be dropped unceremoniously by the girl unfortunate enough to make their acquaintance. The clever girl in dealing with modern young men in this age of shifting customs remembers that he will inevitably judge her by her dress, manner and personality and treat her accordingly.

You cannot reasonably object, for instance, to a kiss you invited by your eyes and manner. If you choose to dress "daringly" men will naturally assume you wish to be treated "daringly." A girl invites insolence when she cheapens herself.

So look to your label, girls, as indicated by dress, make-up, coifure, manner—every detail of your personality. Isn't it worth while to discard, if need be, a few fashionable extremes if they may be misconstrued as immodest?

Let men see by your personality that you are the gracious, appreciative, splendid modern girl of old-fashioned principles, for whom they are looking as pal, sweetheart and adored life mate.

THE UNBELIEVERS GO A-HUNTING FOR PAN

Drawn By NELL BRINKLEY

PAN. The very name rouses that old painful impulse in everyone of us that calls us suddenly, in the midst of our dusty city life, back to hills and rocks and seas, back to mountains, the quiet places, close to the earth and the things that grow out of it. And we long violently to lay our bodies close against the grass and moss of the earth, to listen to the thousand little voices that talk there, to to watch, from the earth's breast, the roving cloud-creatures racing free across the gigantic pastures of the sky!

Standing in an aisle of the forest, hundreds of miles from any town, above the enamel of blue and green, around you the silent tree-boles of silver and violet and brown, drenched in the magic of white gold sun and dreaming blue shadow, made harmonious with the secret, silver music of a hidden stream, musical with bird voices.

THEN haven't you looked to see the figure that none of us ever see since we have become sophisticated of eye and heart, that strange figure with a mocking face, the curled animal horns, the goat-hoofs, the brown chest, and the pipes, step out from behind a tree and stand and gaze like a deer to look at you? I have—and hoped to!

Can you picture a band of Dianas—flappers in their windbreaks and pretty sweaters and boots and guns—going a hunting for the goat-god himself? Unbelievers in faeries and wood-people. Up hobs Pan! Can you picture the baby-riot? Guns going off in fair amateur hands, terrible screams, bright-sweatered little figures and neat gaitered legs fleeing and twinkling over the landscape.

Black Ink Stains

Black ink stains can usually be removed with sour milk or the juice of a lemon, but if the stain is a bad one salts of lemon should be used. Salts of lemon does not burn or harm any material if it is only allowed to remain on it a few seconds, and then well rinsed with very hot water.

LAST summer I had a wonderful sea trip, spending nearly three weeks on a steamer. During most of the time no land was in sight.

DR. COPELAND

Three weeks is a long time. You have leisure to think. The little events of the ship are important, because matters of greater weight are too far away to trouble you.

On board was a fine family from China. The father was American and the mother Scotch. They impressed me as sane and sensible persons.

There were two children, one a little baby. It is about the baby I want to tell you. You will recall my constant harping about fresh air for babies. Nothing in the life of the child is more important than this.

A baby born into a house of six rooms has three times the chance to live that a baby born into a so-called home of two rooms has.

How do I know this?

Several years ago one of the research societies in a great city made a very careful study of such matters. They followed the lives and surroundings of thousands of newborn babies. The statement I just made is the conclusion of this study.

An excuse for a home, two rooms, must be packed with the furniture and fixings necessary for day and night living. The kitchen stove and dining table, the family beds, the washtubs, brooms, dishes, pots and pans, are all mixed-up in a perfect mess, no matter how orderly and ambitious the family may be.

When night comes the place is too crowded to afford air space for all the family. Who suffers most? The baby.

In all probability the tiny little thing is put into the clothes basket, an improvised bed. The basket is placed in a corner, "out of the draughts." Choked for air, the baby is robbed of what is quite as important as milk and water.

On our ship, the baby was left in the open air day and night. During waking moments it was placed in a screen-sided pen. On a clean blanket, it kicked and squirmed and cooed to its heart's content.

When it slept, which was most of the time, it was placed in its cart and left in the open air. For the whole three weeks I never knew of its being taken inside. We could almost see the growth and development of the infant.

Of course, you may not be so situated that you can keep your baby out of doors. But no matter where you live, do not fail to give the infant all the air possible. Day and night, all the months of the year, it must have fresh air if it is to thrive.

Answers to Health Queries

N. L. D. Q.—What do you advise for moles?

2.—How can one reduce the abdomen?

A.—Electric treatments will help to make them less noticeable.

2.—You must reduce the weight in general. Exercise daily in the open air.

J. P. Q.—What treatment will relieve varicose veins?

A.—Bandaging and wearing an elastic stocking during the daytime should give relief, also keeping off the feet as much as possible. If the trouble is of long standing more drastic treatment may be necessary.

A GRIPPING STORY OF MARGIE—WHO TRIED TO TRICK LOVE

By Gilbert Rogers

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Margie Marsh comes to New Work with a thousand dollars and a wonderful education. She keeps house with four other girls, learns stenography, and after three years decides to marry. She fails to find her ideal and Dan Shevlin, a shrewd man of the world, offers to introduce her into smart society through a Mrs. Brooke, provided Margie will give him some security. This security consists of a note which he dictates and Margie recklessly signs, to the effect that she loves him and will never regret the six months she has spent with him, Mrs. Brooke buys Margie wonderful clothes that Shevlin pays for and takes her to her cottage in Newport. She scores a success with rich Tubby Wells and others and learns of a shady episode in Martin's life, and, telling Shevlin, discovers him a blackmailer. Jerry asks her to marry him and go to South America, Shevlin calls her up from New York—telling her to see him in his apartment or he will show the letter to Jerry. Margie goes. He makes his meaning clear to her, then Jerry arrives. Finding Margie intractible, Shevlin hands the letter to Jerry, who reads it in spite of Margie's frantic protests.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

ACROSS her mind there floated the memory of her friends, her friends in the apartment. To see them again, to hear their voices, to realize that the world wasn't just a hateful place of cruelty and treachery—the desire ached sharply in Margie.

She looked around her as if to find out where she was. Half an hour later she was going down the well-remembered street, stepping into the vestibule.

Their names swam before her eyes, Ruth Irving, Florence Clark, Billie and Betty Graham. There had been no newcomer to fill her place—she was glad of that.

She rang and then rang upstairs. She ran so that she was out of breath. She wanted to forget everything, she wanted to go back into the past and pretend that nothing had happened, that she was still working for the Pantheon Finance Company, and had never met Carlotta Brooke, or heard of Jerry Evesham.

The door opened. Someone peered out at her. Someone short and plump and blonde.

"Florence! Oh, Florence, darling!"

Florence Clark gasped, then screamed across her shoulder into the hall.

"Oh, look—look who's here. Margie—Margie!"

Margie's arms were around Florence, around Betty Graham, around them all, one after another, as they came hurrying out wide-eyed and excited, all talking at once.

And suddenly Margie found she was crying, crying as if her heart would break. She tried to stop and could not. And Ruth Irving was peering at her strangely.

She could not tell them why it was she cried now, she could not tell them that for the first time the realization that she would never see Jerry any more was stabbing her with all that it meant, or that her courage had given away before their joy at seeing her, their affection.

She made a violent effort to control herself, and partly succeeded.

Margie, are you married—why didn't you write—where have you been—look at those lovely things!"

Their voices blended together.

"I want to hear about you," Margie faltered. "I don't want to talk about myself. I've just come back to be with you again. I want to get my old job back. I want you to pretend I never went away!"

CHAPTER XXXIII.

OF COURSE Margie didn't really want her old job back. That wouldn't help her to forget. It would only make her miserable by making her remember instead. Besides in the Pantheon Finance Company she would be certain to run into Shevlin again.

In the morning, which was Saturday, she went to an agency she knew. A tired, white-haired secretary shook her head dolefully.

"Good positions are scarce—very scarce. Do you know how many names we have on our books now? Have you any idea—not that everyday we don't have wonderful opportunities, too. Only—." Her eyes traveled over the smart simplicity of Margie's costume—"only it's you girls from college and wealthy homes who want to try earning your own livings who are just flooding everything."

Margie smiled, and left her name. Wealthy homes—she wondered what the secretary would have said if she had told her she had four dollars and eighteen cents in her purse, and not another penny in the world.

She went back to the apartment. Florence Clark in a faded kimono was sipping chocolate. Ruth Irving was at the red writing desk, frowning over a long column of figures.

The Grahams were arguing dangerously over an exchange of clothes.

Margie felt a sense of warmth and tenderness for this familiar friendly atmosphere. She had said nothing, and though she knew they were thinking about her, wondering, they respected her privacy. She had gone away from them all, come back with lovely clothes, and burst into tears. Probably they thought... Margie got up suddenly with a little shiver. It was not what they thought that mattered now. It was Jerry. Why couldn't she get him out of her mind? Would it always be like this, would his face come suddenly before her eyes, and a sudden ache close around her heart at the thought that she would never see him any more.

She wondered why she didn't hate Shevlin more—but somehow it was like hating an earthquake or a pestilence. Shevlin wasn't human.

She glanced at herself in the long mirror set in the hatrack. It was strange, looking at herself, seeing the same face.

"I ought to look different somehow. I don't see how I can look as I always do. . . ."

Sunday and in a welter of Sunday papers, Margie heard them discussing the beauty shop. Ruth Irving's beau called, a patient, tired-looking man. Margie heard they were to be married in the autumn. Ruth Irving with her glasses and intent, severe face—but perhaps she was beautiful to him. Perhaps he was handsome to her. Love did things like that to you.

The Beauty Shop was a thriving success—no doubt of that. They were going to open a branch. Neighborhoods were discussed, rents spoken of. They were excited, they had something to interest them, something to live for.

Margie's eye ran down the advertising columns. Models Wanted, Models Wanted. She stared at the words carelessly for a moment. Then it flashed on her—why not? To wear lovely clothes still, even if they weren't yours—at least that would be something. "And I know how to wear clothes now!" she told herself.

She went directly the next morning to the Fifth avenue branch of a famous Parisian house. A quiet-voiced woman with cold eyes studied her, pursing her lips.

She nodded. "You can start tomorrow morning." She hesitated. "You've had no experience, you say? Well, we have to be very particular, you know. Our clientele is a distinguished, critical one—some of the most prominent members of the social world—the Newport colony—"

"Oh!" Margie got up. "I don't think I'd do. That is—no, I'm sure I wouldn't do."

"But I just told you. . . . You'll be very satisfactory. . . ."

"But you see—my lack of experience—I feel—" Margie's voice faltered into nothingness.

"Good morning! Thank you for wasting my time!"

Margie gave a little shiver, as if she had had a narrow escape. She felt depressed now, and her courage deserted her. She returned to the apartment. The girls had gone. She sat there waiting.

At 4 o'clock she made herself some tea. Her mind had turned and revolved until she was sick of thinking, weary of her own problems. Then, all at once, just when she had decided to stop thinking about what was to become of her, the idea came. Why not work with her friends—there must be something she could do at the Beauty Shop! Why hadn't she thought of that right away.

She went out and spent most of her money recklessly, buying little delicacies, renewing acquaintance with the butcher and grocer. When the girls came home, the table was laid, the food hot and savory on the table.

They crowded around her, squealing with pleasure.

"Margie—why did you ever go away? . . . Popovers—look, real popovers! . . . I'm starved!"

"Oh, I'm just trying to get you in a good mood, so that I can ask you for a job."

"You're hired. There never was a cook like you."

"I'm serious, really. I mean it."

"A job. You mean—"

Ruth Irving looked at her for a moment, met Florence Clark's wide eyes. The Grahams nodded. It was as if a little unspoken conference was running around that table.

"Wouldn't it be wonderful!" Florence Clark exclaimed.

"Why, with Margie it would be bound to go!" said Billie Graham.

"I didn't think you really intended to—to do something right away, or I'd have asked you," Ruth Irving told her.

Margie looked at them in bewilderment.

"But, darlings, I don't know what you're talking about. Maybe you haven't understood. I just mean a job—any sort of job. In—in the beauty shop. Cashier—you know, anything I could do. I'm desperate. If you should put me out, I'd have to gather up my finery and go find a nice bench in the park. So you see, when I said job—"

"But that's just what we're talking about," Betty Graham earnestly assured her.

"About the new branch. About who was to manage it—and everything. You'd be so wonderful!"

Tears sprang into Margie's eyes. She looked down quickly. Her voice was foolishly unsteady when she spoke.

"I—I thought once I might be able to help you. I dreamed of coming back and giving you—everything you wanted. I did really. And I've come back, asking instead. You don't know how happy it makes me—really." Then she lifted her chin resolutely. "There, I won't go on. And don't expect me to be a bit respectful to you ever again. You'll probably have to discharge me for impertinence. Gee, but I'll be fresh to the boss this time!"

Ruth Irving laughed, one of her unexpected, quick, clear laughs that were worth waiting for. Then she frowned.

"You see, the question is, just where we ought to take a place. If we could find something down in the thirties it might be good. Of course the rents are terrible. If it didn't work, we might lose where he stayed when he was in New York. She remembered it as she remembered every word he had ever said. "Rotten little room—but I'm not there often. And it's cheap." This was the street—and the number—why, it was only two blocks away, over beyond Lexington.

She struggled against her impulse. But to see where he lived, to pass by quickly, knowing he was there . . . it would make her heart ache, and yet she wanted to do it. She surrendered to her impulse.

Her breath came more quickly, as she noticed the faded brownstone. Was Jerry really there? She looked around quickly, then darted into the vestibule. A series of names, "Brown . . . O'Flaherty . . . Rubien . . ." New York names—and there next to the top . . . Jerry's!

At that moment someone came everything. We're all a little scared. We've all been looking, but we haven't had much time. If you want to, you might go down in that neighborhood tomorrow and see if you could find anything at all reasonable. A second floor would do. . . ."

Margie listened eagerly, discussed prices and locations.

She walked miles the next day, studying buildings with earnest eyes, interviewing renting agents, and pretending that her heart didn't sink at the prices demanded. She walked and inquired until she was weary, and yet felt she had accomplished nothing. The patch of sky above the tall buildings was darkening.

Margie decided to go home. All at once she realized the street she was on. One of those last days with Jerry, he had told her into the shadowy vestibule. In a sudden panic, her heart thumping guiltily, Margie pushed the slightly opened doorway inwards, and began to climb the dark stairs.

Why had she done that? A cowardly, dangerous thing to do—anly suppose that had been Jerry. The footsteps were coming steadily behind her. She climbed to a second floor. Of course it couldn't be Jerry. She'd slip out of the house again directly the man behind her had gone into his room.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

BUT the man climbing the stairs behind her did not turn into a room on that floor either.

"This is ridiculous," Margie told herself. "Why did I run like that!"

She knew it wasn't Jerry who was behind her now, but the thought that she was in Jerry's house made her happy and unhappy at the same time.

All at once the footsteps behind her slackened on a landing. A key clicked in a door, and this presently slammed. Margie stood, her hands on the banisters, looking down through the murk of the hallway. She was breathing hard.

From the farther end of the corridor where she now stood, a light gleamed from the chink of a door that was not tightly closed. As Margie stole towards the head of the stairs, a low sound came to her ears, a half fretful sound too quiet to be called a moan. And

Windstorm Precedes Cold; Houses Crash

By International News Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Winter weather that rode in on the heels of a destructive gale and rainstorm held Chicago in its grip today. For the second time this season, freezing temperature prevailed.

The mercury began tumbling last night after a freak windstorm, which cut a swath of destruction on the northwest fringe of the city, had blown itself out in Lake Michigan.

Several persons were injured in Niles and Niles Center, northwestern suburbs, when their homes were wrecked by the gale. Six houses were shoved from their foundations, trees were uprooted and traffic halted in many streets.

The storm broke when a warm south wind overridden by cold blasts from the northwest. The mercury, which stood at 71 when the storm began, dropped 23 degrees in less than three hours. It continued to fall throughout the night.

The cold wave is moving eastward, according to the local weather bureau, and should reach Atlantic coast states tonight or in the morning.

Will Sees Silver Lining in Golden Kansas Corn

WILL ROGERS

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 12.—Been a-coming through Kansas cornfields all day. This country is so busy gathering corn they can't get 'em to town to holler for relief. Down South the boll weevil eat 'nough cotton to keep it high-priced. Cattle couldn't wait for election year to go up in price.

If Cal can give 'em one more year of rain and boll weevil, I'll cop William Hearst's ten thousand. What other man has the Republicans got that can control the weather and the insects like that? John Roach Stratton and his divine healing is the only one I can think of off-hand.

Whereas, A Girl Risks Her All To Get A Rich Society Husband—IT NEVER PAYS

by Gilbert Rogers

then suddenly in a kind of whisper she heard her name.

She felt suddenly sick and dizzy. For a moment her head whirled. Then the whispering went on, disjointedly, with little broken murmurs.

She turned, and feeling her way along the wall, came to the door. She did not need to listen any more. She knew before she had pushed the door open that Jerry was lying there, sick, delirious.

Inside the narrow room she looked around with dismay. The battered Morris chair, the table piled with tobacco jars, papers, odds and ends, the confusion of things on the floor, the narrow cot by the window where a sick boy lay, tossing restlessly, his eyes burning with his fever. They fell on her, but unseeingly.

For a moment the pity of it struck her helpless. Only in New York could a thing like this happen, could a man sicken and be uncared for until someone, a friend or a casual, stumbled in on him.

She remembered now how Jerry had spoken of the fever that had wasted him once in South America.

"I have to be careful even now. I've had little attacks—they're pretty bad, I guess. I go out of my head, you see. Quinine helps some. And if I ever get another real attack of that fever again, well—!" He had grinned cheerfully, with the cheerfulness that refused to regard even death with dread.

Margie was on her knees by the cot, her cool fingers on his forehead.

"That's better," he muttered. "Much better. Tell the foreman I want to see him. And there's Carlos Rodriguez—you can tell him—tell him. . . ." His voice became inarticulate. He was living over again days of struggle in the heat of the tropics at Adrian Martin's mine.

Margies' weariness left her, as if she could never be weary again. She did not think now. It wasn't necessary to think. What she must do was so plain. He didn't recognize her. While he was like this she could care for him, watch over him. He would never know—never find out. But this—she would have this to remember.

She moved softly and swiftly around the disordered room, picking up things, freshening everything, throwing open the window, trying to straighten out the comfortable that covered Jerry's twitching body.

That was done in five minutes. In another five she was ringing a door bell frantically.

"It's after doctor's office hours. No, you can't see him, I tell you. He won't be disturbed now."

But Margie gritted her teeth. "I've got to see him. I'm going to see him."

A middle-aged man came out into the hallway. An irritable, kindly face.

"What is it?"

"I've been trying to send her away, sir, but she—"

"Please, come with me!" Margie pleaded. "He may die—you've got to come. You're nearest!"

He was putting on his coat with a "There, there! We'll see about that . . ."

Back in the room, he was looking at Jerry, bending over him, finger on pulse, asking Margie questions.

"These tropical fevers—no one understands them—but he's young, strong, he'll pull through with any care at all. No food for a day or two, and you can fill this prescription. You can let me know if you need me again."

It was dark outside now. Margie hurried homewards. She threw some things hastily into a bag. None of the girls had come in yet.

On the back of a laundry slip she wrote:

"Forgive me, but something terrible has happened, so that I can't go on as I promised. I'll be back as soon as I can. This sounds wild and mysterious, but I can't explain now. I love you all—Margie."

Then she was on her way down town again, stopping to pick up the filled prescription and spending the rest of her money recklessly on some flowers.

When she got in this time, Jerry was sleeping. She sat down in the Morris chair, watching him as he breathed. Now and then his lips moved. His face looked thin and drawn and pitiful.

Sally found tears coming into her eyes.

"Don't let him die!" she prayed. "Oh, don't let him die."

It grew late, but she did not move, watching by his bedside. It must have been midnight when he started up. His voice was dry and husky.

"Pedro! Pedro, get me the water dipper. You—you—"

Her arms were around his shoulders. He struggled futilely. He seemed as weak as a small child.

"Jerry, Jerry darling, it's all right, it's all right!"

It was wonderful to be able to whisper that to him even though he could not hear.

She brought a glass of water, and put it to his lips. He swallowed only a drop, and fell back exhausted again. She put her fingers on his forehead and throat, and pushed his thick hair back, and it seemed to make him quieter.

And then she talked to him, telling him that she loved him, in a low voice, over and over.

It was dawn before she realized it. She had not slept. The room was cold. Hunting she found another blanket and put it over him. He turned and twisted, so that it fell to the floor, and patiently she replaced it.

SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON

By HELEN ROWLAND

ONE WAY TO HOLD A HUSBAND

GO TO, ye simple Matrons of Babylon! How long will ye continue to pin your faith upon beauty creams and chiffons?

How long will ye seek to hold a husband's love with baby-ribbons and to bind him to you with silken corset strings and plastic surgery?

* * *

Nay, let flappers and debutantes follow after beauty and cultivate sex-appeal and foolish raiment and lipstick loveliness. For all the houris of Solomon's harem were not arrayed like one of these!

HELEN ROWLAND

But as for You, oh ye Married Woman, it signifieth not whether ye be clad in all-silk or in all-wool, in a Paris Model or in a bungalow apron. For after the honeymoon, ALL husbands are afflicted with astigmatism!

Behold, with every day the call of "Sex Appeal" becometh louder and louder. And the masculine response becometh feebler and feebler!

Lo, more and yet more silk hosiery is flauntingly displayed with each season. Yet the number of divorces keepeth pace therewith.

And it hath come to pass that a man who once would linger upon a windy street corner to gaze after a well-turned ankle, will not so much as lift his eyes from his newspaper to gaze upon a hundred pairs of silken knees.

For these are his portion today, yesterday and forever. And all silk stockings look alike to HIM!

How then shall a woman hold her husband's love in a world full of sirens and Loreleis and unblushing man-hunters?

Verily, verily, there is but one way in all the world to hold ANY man to thee for life. And this, oh my Daughter, is to make thyself a NECESSITY unto him!

For whether a man's wife be his backbone or only his rib; whether she be his inspiration or only his sedative; his footstool or his headrest, his accelerator or his shock-absorber, he will CLING unto her so long as she is the one woman in all the world who filleth his NEED!

But she that heedeth not my counsel shall spend her days and waste her substance in the fruitless pursuit of near-beauty and waning youth. She that ceaseth to be a "necessity" and entereth into competition with vamps and luxuries, shall soon find the world filled with younger and more alluring "luxuries." And all her struggles shall be vain!

Verily, verily, every woman may peradventure be a SIREN—but not unto her own husband!

For the only tie that bindeth any man to any woman is NECESSITIE!

SELAH.

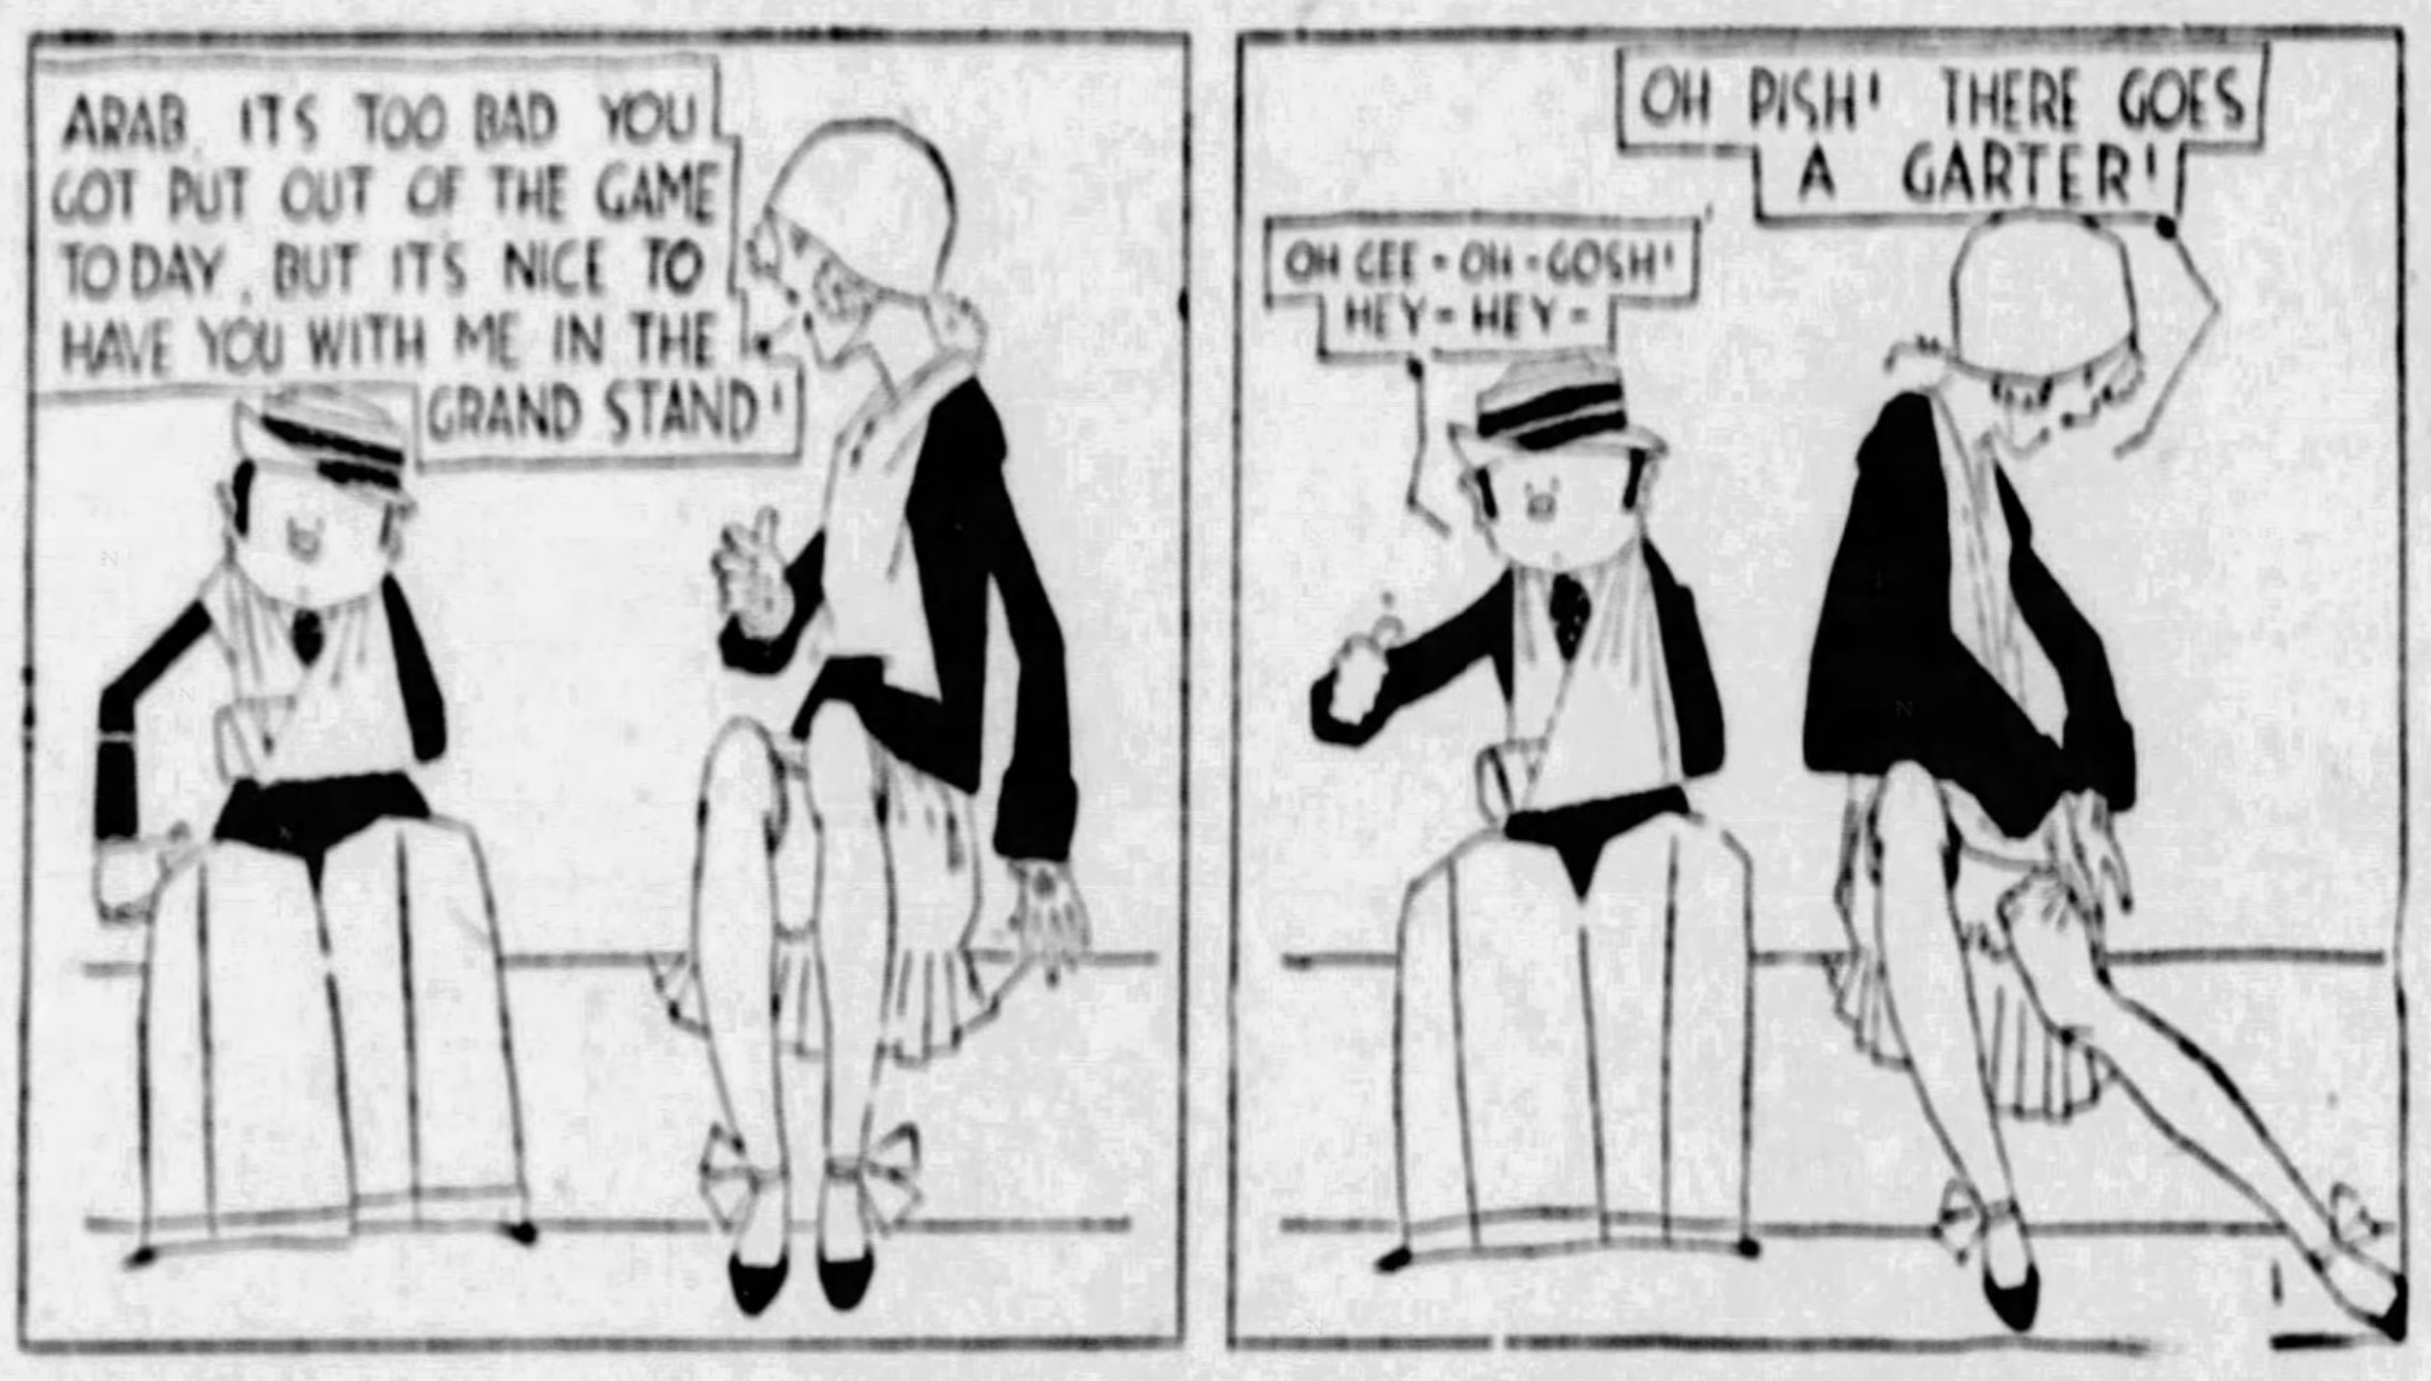
Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer

By John Held, Jr.



ARAB, ITS TOO BAD YOU GOT PUT OUT OF THE GAME TODAY, BUT ITS NICE TO HAVE YOU WITH ME IN THE GRAND STAND!
OH GEE - OH - GOSH! HEY - HEY -
OH PISH! THERE GOES A GARTER!
HOLD-EM!
I DO, EVERY TIME I STAND UP!
John Held Jr
11-12

"My dear, I simply MUST tell you the FUNniest THING, because I mean after ARab made this treMENdous RUN in the first half of the GAME yesterday and was sort of knocked OUT just as he was going to make a TOUCHback or something and be a treMENdous HEro, he sat in the STANDS with me and saw the rest of the GAME with the MOST lugubrious expression you've ever SEEN on any human COUNtenance, because it was actually paTHETic because of course he was TERribly disapPOINTed about getting knocked OUT but I mean it seems when it HAPpened he was running the wrong WAY or something and his own TEAM had to TACKLE him—can you BEAR it, my dear? Well, ANYways, he was AWfully sort of CONsecrated on the second HALF of the GAME which we were watching at this point so he practicably paid NO attention to ME because he was simply enTHRALLED by the GAME because it was terrible CLOSE and all, only of COURSE you might KNOW I would suddenly develop had GARter trouble at a crucial MOment like THAT, so I was sort of BUSily consecrated on FASTening these perVERTed GARters when ARab suddenly BELLowed 'HOLD 'em' in the MOST stenTOrian tones you've ver HEARD, my dear—I mean it HONestly gave me a BAD TURN at this point because I'd no IDEA he was GAzing at me, but nothing DAUNted, my dear, I replied 'I DO, every time I stand UP,' which seemed to BAFfle him—can you BEAR it, my dear?"

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

The Young Man With the Wolf Hound Absorbs Madge's Attention

I FELT very much as if I had a front seat at a play as from behind the huge folds of my Sunday newspaper I peered at the red-bearded man sitting on the bench near the gate leading to the Montauk-bound train. There was even something theatrical in the pose of the man as he sprawled with apparent carelessness on the bench, although to me he looked like nothing so much as a monstrous spider watching for some unwary fly to stray near him. His flaming hair and beard were most conspicuous, and I noticed that numerous curious glances were being sent toward him by the passengers gathering for the eastern-island train.

But he was as indifferent to curious glances as I felt that he would have been to condemnatory ones had any been sent in his direction. He had but one patent purpose—intent watchfulness, and he was carrying it out faithfully.

Then past me moved a little procession which attracted the attention of every person who caught a glimpse of it. The young man whose magnificent wolfhound had lunged against me was moving rapidly toward the gate of the eastern island train, his body bent so that both hands tightly grasped the collar of the animal. Behind him two train porters carried enough smart, if somewhat worn luggage to outfit a half dozen ordinary American young men going out of the city for a vacation. That this was his purpose I inferred from the well-filled golf bag and the tennis racquet which formed part of the load that one porter had tucked around his person in the mysterious and efficient manner known only to his craft.

For a second, in the picturesque passing of the colorful youth, I almost forgot to watch the red-bearded man, whose odd actions had so puzzled me. When my eyes turned back to him it was to find that I needed a new metaphor to describe him. He was no longer a watchful spider, but rather like a catamount gathering himself for a spring. He had drawn himself compactly together, and his eyes beneath their queerly drooping lids were fixed upon the young man with the wolfhound. And the little procession had hardly entered the train shed before my odd neighbor, with a furtive, almost catlike air investing his movements, rose to his feet and followed them through.

With my excitement and my sense of the dramatic steadily mounting, I resolved to sit where I was until the gates should clang upon the outward-bound train. I wanted to assure myself that the red-bearded man really had gone upon it. That knowledge would confirm my suspicion, almost conviction, that he had been waiting for the sole purpose of determining whether the young man with the wolfhound would board the outward-bound train. He must have suspected that he would and had come up to the city to trail the young man back again. Yet from the stealthy actions I was sure that the youth with the dog had no suspicion that he was being followed and knew nothing of the red-bearded man, at least in his present disguise.

A thrill of pleasurable excitement shot through me. It always comes when some mysterious, absorbing problem presents itself to me. It was the reason for my keen enjoyment of the work I did under Lillian in the secret service during the World War. As I settled back to wait the departure of the train I told myself scathingly that I had no right to laugh at Katie for her "scenario soul." I possessed one ridiculously akin to it.

I did not permit my self-flagellation, however, to keep my speculations from following the ill-assorted pair who were about to travel upon the same train to the east end of the island. Two men more unlike, farther apart socially, than the uncouth red-bearded man and the dapper youth with the wolfhound could not be imagined.

"Dapper?" I took back the word, although in a way it described the young man. But I felt that I must cast about for some more dignified word to describe the tall young man who had just disappeared into the train shed.

Not Even a Pin

Dashing draped turbans, in beret style, with the tamlike fullness at the low side, are being exploited in both satin and in velvet. Very youthfully styled, these little hats are completely unadorned, even omitting the ever-present jeweled pin.

EVEN though it's a snappy fall day, Ritzey Rosey and Penelope thought it looked a little gray—therefore the umbrellas. Penelope carries hers in a special leather case with the ends showing, while Ritzy Rosey prefers one of the new ones with identification tags concealed beneath the unusual tassels. The latter is wearing one of the new circular fringed wool skirts which tie on and are worn with a fur jacket. Oh—and the dog on the umbrella can move his ears, tongue and eyes, which is more than the dog of silver and marcasite on Ritzy's shaved felt hat can do.

Betty

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am 17 years old and am in love with a fellow 20 years old. Now, as deep in love as I am with him, I do not believe that he is in love with me. He lives just down the street from me and therefore I see him every day. I know that he likes me for he has proven so by his actions. He visits the house next to mine and when I am there all he does is look at me then when I look at him he drops his eyes. He has asked me out and has been to my home and gone away thanking me for the pleasant evening. My parents both know him and like him. So tell me what I can do to win his favor? I agree with you on the smoking and drinking problems, but don't think that a kiss will hurt anyone, but don't be Harry.

BETTY.

If this boy has called on you and is not sufficiently interested to come again, what is there for you to do, my dear? It is, of course, your privilege to invite him to your home, but if you overdo that you will antagonize him. Be friendly and interested when you see him and he may be able to overcome his bashfulness.

Red Lips

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been reading your column for a long time and I agree with you in everything, as smoking, drinking, petting and kissing. I would like you to give me your advice on this question. There is a family that moved in our neighborhood a few months ago and there are three boys live there and they seem as if they would love to speak to me. I would love to speak to them also, but do not know how to get at it. Can you tell me how? These boys do not know very many boys yet in our neighborhood. One of them knows one of my friends. Should I ask my boy friends to introduce me to him or not?

RED LIPS.

If these boys are sufficiently interested in you, they will have this friend introduce them to you, my dear.

Forbes

Stocks Outrun Profits; Farrell, Baker, Durant.

By B. C. FORBES

MOST of the boomed stocks have increased in price far more than their earnings have increased. It is not uncommon for quotations to show a gain since this time last year of 20 or 30 or 40 or 50 or even 100 per cent. But when financial statements appear [illegible] reveal no such extraordinary [illegible] in profits. Corporations can not pay dividends out of cheap money; dividends can be furnished only by profits.

That is one reason the writer cannot become exuberantly bullish over shares which have been marked up to heights never before dared.

The safest stocks still are those of real merit, which have been utterly neglected because of temporarily unfavorable conditions in their line of business. In no industry do unfavorable conditions last forever. Economic laws see to that.

WHEN the writer recently announced that James [illegible]rell would be elected chief [illegible]tive of the U. S. Steel Corp[illegible]on in succession to the late [illegible] Gary, skepticism was voiced when the directors did not take immediate action. Nobody familiar with the inside factors expected action before November 20 at the earliest. It is not yet entirely certain that the official announcement will come even then, as all the most influential directors may not be on hand for the meeting scheduled for that date.

That Mr. Farrell will be named chief executive in due course is definitely known.

WEIRD are the ways of the stock market. It rates the importance of individuals very differently from the public's rating.

Wall street was seriously disturbed early this week by rumors that the 87-year-old George F. Baker had fallen seriously ill. That is readily understandable by the public, seeing that Mr. Baker is easily the wealthiest and most influential banker in New York, perhaps in the whole world—his wealth may be almost equaled by Secretary Andrew W. Mellon's. Incidentally, the extent of Mr. Baker's indisposition was an attack of indigestion, sufficiently serious to call his only son to his bedside. But the veteran banker enjoyed rapid improvement, and his associates declare he is now practically his old self.

WILLIAM C. DURANT would probably be rated by Wall street at the present moment as quite as important a figure stock marketwise as the dean of American bankers. In other words, were similar reports circulated concerning Durant's health, the effect upon the stock market would doubtless be as great as in the case of Mr. Baker.

Wall street never accepted without reservation Durant's intimation that he was withdrawing from stock market activities. Since then Wall street has declared that its guess proved right. According to all reports, Durant has been quite a figure in certain stocks during recent months.

Meanwhile, however, his own shares, Durant Motors, have done nothing but sink. They reached within a fraction of 15 about the time Durant made his spectacular announcement. This week they sold down to about 8.

Another stock market speculator now much on Wall street's tongue is George J. Whelan, the tobacco magnate. At times he and Durant have worked hand-in-hand. He has become enormously rich.

STOCK exchange seats have been proving amazingly profitable investments. In New York the price has trebled in a few years. Now a San Francisco Stock Exchange seat has been bought by George D. Roberts & Co., the western correspondents of Merrill, Lynch & Co., for $100,000. Eighteen months ago the seats were worth only $13,000.

Narrow Changes in Stocks Here

Stocks were moderately active on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today following the Armistice Day suspension of business here. Prices, however, showed only minor changes from those prevailing on the close Thursday afternoon. Dealings were fairly well diversified with a steady tone noted in most issues.

Westinghouse Airbrake was fractionally lower, but only a few shares came out here. The firm tone exhibited by some of the leading industrials in New York helped the situation here and offerings of Airbrake at the lower quotations were very light.

Fuel issues were practically unchanged. There was some bidding for Arkansas a little above $9, but not much stock was available at that level. Lone Star was steady. Penn Federal Corporation common and preferred were firm at prices showing no change from the previous closings. Harbison Walker changed hands at 175, the new high established recently. Standard Sanitary was steady around 103.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass reflected the reports of improved demand in the trade with the stock selling up three points to 213. Bids were in the market for more stock at 210, but none was available. United States Glass changed hands at 17¾, off a small fraction from the last previous price.

SEVERAL STOCKS SOAR TO NEW PEAKS

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Stock prices gave an impressive demonstration of strength at the opening of today's market. Initial gains of a point or two were recorded by Mathieson Alkali, United States Steel common, Reynolds Tobacco B, Dupont and Crucible Steel. New peak prices for the year were recorded by Southern Railway, Woolworth and Arnold Constable.

The turn for the better in the steel industry, as reflected in the large increase in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation last month and the stiffening of commodity prices, was emphasized as a distinctly bullish factor in week-end market letters, and undoubtedly brought a large volume of new buying into the market. United States Steel common, which sold as low as 128⅝ less than two weeks ago, sold more than 10 points above that figure today, changing hands in large blocks.

Dupont and Mathieson Alkali extended their gains to 4 points each before the end of the first half hour. International Telephone moved up 2 and American Can, Corn Products Refining, Munsingwear and Warren Bros. were added to the list of new 1927 highs. Further heaviness developed, however, in the insurance shares, several of which have recorded sensational gains in the last few months.

Foreign exchanges opened steady with demand sterling quoted around $4.86⅝ and French francs just below 3.92 cents.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Wheat scored an early sharp advance today and corn prices underwent a decided setback. Bullish construction of the Canadian government crop report as to wheat, together with fresh advices of damage by rust in Argentina, affected the wheat market. The Washington official report was the main influence on corn. Opening 1⅛c to 2⅛c higher, wheat held near to initial gains. Corn started 1½c to 3c lower and showed little power to rally. Oats were easier. Provisions tended upward.

In addition to the fact that the Canadian government estimate of wheat production turned out to be less than in some quarters had been looked for, word was at hand today that the Argentine wheat crop has been badly damaged by rust. The rust news was contained in a dispatch from a Chicago crop expert at present in Buenos Aires, but it did not appear to imply first hand observation on his part.

Corn showed a pronounced drop in price at the start and then became steadier, leading trade authorities commenting on the government report as to corn yield said final figures on corn may prove as disappointing to some people as did yesterday's figures on Canadian wheat regarding which bears had made capital beforehand. Speculative buying of corn after the opening loss was of rather free character at times.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

Pittsburgh, Pa.

NOTICE TO HOLDERS OF NEW YORK SHIPBUILDING CORPORATION, FIRST MORTGAGE THIRTY-YEAR FIVE PER CENT SINKING FUND GOLD BONDS, DATED NOVEMBER 1, 1916, DUE NOVEMBER 1, 1946.

Pursuant to Section 1 of Article Four of the Mortgage of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation to The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, Trustee, dated November 1, 1916, securing its First Mortgage Thirty-year Five Per Cent Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, the undersigned Trustee hereby gives notice that the bonds of such issue will be purchased by the Trustee for the Sinking Fund provided in said mortgage, to an amount sufficient to exhaust One Hundred Eighty-seven Thousand Eight Hundred Sixteen and Sixty-Hundredths ($187,816.60) Dollars, being the moneys now held by it in such Sinking Fund. The Trustee hereby invites from the bondholders offers for the sale to it on November 21, 1927, of such bonds. As provided in said Mortgage, such offers shall in each case be for all or any part of the bonds so offered. The lowest offers to the aggregate amount not exceeding an amount sufficient as nearly as may be to exhaust such moneys now held in the Sinking Fund will be accepted, provided that the price or prices accepted will in no event exceed, in addition to accrued interest, one hundred two and one-half per centum (102½%).

As soon as may be, on or after November 18th, 1927, the undersigned Trustee will notify bondholders whose offers are accepted, so that delivery of the bonds covered by such acceptances may be made to the Trustee at its office in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, on November 21st, 1927.

All offers must be in writing, be enclosed in sealed envelopes, state the number or numbers of the bonds offered, and name the price or prices at which the same are offered.

All offers must be received at the office of the Trustee on or before noon of November 18th, 1927.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The cotton market opened steady today at unchanged prices to an advance of 7 points on overnight buying orders brought in by the firmer tone of yesterday. Buying also was reported on low temperatures in the southwest, but demand was not active and prices soon eased under realizing, combined with southern and local selling.

After selling up to 19.90c at the start, January declined to 19.74c, the general market showing net losses of 14 to 16 points at the end of the first hour.

Private cables reported Bombay buying and covering in the Liverpool market, owing to an improved technical position and the predictions of a cold wave in the cotton belt, prices easing later under hedging and liquidation.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at [illegible] bales, against [illegible] last year.

SHOTS and PASSES

by Julius Levin

INDICATIONS are that Carl (Moon) Klinzing, former star of the Morrys, independent champions of the Greater Pittsburgh district, will be found in the lineup of the Goose Goslins in the Allegheny County League this season. Klinzing has a chance to return to the Cleveland Rosenblums, of the American Professional League, but prefers to play at home, it is reported. Klinzing has been a prominent figure in local basketball circles for a number of years and seems to improve with age. Tommy Goslin, back of the team bearing his name in the County League, is sparing no expense in lining up a strong quintet, and if it is possible to obtain the services of Klinzing he plans to get him for the Goslins.

CHICK DAVIES, popular coach of the Duquesne University varsity basketball squad, may lead the Braddock entry in the Allegheny County League this winter. Braddock is making a strong bid for a berth in the County League and if it is successful in obtaining a franchise, Davies may lead the team. Davies last year played a bang-up game for the Butler Bruin Oils in the Central League. He will return to professional basketball this winter provided this move does not interfere with his coaching duties at Duquesne University. If Davies can find it feasible to divide his basketball activities it is almost a certainty that he will be found in the Allegheny County League.

IF THE sponsors of the Allegheny County League are successful in their efforts to distribute the members of the Morry Club throughout the loop, the circuit this winter should be a more compact organization with the strength equally scattered. On the other hand, if the Morrys are allowed to represent Braddock as they stand today, the championship race is going to prove a runaway affair. There is nothing in the County League at present that can compare with the Central League champions of last season.

DRIBBLES

Moy Rubenstein, star of the Geneva College quintet, who winds up his career at the Beaver Falls school this year, will likely join the Enoch Rauhs after he finishes his stay there. Rubenstein is looking forward to what he believes will be his best year this winter.

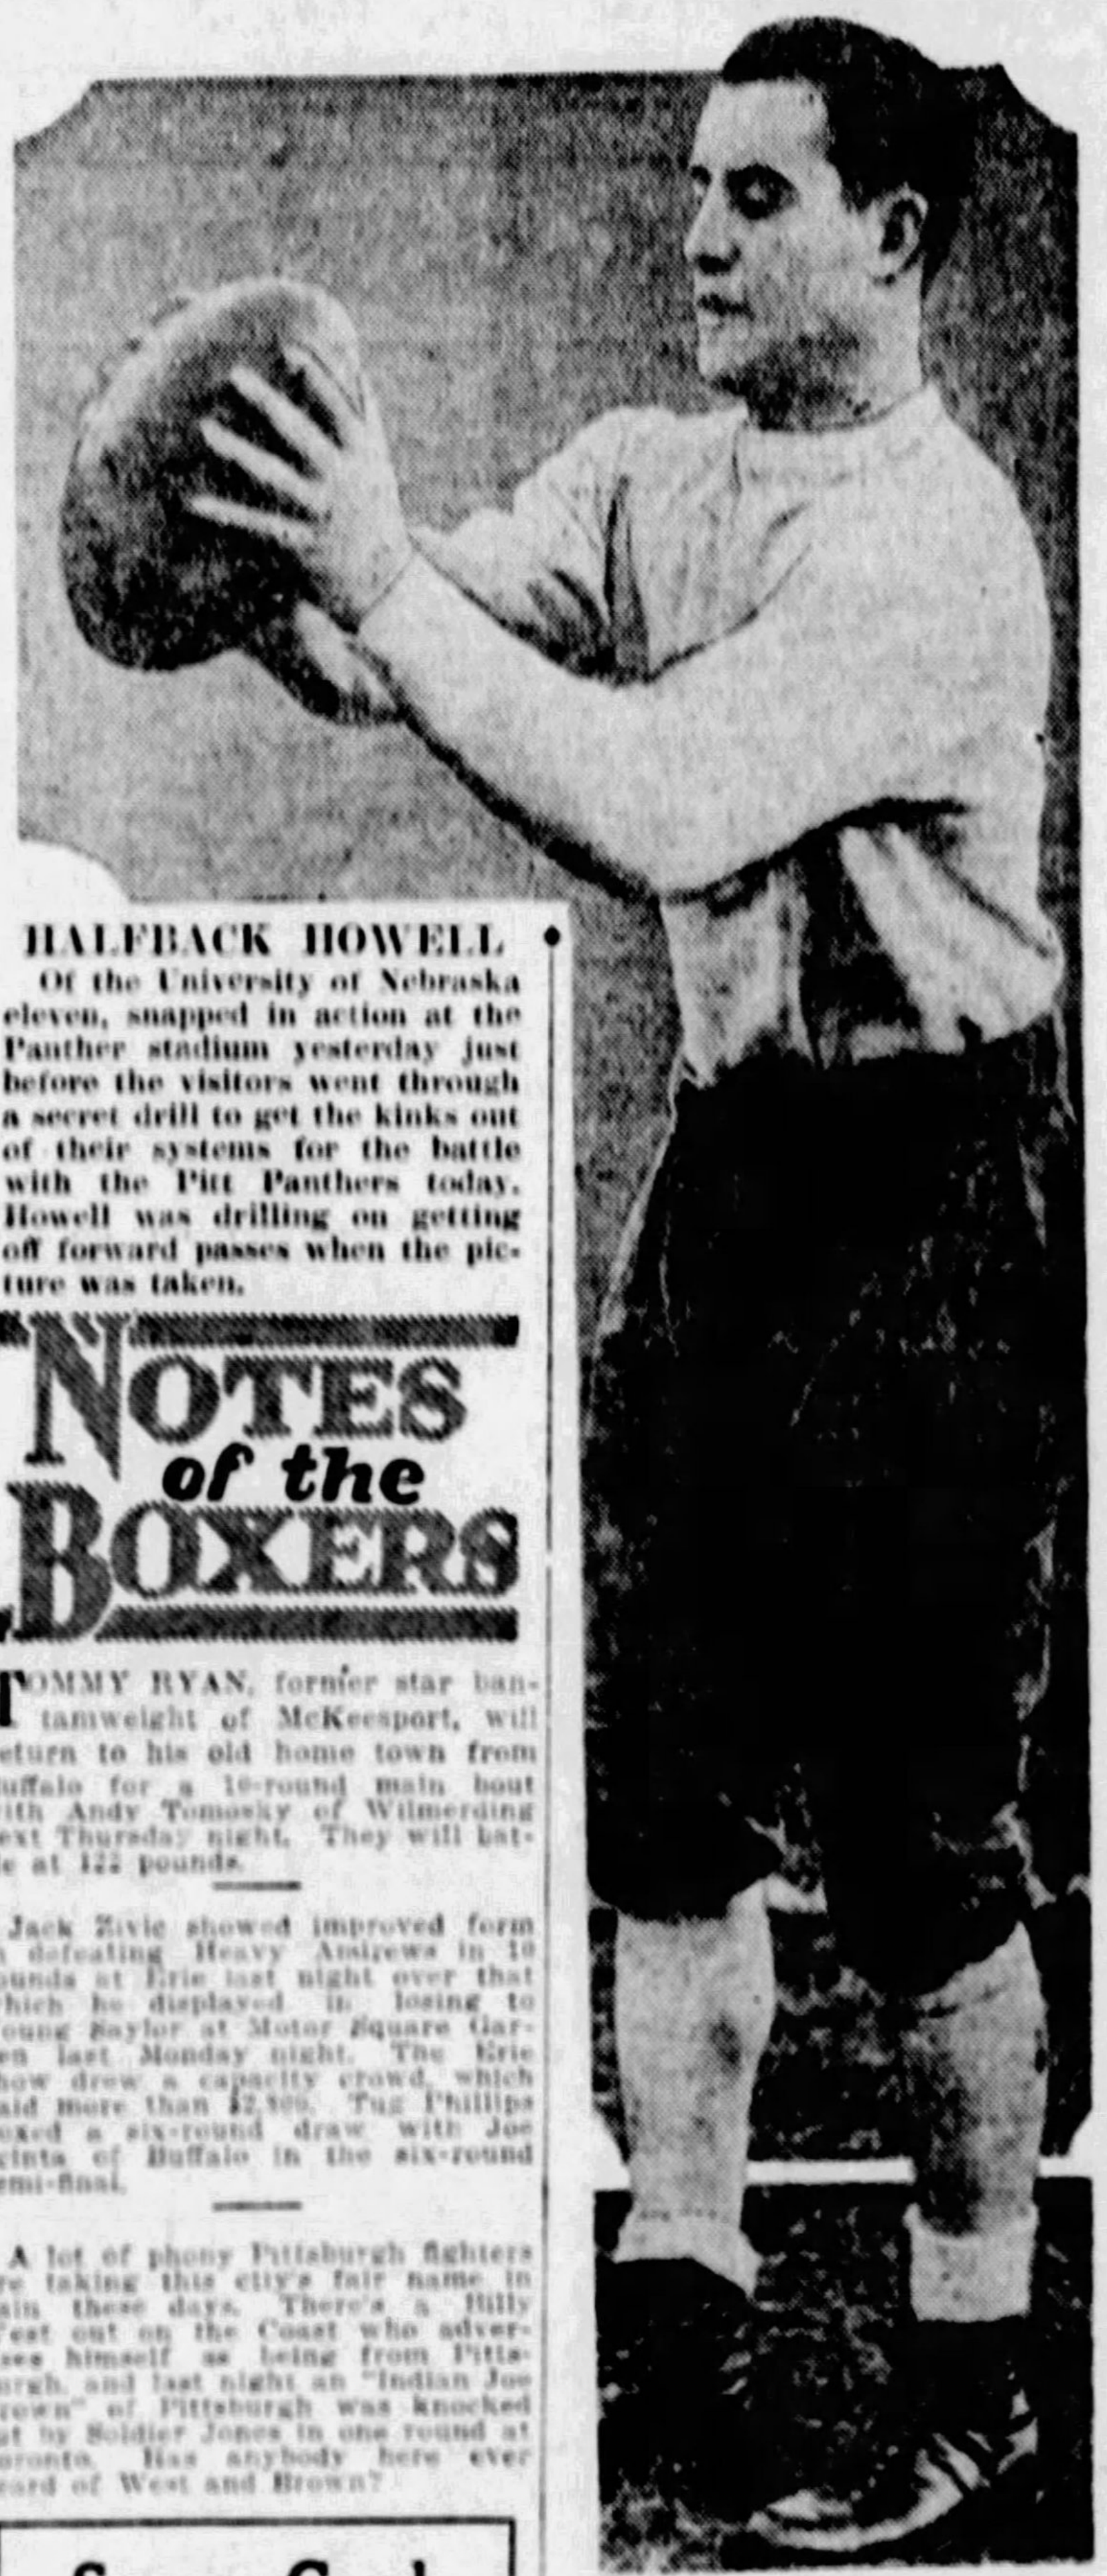
Dalton Williams, manager of the Webster Hall team of the West Penn League, is enthused over the showing of his passers to date. The Oaklanders have captured three out of four practice games and are likely to make a strong bid for the West Penn title.

Dick Schrading, who starred for Duquesne University, will be a member of the Webster Hall quintet. Schrading has been under the weather of late, but is expected to rejoin the squad in a few days. This team is not going to prove a set-up for any club in the West Penn.

Capt. Swede Carlson, of the M. G. Leslies, a Central League entry, is driving his charges for the opening game of the season only two weeks distant. Manager Art Ritenbaugh's quintet are scheduled to pry off the lid with the Pittsburgh Silents at Forresters Hall, Lawrenceville.

The Penn Five of Sharpsburg is pointing for its opening battle on Saturday, November 19, with the South Side Falcons on the latters' floor. The Falcons were runners-up in the A. A. U. tournament last winter and loom as one of the strongest contenders in the Central League.

NEBRASKA PASSER



HALFBACK HOWELL

Of the University of Nebraska eleven, snapped in action at the Panther stadium yesterday just before the visitors went through a secret drill to get the kinks out of their systems for the battle with the Pitt Panthers today. Howell was drilling on getting off forward passes when the picture was taken.

NOTES of the BOXERS

TOMMY RYAN, former star bantamweight of McKeesport, will return to his old home town from Buffalo for a 10-round main bout with Andy Tomosky of Wilmerding next Thursday night. They will battle at 122 pounds.

Jack Zivic showed improved form in defeating Heavy Andrews in 10 rounds at Erie last night over that which he displayed in losing to Young Saylor at Motor Square Garden last Monday night. The Erie show drew a capacity crowd, which paid more than $2,500. Tug Phillips boxed a six-round draw with Joe Scinta of Buffalo in the six-round semi-final.

A lot of phony Pittsburgh fighters are taking this city's fair name in vain these days. There's a Billy West out on the Coast who advertises himself as being from Pittsburgh, and last night an "Indian Joe Brown" of Pittsburgh was knocked out by Soldier Jones in one round at Toronto. Has anybody here ever heard of West and Brown?

FRISBY WILL OFFER HIS BADGES AT PRACTICALY COST, PLUS 50 PER CENT

This is Number Two in the series of photos posed by Mr. Frisby to show women how to protect themselves in the clinches.

By MISTER FRISBY
Our Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.,—I am having quite a time trying to decide what kind of badges to authorize for my followers.

If I am to be the people's choice for Vice President, I suppose I must make a choice of one party or the other.

And I must make a survey of the badge situation.

I want my supporters to be one big, happy family.

I think I shall sell hatbands which say, "Out For A Good Time." For the ladies I will have a similar band, to be worn from the shoulder to the waist, diagonal—if you get what I mean.

Then I shall depend upon word of mouth, and the "curreosity psychology," as we say, to "sell Frisby." Do you "get the picture?" as we say in the world of serious business.

I also have an opportunity to purchase some neat "Remember the Maine" buttons at a bargain which might as well be used. I can also get ahold of some McKinley buttons, in quite good condition, and my printers tell me they can stamp a line through the word "McKinley" and print "Frisby" beneath.

I want your reaction to my plan. Please send letters, with stamps enclosed to Frisby Headquarters, General Delivery, Washington, D. C.

BUGS BAER Says

TRAFFIC expert figures that every big city will soon be jammed with 1,000,000 motor vehicles.

Most of these cars will be delivery wagons rushing vegetables and wet laundry to market.

ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER.

He advises that all deliveries, including pianos, whisk brooms and late husbands be made at night, for there is no real reason why eggs and perishable merchandise should be allowed to ripen in traffic jams.

That's a pretty sweet idea. But, when you open the door in the morning to get the newspaper and the milk, you don't want a load of new coal to fall in your lap.

Nor do you want to be awakened at 4 a. m. to be informed that a parlor lamp and six yards of linoleum have arrived from the department store and would like to see you in person, object C. O. D.

There was one kind of midnight trucking that was very popular in our home town 30 years ago. This was known as moonlight moving and consisted of hustling the furniture out from under the thumb of the landlord. Moonlight moving was an economical method of saving rent. But this was frowned upon by the better class of delinquents.

Night deliveries may be practical, but why stretch the fanfare of backfiring and traffic whistles out for 24 hours? Nighttime was made for rest and not for miscellaneous motor operas.

We enjoy hours of incurable gears and harmonious grinding during the day. When twilight happens to begin we feel that we have earned a moratorium for at least one of our ears.

If it is a question whether the night shall be stilly or silly, we prefer to use the sun for noise and allow the moon to look down on a scene of peaceful loafing.

Driving a load of hogs through a residential street at midnight does not improve the property. If it's all the same to the delivery men, we will take our groceries in the daytime and eat 'em at night instead of reversing the process of digestion.

The traffic problem must be solved, because the big bundle season is almost here, but we trust that the nights are kept reasonably clear until Santa Claus gets his commercial sleigh down the one-way chimneys.

It cannot be solved by turning night into day and making two wrongs out of a right turn.

The Beauty of Childhood
The Greatest Power in the World Except ONE

A BEAUTIFUL CHILDHOOD, BY JESSIE WILLCOX SMITH

In this country, 296 communities, through their "war chests," raise for charity $64,000,000 every year.

Pittsburgh should have such an annual "Community fund" to take care of all local charities, by the way.

The picture above, made by Jessie Willcox Smith for the Survey, is a most beautiful appeal to kind hearts.

We publish the picture because of its beauty and the lesson it teaches.

Few artists are able to interpret the beauty of childhood as it is done here.

You see the tallest of three children, a little girl, with the dawn of loving motherhood in her beautiful eyes, holding out her hands in appeal, with two little children clinging to her for protection.

Those three childish faces are as beautiful as anything can be in this world.

The influence of children's faces upon human beings is the power that has gradually raised men toward civilization. There is only one greater influence—that of the mother, fighting through the ages to make the world a fit place in which children may live.

The Sun-Telegraph congratulates Jessie Willcox Smith on her ability to make such a picture, and congratulates the Survey on its publication.

In this and in other Hearst newspapers it is published where millions will see it.

Flowers are beautiful, and the glorious sunset, and the sky at night. But nothing is more beautiful than the face of a happy child except ONE thing.

And that is the face of a happy mother as she looks upon her child.

What Do You Write?

Writing is such an everyday matter! You can't remember, probably, back to the time when your newly-won ability to put letters and words on paper seemed an amazing acquirement.

But if you suddenly couldn't write, then you would realize how greatly to be prized is the art that appears so simple and commonplace.

Any schoolchild has today a gift that would have been the envy of rich and powerful grownups once upon a time. There was Charlemagne, among the world's most famous kings, ruling Europe a little over a thousand years ago. Charlemagne couldn't write.

He wanted to. This mightiest monarch in Christendom, who was also a wise and learned man for his uncultured time, kept writing materials under his pillow so he could practice making the curious marks that spelled things. But the job, which he started pretty late in a crowded life, was too much for him; he never succeeded in training his hands to form the letters.

So somebody had to do his writing for Charlemagne, just as the people of many lands still seek the services of the public letter-writer.

For there are plenty of countries where writing is not the well-nigh universal accomplishment it is in America.

You write, of course. What? Recipes, wave-lengths, grocery lists, golf scores, checks, picture postcards—that's the way most of us, aside from school or business, use the wonderful art man has so laboriously developed to enable him to preserve his thoughts and convey them to others.

It's a pity writing should become a mere petty convenience. We all have thoughts, at least occasionally, and interesting or unusual experiences.

Write them—in a diary, which, if faithfully kept, will be absorbing reading as the years roll along; or in letters. Those friends you seldom see any more, and always the relatives far away or the folks at home will be delighted to hear from you.

You will not only give pleasure to yourself and to others, but improve your thinking and your observation and your manner of saying what you want to.

Poor Poiret

Roaming the land in the interest of more clothes for women—more complicated, individualistic (and expensive) clothes, that is—Paul Poiret, French dress designer, wails:

"The women think all they need for a wardrobe is good chiffon stockings. Legs. Legs. That's all they think of."

Perhaps yes, M'sieu. Yet of a certainty, what of it?

If American women like to bare their knees to the breeze, if they are so satisfied with their fashion that they have stuck to it for five years, that shows something besides legs—it shows sense.

The girls find short skirts and little hats, and buying clothes from the profusion turned out in this country as nowhere else on earth suits them fine, even though there is a certain uniformity of dress annoying to the artistic M. Poiret.

We suspect the Parisian designers will clamor in vain to recall their lost tyranny in this land of the free and the home of women who think for themselves.

Garrett P Serviss Says:

Who Would Be an Atom?

"Have you any idea how a person could make himself as small as an atom?—C. K."

POSSIBLY in a laboratory they might help you become a heap of atoms, but to squeeze you into one atom I judge would be a task beyond the capacity of present-day science. But, then, you might resort to the philosophers, some of whom teach that things are not what they appear to the senses, but what they seem to the imagination. I have before described the strange case of a man in Pennsylvania who fell into a state in which things appeared to have diminished to but a small fraction of their real size. This deception of the sense of vision imposed itself so completely on the man's mind and consciousness that, while the fit lasted he wondered what mysterious power could thus have shrunk the world around him.

But, if you wish to see what the imagination can do, you might essay the method of the late Dr. Coue, amending his formula to read: "Every day and in every way I am getting smaller and smaller." To this you might add as an encouragement to the minimizing power: "I want to be an atom, and an atom I will be."

But, seriously, have you ever thought of the essential difference between a human being and an atom? The least of the difference consists in size. To shrink a man into an atom would be like shrinking a house into a brick. It would also, if existing theory is right, be like turning a man into a solar system, for the atom is described as resembling in organism the sun and its revolving planets. But if you want to imagine yourself reduced to the very smallest object that physical science has yet (indirectly) measured, you must go deeper down than the atom and try to picture to yourself the nucleus of an atom. This, say the authorities at present recognized, has a diameter "of the order of" 10-12 (10 to the minus twelfth power) centimeters. This is a mathematical form of expression which you will continually meet if you read much modern science. The minus sign of the exponent means that the twelfth power of 10 is to be used as the denominator of a fraction whose numerator is unity, giving in this case one million millionth of a centimeter.

The average atom is supposed to be a hundred thousand times larger than the nucleus. Yet the nucleus is assumed to contain nearly all the mass of the atom. It was a wise man who asserted as a principle of nature that "good things come in small bundles." It was a prophecy of the atom. The nucleus of an atom appears to be the ne plus ultra of smallness, but, by the same token, it may be regarded as the most important thing in existence—the smallest of bundles, but a bundle of super-excellences, almost as mysterious as they are important.

You may find philosophers ready to discuss the question how the mind of a man reduced to atomic dimensions would be able to function, just as there was a time when the "schoolmen" disputed about the number of souls that could stand together on the point of a needle. But, foolish as all these things may seem to the man of practical turn, they are not altogether without their use intellectually. It is best to keep the mind active, even if, occasionally, its excursions lead only among lost meadows whose flowers fade before they can be carried home.

Once Overs
By J. J. MUNDY

On Your Own Feet!

YOU are too easily frightened. You don't admit this to yourself.

You would explain possible failures by the fact that you need encouragement to spur you on.

But if the powers that be elect to discourage you in carrying out some good and legitimate plan, are you going to succumb?

You are too susceptible to outside influence.

That passive kind of effort that needs coaxing along to be worth anything is not dependable material.

Haven't you a strong enough desire to climb to the top in whatever you attempt to carry you through, whether or not you are encouraged?

Who is there who should tell you that you will succeed if not yourself?

If you wait for encouragement in the big things of life you are going to be a flat failure.

Make your endeavors so earnest and persistent that you can forget all else and you won't have time to be scared out.

The Rhyming Optimist
By ALINE MICHAELIS

Song Tree Tops Sing

HOW sweet the songs on singers' lips, where notes like silver chime, and every word like honey drips in melody sublime! Entranced, their listeners hear such song that brings them rare respite from all earth's weariness and wrong; makes all the world seem bright. And dear the songs that mothers croon beside white cribs at eve; the first faint stars, the crescent moon in webs of words they weave. But there is music sweeter still than words that heaven-ward wing; you hear it on a wind-swept hill, the song the tree-tops sing! Now, like an organ, strong and deep, the mighty voices rise; now murmuring of dreamless sleep come muted harmonies. Ah, there is music rarer still than any art can bring; it lingers on a wind-swept hill, the song the tree-tops sing!

Tales that are Told

Worldly Wisdom

AS HE passed through a certain dilapidated village in the Balkans with a dilapidated youth for a guide, he saw an old beggar woman sitting at a church door.

"Ivan," said the tourist, who was a great joker, "for every copper you give that old girl I'll give her silver."

"Right," replied the guide, and emptied his pockets. The old woman received seventeen coins, and the tourist, true to his promise, gave her seventeen pieces of silver.

"Now, which of us is the bigger fool," he asked, "you or I?"

"You," said Ivan.

"No," declared the other; "you gave her all you had."

"But," said Ivan, "she's my mother."—London Answers.

Coolly Calculating

"DON'T fidget!" snapped the little girl's uncle, and his niece stopped toying with the lid of the chocolate box and tried to concentrate on the play.

It was rather a dull affair and in less than three minutes she was again fidgeting.

"Mary," her uncle scowled, "stop fidgeting about at once!"

Once again the little girl grew obedient, but once again the production failed to keep her fingers from the tempting chocolate box.

"Now, Mary," exclaimed the uncle, "I warn you for the last time!"

Mary grew alarmed. Glancing doubtfully at the stage and then at the tempting lid, she whispered:

"Would it be a hairbrush or just your hand?"

Very Much Worn

THE assistant in a gentleman's outfitting shop, having placed a rather obviously second-hand overcoat upon a stand, regarded it in silent contemplation.

He turned to his employer and said in a pleading voice: "I'm afraid I'd better not put a 'Very Fashionable' against that one, sir. It's very shabby."

His employer nodded and walked over to the coat. There was no doubt about it, the coat was shabby—far too shabby to fetch a good price.

"Never mind," said the manager at length. "Place the card, 'Very Much Worn' on it instead."

LISTEN, WORLD! ELSIE ROBINSON Says: 'Stern Midwife of Pain'

YOU'VE wondered about pain, haven't you, my dear? Wondered why lives should have to be hurt and troubled.

When you were a little child they told you that was God's punishment. But you didn't think much of that idea. You never had liked peevish people and the picture of a God who spent most of His time picking on his children didn't go so big with you.

Later on, you decided that pain didn't have anything to do with God. It was all a mistake. People should live perfectly happy and—without any sorrow. That listened well. Only, unfortunately, you met someone, now and then, who had never had any trouble. And they were usually just about as helpful and magnetic as a dose of hives—spoiled pests, without an ounce of sympathy in 'em. So you concluded that pain must have some purpose—even if you couldn't understand it.

I came across a phrase the other day—"the stern midwife of pain." I think that unknown writer has revealed the purpose of suffering.

We've thought of pain as an accident—something inflicted upon us. But that writer thought of it as a natural, inevitable happening, which must come with all new growth.

Look at the world around you. Always pain goes with growth—always struggle with birth.

The bursting of a seedling from the husk—the breaking of a bird from the shell—a child born in travail. Always the struggle and the hurt. But always after the struggle something that pays for all the pain.

Nothing new until something old has been broken down—

No gain until a price has been paid—

That is the law of the body, whether it is the body of a plant, a bird, an insect or a man. And that is the law of the soul. Always the struggle—always pain ministering like a "stern midwife" at birth.

Always a struggle before a man paints a picture or designs an airplane, writes a poem or discovers a germ. Always a difficult, racking adjustment before our narrow, selfish heart gives birth to patience and tolerance, gentleness and wisdom—

Pain—

Not a punishing rod or a pernicious pest—

But the natural accompaniment of Growth.

Try to think of that the next time sorrow comes to you. Don't say—"Why should I be afflicted with this thing? Take the bitter cup from me! Give me, instead, an easy, happy life."

Say rather—"This pain is hard to bear, but I can bear it for I know that something great is coming out of it. I must drink this cup, as other men have drunk it. But I will try not to think of bitterness. I will try, instead to think of the New Thing that is coming into my life—the new strength, the new wisdom, the Greater Me that is being born."

Try to face pain that way, my dear, and something very wonderful will happen to you.

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

New York Day by Day
by
O.O. McINTYRE

New York Day by Day
by O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Along the employment agencies on Sixth avenue humanity seems boiled down to its uttermost dregs. Backward and forward in front of the agencies pace the jobless with the apparent futility of the circus lion in its cage.

Just now the specter of winter faces chronic floaters. They are beginning to turn up their frayed coat collars and scan the chalked bulletin boards for work in sunny climes. These are men who usually wait around a month and follow the swallows.

Largely they are representative of roaming types of unskilled labor the world over and must be content with the meager rewards of dish-washing, floor-scrubbing and the like. You see bulletins for basement porters, bus boys, hotel housemen, yardmen and potato peelers.

Not many are looking for permanent work. Rather do they seek a job for a few days or few weeks and then drift, often from Bangor to Bombay and from Seattle to Singapore. They stand in groups like cattle in a storm, seemingly bled white of emotion.

Some have poker faces and lynx eyes, others have loose lips and receding chins and are the economic question marks. Also, those odd human misfits just a little too proud to beg and too lazy to work. And, of course, there is a sprinkling of those who have tried earnestly and keep on trying.

New York is not a pleasant place for the jobless in cold weather. During the summer they have freedom of the public parks, where, wrapping themselves in newspapers, they can sleep comfortably through the night. But winter fills the municipal lodging houses and many must sleep in doorways or walk the streets.

Curiously enough there is very little cynical brooding about the drifters. They take languid interest in radical speeches from soap boxes along the curb. You somehow get the idea they have a realization their misfortune is largely their own fault.

New York has a way of changing the names of its many wonders. The Hudson River, the namesake of its discoverer, Henry Hudson, is better known among New Yorkers as the North River. The New York Navy Yard is almost always referred to as the Brooklyn Navy Yard. The Whiteside Battery has been shortened to The Battery. The New York Zoological Park is the Bronx Zoo.

* * *

The squalor, depravity and vice of Cherry Hill have almost vanished. The Cherry Hill gangster has deserted his "gat" for a cane and moved up to Broadway to hang around the swell speak-easies. The district is still shabby, but fairly respectable. Few realize visiting that section that it was once the most exclusive residential section of the metropolis. At the beginning of the nineteenth century it was the street of famous men. At No. 1 Cherry street was the first presidential mansion. At No. 5 lived John Hancock. At No. 27 was the home of Capt. Sam Reid and it was there he designed the present plan of the American flag. At 29 was domiciled the staff officers of Washington. The street began to fall away when a group of immigrants took over one of the old houses. Residents could not stand this invasion and began to move out.

* * *

A flivver along a Fifth avenue curb had a series of short chalk marks around its door and on a placard to which was hung a can opener was printed: "To open—follow dotted lines."

* * *

Add incongruities: A man who wears the frock coat of a floorwalker all day in an avenue department store often acts as a leather lunged prize fight announcer in the evening. Los Angeles, incidentally, has a gentleman who performs the same double services.

* * *

A Fifth avenue crossing cop rewarding my zeal to cross the street hurriedly with a quick backward shove, inquired: "How do you like them berries?" If he is still solicitous, he may be interested to know I did not care for them. And so far as I am concerned he can go comb his hair.

What of It?
By DR. FRANK CRANE

There has recently been a meeting of the International Congress for Psychic in Paris. There were the most astounding declarations. A Mr. Bird of New York and a Dr. Reitz of Leningrad produced a lot of evidence to rehabilitate the mediums.

Dr. Reitz stated that they all operated in good faith and the audience applauded the sentiments. He said that in some performances the mediums had found articles that had been introduced into safes doubly locked and sealed and others tied knots in a cord attached to a seat.

There were other mediums that wrote upon the typewriter and many were able to move all sorts of objects without help of any material agency.

Mr. Price, of America, told how mediums produced changes of temperature in a room, and Professor Cazzamali, of Milan, claimed that the human brain emits radio waves that had begun to be photographed.

He said, also, that the brain put forth sounds which were audible by radio.

Rappings of ghosts were possible, it was claimed, and messages from another world could be received.

Charles Richet, of France, the president of the Congress, declared that metaphysics is on the verge of becoming an authoritative science, and that there is a sixth sense or psychic power.

Another power produced what he called thumb-prints of spirits, which corresponded to the thumb-prints of the person during his life time.

To all of which the public makes the query, "What of it?"

If a dead person has nothing better to do than go around rapping typewriters, moving tables and making thumb-prints, he is not very busy.

All of this material seems merely to be in the interest of astounding people. It adds nothing to the sum of human learning and is simply a continuation of the oldest craft in the world, which is witchcraft.

Blood Sings

BAD blood groans. Poor blood whispers. Good blood talks. Excellent blood sings.

You are invited to tune in on a little song of three stanzas, an aria of excellent blood, taken from the folio of life.

I know them well, this rare trio, as I know the roses in my dooryard or the pansies that pelt me with winks from the edge of the garden path.

Elizabeth I, dubbed with the brevity Queen Bess by her disillusioned brothers and sisters. She is a rarity indeed, combining antitheses seldom found in a single personality. I have seen her as hostess of a thousand guests and as unperturbed as a Sphynx, yet as gracious as a sunbeam. Her pen is as clever as a classic and her literary and histrionic discernment as keen as a Damascus blade. She is as indigenous to a ledger as to a drama and her sympathy is as broad as the firmament.

Elizabeth II is the dawning of that full-orbed day. No Bertillon system is necessary to identify her as the daughter of her mother. As the second stanza in this blood anthem she carries the aria like a lark. The bard of Avon would thrill to meet her behind the footlights. The father of modern pedagogy would claim her as a product of his theories. She looks out on life from French windows never darkened by prejudice or petulance. Her home is a shelter in the snow-bound Alps to which the Saint Bernards lead the lost and frozen souls of the city.

Elizabeth III, bless her dimpled innocence, only toddled past her first milestone last week. But Lombrosso would snatch her from the cradle with ecstasy, and seers and prophets would find in the deep fathoms of her blue eyes the prophecy of genius and immortality. Any Bethlehem is a challenge to destiny, but this one, this third stanza, is a sure anticipation of a diva's ovation, a diva of the art of life.

Such is the music, and as the raucous shouts of the day drown out the sacred melody we lift our hearts in the orison.

God grant the world more songs of excellent blood.
